Wafdists Give Egypt Premier "Iffy" Support

Saboteurs Blow Up Train In Suez Area

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 28 (AP)—Premier Aly Maher Pasha's new independent government got a pledge of support today—with a big "if"—from the powerful Wafdist Party it replaced at the climax of this country's bloodied relations with Britain.

The "if" was that the new government must follow the Wafdst policy for throwing the British out of the Suez area and the Sudan.

Maher Pasha took over the reins of a country under martial law from the two-year-old Wafdist government of Mustapha Nahas Pasha, who was ousted last night by King Farouk after unchecked mobs put the torch to Cairo Saturday and killed at least 62 persons.

Saboteurs Blow Up Train

Violence flared again in the Suez Canal zone today when Egyptian saboteurs blew up a train, wounding four British soldiers. One Egyptian was killed in the gunfight that followed.

The Wafdist-dominated parliament accepted Maher Pasha's nonparty cabinet and voted to keep the country under martial law for the next two months. There was one dissenting vote in the Chamber of Deputies on the martial law vote, but the Senate vote was unanimous. Maher told the deputies he would lift the martial law within a week if circumstances were favorable.

"But if events develop against Egypt's interests," he added, "I might ask for a renewal of the period."

Application of martial law, he promised, would be restricted to "criminals and their accomplices working against Egypt's national aims."

Curfew Restrictions Eased

Tanks and armored cars continued to patrol Cairo's streets and infantrymen were stationed at important intersections. But rigid curfew restrictions were relaxed and passes were issued to newspapermen and others whose work required them to be on the streets at night.

The 68-year-old "strong man" also took over the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Army, Navy and Radio. He was made military governor by the king, backed by an army commanded by Gen. Mohammed Haidar Pasha.

Wafdist, Saadist and liberal constitutional deputies and senators gave their conditional pledge of support for Maher Pasha's government only "as long as it goes ahead to fulfill Egypt's national demands for evacuation (of British troops) from the Suez and union of the Sudan under the Egyptian crown."

O'Conor Opposes New Tax Boost

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP)—President Truman's request for a 5 billion dollar increase in taxes should not be granted, Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) said tonight.

"It is my firm conviction that the taxes already pyramided on individuals and corporations alike are dangerous in the extreme," he told the Binghamton Chamber of Commerce.

"They tend to destroy initiative. They penalize all individuals and corporations who want to go all out in the development of the ideas and the productive facilities which have made, and are needed to maintain this country as the unmatched economic leader of the world.

"Instead of levying 5 billion dollars additional taxes, the Congress must cut the budget to the bone, to the end that there be no further deficit to add to the already dangerously high debt level."

The Democrat who has spent two decades in political office, including governor of Maryland, announced earlier this month he would not seek reelection after one term in the Senate.

Stassen Blames HCL On Policy "Failures"

DECATUR, Ill., Jan. 28 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, tonight blamed rising living costs on "failures in foreign policy."

He told a Central Illinois audience that the foreign policies of both President Truman and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) are "very bad for America."

He outlined his own international relations philosophy and advocated re-establishing Gen. Douglas MacArthur as leader in the Western Pacific and reorganizing the United Nations and revamping its charter.

300 Million Aid Grant To Britain Announced

Will Be Used For Raw Materials

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—A 300 million dollar aid grant to Britain "to support the United Kingdom defense program" was announced tonight by mutual Security Director W. Averell Harriman.

The funds, from the new $7,328,903,976 Mutual Security Act, will be used almost entirely for "raw materials and components" purchased up to next July 1.

Britain had asked for 600 million dollars, pleading that because of her current financial plight, the British defense program otherwise might have to be curtailed unless U. S. aid were forthcoming.

Harriman Writes Connelly

Harriman said in a letter to Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that without the 300 million grant "it would be necessary for the United Kingdom to reduce its defense program by more than twice as much."

"In light of the fact that the British are now producing more military equipment than all other European NATO countries combined, it is considered particularly important that such a reduction in its defense program should not have to be made," Harriman said.

"It seems clear that this 300 million will contribute to the fulfillment of the military material requirements of mutual defense more effectively in the form contemplated than if the same funds were to be used to procure military end-items guns, tanks, planes, etc., in the United States."

Harriman said that as part of the arrangement for the grant, Britain agreed to supply an equivalent amount in sterling currency to the maintenance of its defense production program.

This presumably explained Harriman's estimate that without the grant the British defense effort would be reduced by "more than twice as much."

France has announced she expects to receive a grand total of about 600 million in American direct aid and in dollars spent this fiscal year in France by the United States for military installations and similar purposes.

DEFENSE MINISTER — Field Marshal Viscount Alexander (above), former governor general of Canada and one of Britain's most famous soldiers, was named yesterday to take over the post of minister of defense from Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Alexander's strategy paved the way for the defeat of the Axis in North Africa in World War II.

Some Decontrol May Be Feasible

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle told Congress today he is preparing to appoint a committee to explore the possibility of decontrolling prices in some fields.

He hastened to say, however, he is convinced that the nation at this time "should not properly take the risk of any major decontrol." He added that this may well continue to be the case in the months ahead.

The new top-level committee within his Office of Price Stabilization, he explained, will "explore critically and continuously the question of decontrol in specific areas where price pressures, at the moment, are largely absent."

He said it would "develop standards under which we can continually test whether decontrol is feasible, and when it becomes feasible, provide an orderly and objective procedure for its accomplishment."

DiSalle testified before the Senate-House Economic Committee, which is studying the President's annual economic message to Congress.

Baltimore Transit Co. Seeks To Boost Fares

BALTIMORE, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Baltimore Transit Company today told the Maryland Public Service Commission more revenue is needed right away to meet a newly-raised payroll.

The commission heard the company's plea, then took the matter under advisement late today. At the outset of the hearing, Commission Chairman John H. Hessey made it clear that, if granted, the fare relief would be only "temporary".

The agreement reached Sunday to end the strike called for all buses and trolleys to start at 4 a. m. Tuesday.

Chances Of Reds Accepting Allied POW Plan Slim

U. N. Calls Proposal "Complete Solution"

MUNSAN, Korea, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—The United Nations command Monday presented the Communists with a 14-point "complete solution" to the long-standing prisoner-exchange controversy and asked the Reds to reply as soon as possible.

The chances of Red agreement appeared dim. The Allies' solution contained the U. N. proposal for voluntary repatriation of prisoners, which the Communists have announced they would "reject forever."

The delegates are dealing with the prisoner problem while the staff officers, at a lower level of negotiation, consider the 18-page armistice draft presented by the Allies on Sunday.

With the exception of only one item—recommendations to governments, not yet considered by either side—the Allied blueprint for an armistice was complete. The documents spelled out in detail what the Allies want and provided a basis for discussion at Panmunjom. It was the backbone on which to build an armistice, but it contained points the Reds have repeatedly turned down.

(In Washington U. S. State Department officials and military leaders conferred with Allied representatives on what steps should be taken if the Korean truce talks collapsed. Hope of success was not dead, but there appeared to be recognition that prospects of an overall agreement were slackening.)

LIGHT CLASHES REPORTED

SEOUL, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—Allied infantrymen and jet planes clashed lightly with the Communists Monday in a day of little activity on the Korean battle ground.

Allied Sabre jets patrolling over North Korea ran into 5 Russian-built MIGs and traded firing passes. No damage claims were made.

Poor flying weather held Allied air strikes to only 183 sorties by 6 p. m. including rail cuts in 26 places.

Knife-Waving Bandit Robs Matron Of Fortune In Gems

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP) — A tough young bandit shushed a wealthy matron's anti-crime lecture today and robbed her at knife-point of nearly $100,000 in jewelry.

The victim, 68-year-old Mrs. Scott Scammell, tried to convince the bandit that crime did not pay after he confronted her in her spacious Fifth Avenue apartment.

"Why don't you stop this?" Mrs. Scammell told him. "I'll open the back pantry door and let you out the service entrance."

The bandit kept whispering "sh, sh," she said, and finally warned her:

"You don't have so long to live, and I don't mind how many people I kill."

Police said about $88,000 worth of the jewels were insured.

The man, a negro, left only after tying Mrs. Scammell's hands and feet and thrusting her into a closet.

Three servants in their own quarters were unaware of the robbery until they heard the screams of their white-haired mistress. Then they untied her and she called police.

United States, Canada Swap Atom Secrets

U. S. May Use Data On H-Bomb Project

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission disclosed tonight that an exchange of atomic secrets "beneficial to the United States" has been carried out with Canada.

He did not say what information was involved.

Speculation immediately arose that the exchange might involve information on Canada's famed "heavy water" reactor—described as the most advanced design in that field of atomic research—for use on this country's H-bomb project.

Dean said an "interchange" of information with Canada has been made in the last few weeks—the first with any country since the U. S. Atomic Energy Act was amended last year to permit a somewhat less restricted exchange of atomic data with "friendly nations."

Information "Classified"

The AEC chief emphasized, however, that before letting down its barriers the United States must be convinced that "the security of the other power is adequate" and that the exchange is "beneficial to the United States."

The law still prohibits giving information, he said, on "the design and fabrication of atomic weapons."

Dean refused to disclose the nature of the information exchanged with Canada, commenting to newsmen:

"It's classified (secret)."

Dean's announcement followed recent Canadian complaints that the exchange of atomic information with the United States was "virtually a one-way flow of traffic" from Canada.

Model In H-Bomb Work?

American atomic officials are on record as saying that Canada has achieved the most "advanced" atomic reactor both in design and performance — the so-called heavy water reactor.

Today's disclosure gained significance from the fact the U. S. has announced that the projected multi-billion-dollar H-bomb plant in South Carolina will involve the use of "advanced" designs.

This led to conjecture that Canada's reactor may figure as a model in the U. S. hydrogen bomb work.

Fire Leaves 17 Missing

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 28 (AP) — Flames that roared through a three-story brick business and apartment building on the edge of the Minneapolis loop early today left 17 persons missing.

Search for victims was held up by shifting of collapsed floors and the roof. Firemen planned to tear down walls and sections of the floors before probing the debris for bodies.

Fire Chief Reynold Malquist said "we're not at all certain how many persons are missing, but I understand 17 persons have not been located."

Policeman's Slayer Denied Execution Stay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court tonight refused to stay the execution of Earl D. Bircham, who is scheduled to die Friday, Feb. 1, for the shooting of a Louisville, Ky., policeman.

Justice Jackson's denial was made without any explanation for his reasons. Last Saturday Justice Reed likewise refused to order a stay. Jackson's refusal apparently was Bircham's last chance for any intervention by the Supreme Court.

Bircham was convicted of shooting Policeman John Tennyson.

Lovett Says GI Pay Hike "Long Overdue"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Lovett today urged Congress to grant the armed forces a flat 10 per cent pay raise as "very necessary and long overdue."

Testifying before the Senate Armed Service Committee, Lovett declared:

"Only our men and women in the military service have not had their incomes adjusted to the spiraling cost-of-living with which they have been faced."

Two infantrymen of the 166th Regimental Combat Team row down the main business street of Marietta, O. Most merchants moved their stock and boarded windows before flood waters of the Ohio River surged into the town. A crest of 47 feet is expected in Marietta at 3 p. m. today.

Efforts To Jail Judith Coplon Rebuffed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Supreme Court today rebuffed the Justice Department in its efforts to jail Judith Coplon on charges of plotting to spy for Soviet Russia.

Justice Department officials would not say what steps, if any, they would take next. By their own previous statements, their task was much more difficult.

The Supreme Court refused to review conflicting opinions by lower courts in the case of the ex-government girl who was twice tried and convicted on related charges. One of her convictions had been set aside, and in the other an appeals court held she also may be entitled to a new trial.

No Segregation Case Ruling

Besides refusing two government appeals that it intervene, the Supreme Court also rejected Miss Coplon's request that it review parts of an appeals court ruling adverse to her.

In the other major case with which the Supreme Court was concerned today, its action was likewise inconclusive.

It sent back for further evidence and action a special three-judge court's ruling upholding segregation of white and negro pupils in the public schools of South Carolina. The court said it needs further information before it can rule on the case.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People had appealed directly to the high court to set aside the ruling which okayed South Carolina's segregated schools. By a 7 to 2 vote, the high court voided it temporarily and asked the special court at Charleston, S. C., to consider what steps have been taken to provide schools of equal quality for negroes.

Russian Also Convicted

"Judy" Coplon, 29, raven-haired and from Brooklyn, was convicted, along with Valentin A. Gubitchev, a Soviet engineer and U. N. employe, of attempted espionage and conspiracy, after a six weeks' trial in the U. S. District Court in New York. The government allowed Gubitchev to return to Russia.

She was convicted in Washington of stealing confidential government documents to give to a foreign agent.

Big Gamble Won By Floating Pole

DOVER, Eng., Jan. 28 (AP)—A 23-year-old Pole, wearing four suits, a rubber "frog man" outfit and a lifebelt, was found floating in the English Channel seven miles from shore today.

He told rescuing sailors of the channel ferry Twickenham he had jumped six hours before from a Polish vessel of which he was third mate. He said he hoped for haven in England from the Communist government of his homeland.

The Pole, unharmed and cheerful, was turned over to immigration authorities here.

Election Of "Civil" Leader In November Urged By MacArthur

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Political crossfires grew hotter today as Sen. Mayband (D-SC) came out against another term for President Truman, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur called for the election of a skilled "civil" leader in November.

Withdrawing his own name from the New Hampshire presidential primary, Gen. MacArthur expressed his view that the country's voters should elect a President of demonstrated capability in the "science of civil government."

On Capitol Hill, MacArthur's comment was interpreted in some quarters as a slap at the candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, like MacArthur a life-long soldier. Eisenhower has said he would accept the GOP presidential nomination.

MacArthur is regarded as a likely supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio).

Truman Again Urges St. Lawrence Seaway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — President Truman told Congress today it should authorize construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project as a matter of "immediate urgency."

The President, in a special message on the controversial issue which he has supported since 1935, said it was "inconceivable" that local or special interests should influence Congress to block the building of the waterway, estimated to cost 818 million dollars.

Congress refused to act on the project last year, and even as the reading of Mr. Truman's message was completed in the Senate, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations Committee arose to reiterate his oft-expressed opposition to the proposal.

"Meanest Thief" Jailed

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 28 (AP)—A man who stole a March of Dimes "iron lung" with $3.34 in it because he was "broke and hungry" was sentenced to the state penal farm today.

City Judge Alvin D. Blieden sentenced William H. Bach, 63, fireman in a hotel, to six months.

Mine Safety Proposal Rejected By John L.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Part of the coal industry today suggested compromise government powers to close down unsafe mines, but John L. Lewis said the plan was so hedged it would fail to halt mine accident "slaughter."

Lewis, president of the independent United Mine Workers union, coldly rejected the proposal put forward at Senate Labor subcommittee hearings by mine owners representing about one-fifth of the industry.

"I am speaking for the employes of this industry who are not yet dead," Lewis roared.

Reds Warned Against New Move In Asia

War Plot By West Charged By Malik

PARIS, Jan. 28 (AP)—The United States, Britain and France served firm notice on the Soviet Union today that any Communist aggression against Southeast Asia would be put before the U. N. for urgent action.

Russia's Delegate Jacob A. Malik replied promptly that this warning was the result of a "new war plot that was hatched" by President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill at their recent Washington talks.

Russia Accused In Debate

These declarations came during debate in the Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly on a complaint by Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang that Russia violated the 1945 treaty of friendship with Chiang Kai-Shek. The committee will vote tomorrow on Tsiang's request for the U. N. to return a "moral judgment" against Russia.

Burmese Delegate U Mynt Thein jumped into the scrap today. His government has been trying for months to expel a fragment of Kuomintang (Nationalist Chinese) troops but has not succeeded. He said they were being supplied from Formosa. He asked the Western Powers if their assurances against aggression meant also assurances against "Kuomintang aggression." He got no answer at this session.

Cooper Backs Tsiang

John Sherman Cooper, former Republican senator from Kentucky, strongly backed Tsiang's appeal for a judgment against Russia and cited what Cooper called evidence to show the Soviet Union had violated the treaty of friendship. Then he referred to a speech Jan. 3 here by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

Vishinsky had charged that the United States was ferrying Nationalist Chinese troops to Burma, Thailand and other Southeast Asian countries and that "these illegal—flagrantly illegal—acts of the United States, we can be quite sure, will be declared to be defensive measures against China's aggression whenever events begin to take their course on the southern borders of China."

U. S. Stars' Absence Disappoints India

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 28 (AP)—The absence of American film stars from India's international film festival is a keen disappointment to Indians. U. S. stars are tremendously popular in India.

So sharp was Indian hunger for a U. S. movie face—or figure—that milling crowds greeted the arrival of a diplomat's buxom wife at the opening with the cry:

"Jane Russell."

Boy's Big Bounce On Bed Ends Five Stories Below

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Seven-year-old Albert Magee decided to liven things up last night for some of his 12 bored brothers and sisters.

He said he bet he could bounce higher than any of them. With that, he bounced on the bed—and right out the window.

He landed five floors below on a rain-softened patch of dirt.

Today attaches at Long Island College Hospital were able to find only scratches and bruises on his face. No broken bones. But they will keep him a few days for observation.

Alleged Spies On Trial

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Five Bulgarians were put on trial today on charges of spying for the United States, the Sofia radio said.

All pleaded guilty, the broadcast announced.

7,000 Forced From Homes By Muddy Ohio

Freezing Weather Slows River Surge

MARIETTA, O., Jan. 28 (AP) — Freezing temperatures slowed the surging waters of the Ohio River tonight as the brunt of a flood neared this Southeastern Ohio area, leaving nine dead and 7,000 homeless.

The U. S. Weather Bureau forecast cloudy and colder with occasional snow flurries throughout Ohio tonight and more of the same tomorrow.

Towns like Marietta, where the Ohio River already is six feet over flood stage, are all set for more high water. About 1,000 persons have been moved to higher ground. A crest of 47-48 feet is expected tomorrow. Flood stage is 35 feet.

The river crested at 44 feet in Wheeling, where flood waters drove out 2,000 persons and slowed industry almost to a halt.

It is impossible to estimate damage to homes and industries at this stage. But the figure is expected to run into the hundreds of thousands.

Parkersburg Opens Gates

There are few large towns along the approximately 85 miles of Ohio River banks between Wheeling, W. Va., and Marietta.

Below Marietta, at Parkersburg, W. Va., 12 of the 14 gates of the city's new flood wall will be closed by late tonight. Although the main part of Parkersburg and major industries there were protected, about 75 families in outlying communities have been chased from their homes.

South of Parkersburg about 35 miles, the neighboring towns of Pomeroy and Middleport were "waiting and watching" for flood crests expected late tomorrow night.

Floods nearly immobilized cross-country traffic in Southern and some Northern Ohio sections. The State Highway Department reported about 100 Ohio roads cut by high water.

An aerial view of the Ohio River flood would run something like this:

W. Va. Towns Hard Hit

About 2,000 or more homeless in the area from Steubenville, O., south to Wellsburg, W. Va. Particularly hard hit: The villages of Brilliant, Stratton and Empire, O., and New Cumberland, W. Va. and Wellsburg.

About 2,200 or more homeless in the area from Wheeling, W. Va., through Martins Ferry, Bellaire, Bridgeport, O., Benwood, W. Va., to Shadyside and Powhatan Point, O.

About 2,000 or more homeless at Marietta, where Marietta College put back its second semester enrollment date to Monday, Feb. 4.

Union Rejects Rail Peace Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — The Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen today rejected an emergency board's recommendations for settling a two-year dispute with the nation's railroads.

A union statement said it had expected the board to "try to ram down the employes' throats the destructive proposals of the railroads and the unwarranted policies of the administration—and that is exactly what it did."

The brotherhood had refused to participate in the board's hearings, charging that board members were biased in favor of the carriers.

The union, with 50,000 to 75,000 members, is prohibited by law from conducting a strike for at least 30 days. A strike even after that time is doubtful, since the carriers are under government seizure and any walkout could be halted by court injuctnion.

The emergency board recommended a 23½ cent hourly pay boost for road service employes represented by the union, and a 38 cent increase for yard workers, plus a four cent hourly additional raise when the 40 hour week is put into effect.

Mid-East Defense Plan Protested By Russia

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—Russia has protested against the proposed Middle Eastern defense command as planned by the United States, Britain, France and Turkey, the Moscow radio announced early today.

In identical notes handed last night to the United States charge d'affaires and the British, French and Turkish ambassadors in Moscow, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared again that the proposed command is intended to draw Turkey "into the aggressive Atlantic bloc." This is the same charge Russia made two months ago.

LIGHT CLASHES REPORTED

SEOUL, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—Allied infantrymen and jet planes clashed lightly with the Communists Monday in a day of little activity on the Korean battle ground.

Allied Sabre jets patrolling over North Korea ran into 5 Russian-built MIGs and traded firing passes. No damage claims were made.

Poor flying weather held Allied air strikes to only 183 sorties by 6 p. m. including rail cuts in 26 places.

Knife-Waving Bandit Robs Matron Of Fortune In Gems

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP) — A tough young bandit shushed a wealthy matron's anti-crime lecture today and robbed her at knife-point of nearly $100,000 in jewelry.

The victim, 68-year-old Mrs. Scott Scammell, tried to convince the bandit that crime did not pay after he confronted her in her spacious Fifth Avenue apartment.

"Why don't you stop this?" Mrs. Scammell told him. "I'll open the back pantry door and let you out the service entrance."

The bandit kept whispering "sh, sh," she said, and finally warned her:

"You don't have so long to live, and I don't mind how many people I kill."

Police said about $88,000 worth of the jewels were insured.

The man, a negro, left only after tying Mrs. Scammell's hands and feet and thrusting her into a closet.

Three servants in their own quarters were unaware of the robbery until they heard the screams of their white-haired mistress. Then they untied her and she called police.

United States, Canada Swap Atom Secrets

U. S. May Use Data On H-Bomb Project

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission disclosed tonight that an exchange of atomic secrets "beneficial to the United States" has been carried out with Canada.

He did not say what information was involved.

Speculation immediately arose that the exchange might involve information on Canada's famed "heavy water" reactor—described as the most advanced design in that field of atomic research—for use on this country's H-bomb project.

Dean said an "interchange" of information with Canada has been made in the last few weeks—the first with any country since the U. S. Atomic Energy Act was amended last year to permit a somewhat less restricted exchange of atomic data with "friendly nations."

Information "Classified"

The AEC chief emphasized, however, that before letting down its barriers the United States must be convinced that "the security of the other power is adequate" and that the exchange is "beneficial to the United States."

The law still prohibits giving information, he said, on "the design and fabrication of atomic weapons."

Dean refused to disclose the nature of the information exchanged with Canada, commenting to newsmen:

"It's classified (secret)."

Dean's announcement followed recent Canadian complaints that the exchange of atomic information with the United States was "virtually a one-way flow of traffic" from Canada.

Model In H-Bomb Work?

American atomic officials are on record as saying that Canada has achieved the most "advanced" atomic reactor both in design and performance — the so-called heavy water reactor.

Today's disclosure gained significance from the fact the U. S. has announced that the projected multi-billion-dollar H-bomb plant in South Carolina will involve the use of "advanced" designs.

This led to conjecture that Canada's reactor may figure as a model in the U. S. hydrogen bomb work.

Fire Leaves 17 Missing

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 28 (AP) — Flames that roared through a three-story brick business and apartment building on the edge of the Minneapolis loop early today left 17 persons missing.

Search for victims was held up by shifting of collapsed floors and the roof. Firemen planned to tear down walls and sections of the floors before probing the debris for bodies.

Fire Chief Reynold Malquist said "we're not at all certain how many persons are missing, but I understand 17 persons have not been located."

Red Cross disaster officials cited the same figure.

Policeman's Slayer Denied Execution Stay

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Justice Jackson of the Supreme Court tonight refused to stay the execution of Earl D. Bircham, who is scheduled to die Friday, Feb. 1, for the shooting of a Louisville, Ky., policeman.

Justice Jackson's denial was made without any explanation for his reasons. Last Saturday Justice Reed likewise refused to order a stay. Jackson's refusal apparently was Bircham's last chance for any intervention by the Supreme Court.

Bircham was convicted of shooting Policeman John Tennyson.

Lovett Says GI Pay Hike "Long Overdue"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Lovett today urged Congress to grant the armed forces a flat 10 per cent pay raise as "very necessary and long overdue."

Testifying before the Senate Armed Service Committee, Lovett declared:

"Only our men and women in the military service have not had their incomes adjusted to the spiraling cost-of-living with which they have been faced."

Rowing Down The Main Stem

Two infantrymen of the 166th Regimental Combat Team row down the main business street of Marietta, O. Most merchants moved their stock and boarded windows before flood waters of the Ohio River surged into the town. A crest of 47 feet is expected in Marietta at 3 p. m. today.

Efforts To Jail Judith Coplon Rebuffed By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Supreme Court today rebuffed the Justice Department in its efforts to jail Judith Coplon on charges of plotting to spy for Soviet Russia.

Justice Department officials would not say what steps, if any, they would take next. By their own previous statements, their task was much more difficult.

The Supreme Court refused to review conflicting opinions by lower courts in the case of the ex-government girl who was twice tried and convicted on related charges. One of her convictions had been set aside, and in the other an appeals court held she also may be entitled to a new trial.

No Segregation Case Ruling

Besides refusing two government appeals that it intervene, the Supreme Court also rejected Miss Coplon's request that it review parts of an appeals court ruling adverse to her.

In the other major case with which the Supreme Court was concerned today, its action was likewise inconclusive.

It sent back for further evidence and action a special three-judge court's ruling upholding segregation of white and negro pupils in the public schools of South Carolina. The court said it needs further information before it can rule on the case.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People had appealed directly to the high court to set aside the ruling which okayed South Carolina's segregated schools. By a 7 to 2 vote, the high court voided it temporarily and asked the special court at Charleston, S. C., to consider what steps have been taken to provide schools of equal quality for negroes.

Russian Also Convicted

"Judy" Coplon, 29, raven-haired and from Brooklyn, was convicted, along with Valentin A. Gubitchev, a Soviet engineer and U. N. employe, of attempted espionage and conspiracy, after a six weeks' trial in the U. S. District Court in New York. The government allowed Gubitchev to return to Russia.

She was convicted in Washington of stealing confidential government documents to give to a foreign agent.

Big Gamble Won By Floating Pole

DOVER, Eng., Jan. 28 (AP)—A 23-year-old Pole, wearing four suits, a rubber "frog man" outfit and a lifebelt, was found floating in the English Channel seven miles from shore today.

He told rescuing sailors of the channel ferry Twickenham he had jumped six hours before from a Polish vessel of which he was third mate. He said he hoped for haven in England from the Communist government of his homeland.

The Pole, unharmed and cheerful, was turned over to immigration authorities here.

Election Of "Civil" Leader In November Urged By MacArthur

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Political crossfires grew hotter today as Sen. Mayband (D-SC) came out against another term for President Truman, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur called for the election of a skilled "civil" leader in November.

Withdrawing his own name from the New Hampshire presidential primary, Gen. MacArthur expressed his view that the country's voters should elect a President of demonstrated capability in the "science of civil government."

On Capitol Hill, MacArthur's comment was interpreted in some quarters as a slap at the candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, like MacArthur a life-long soldier. Eisenhower has said he would accept the GOP presidential nomination.

MacArthur is regarded as a likely supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio).

Truman Again Urges St. Lawrence Seaway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — President Truman told Congress today it should authorize construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project as a matter of "immediate urgency."

The President, in a special message on the controversial issue which he has supported since 1935, said it was "inconceivable" that local or special interests should influence Congress to block the building of the waterway, estimated to cost 818 million dollars.

Congress refused to act on the project last year, and even as the reading of Mr. Truman's message was completed in the Senate, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations Committee arose to reiterate his oft-expressed opposition to the proposal.

"Meanest Thief" Jailed

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 28 (AP)—A man who stole a March of Dimes "iron lung" with $3.34 in it because he was "broke and hungry" was sentenced to the state penal farm today.

City Judge Alvin D. Blieden sentenced William H. Bach, 63, fireman in a hotel, to six months.

Mine Safety Proposal Rejected By John L.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Part of the coal industry today suggested compromise government powers to close down unsafe mines, but John L. Lewis said the plan was so hedged it would fail to halt mine accident "slaughter."

Lewis, president of the independent United Mine Workers union, coldly rejected the proposal put forward at Senate Labor subcommittee hearings by mine owners representing about one-fifth of the industry.

"I am speaking for the employes of this industry who are not yet dead," Lewis roared.

War Plot By West Charged By Malik

PARIS, Jan. 28 (AP)—The United States, Britain and France served firm notice on the Soviet Union today that any Communist aggression against Southeast Asia would be put before the U. N. for urgent action.

Russia's Delegate Jacob A. Malik replied promptly that this warning was the result of a "new war plot that was hatched" by President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill at their recent Washington talks.

Russia Accused In Debate

These declarations came during debate in the Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly on a complaint by Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang that Russia violated the 1945 treaty of friendship with Chiang Kai-Shek. The committee will vote tomorrow on Tsiang's request for the U. N. to return a "moral judgment" against Russia.

Burmese Delegate U Mynt Thein jumped into the scrap today. His government has been trying for months to expel a fragment of Kuomintang (Nationalist Chinese) troops but has not succeeded. He said they were being supplied from Formosa. He asked the Western Powers if their assurances against aggression meant also assurances against "Kuomintang aggression." He got no answer at this session.

Cooper Backs Tsiang

John Sherman Cooper, former Republican senator from Kentucky, strongly backed Tsiang's appeal for a judgment against Russia and cited what Cooper called evidence to show the Soviet Union had violated the treaty of friendship. Then he referred to a speech Jan. 3 here by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

Vishinsky had charged that the United States was ferrying Nationalist Chinese troops to Burma, Thailand and other Southeast Asian countries and that "these illegal—flagrantly illegal—acts of the United States, we can be quite sure, will be declared to be defensive measures against China's aggression whenever events begin to take their course on the southern borders of China."

U. S. Stars' Absence Disappoints India

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 28 (AP)—The absence of American film stars from India's international film festival is a keen disappointment to Indians. U. S. stars are tremendously popular in India.

So sharp was Indian hunger for a U. S. movie face—or figure—that milling crowds greeted the arrival of a diplomat's buxom wife at the opening with the cry:

"Jane Russell."

Boy's Big Bounce On Bed Ends Five Stories Below

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Seven-year-old Albert Magee decided to liven things up last night for some of his 12 bored brothers and sisters.

He said he bet he could bounce higher than any of them. With that, he bounced on the bed—and right out the window.

He landed five floors below on a rain-softened patch of dirt.

Today attaches at Long Island College Hospital were able to find only scratches and bruises on his face. No broken bones. But they will keep him a few days for observation.

Alleged Spies On Trial

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Five Bulgarians were put on trial today on charges of spying for the United States, the Sofia radio said.

All pleaded guilty, the broadcast announced.

Freezing Weather Slows River Surge

MARIETTA, O., Jan. 28 (AP) — Freezing temperatures slowed the surging waters of the Ohio River tonight as the brunt of a flood neared this Southeastern Ohio area, leaving nine dead and 7,000 homeless.

The U. S. Weather Bureau forecast cloudy and colder with occasional snow flurries throughout Ohio tonight and more of the same tomorrow.

Towns like Marietta, where the Ohio River already is six feet over flood stage, are all set for more high water. About 1,000 persons have been moved to higher ground. A crest of 47-48 feet is expected tomorrow. Flood stage is 35 feet.

The river crested at 44 feet in Wheeling, where flood waters drove out 2,000 persons and slowed industry almost to a halt.

It is impossible to estimate damage to homes and industries at this stage. But the figure is expected to run into the hundreds of thousands.

Parkersburg Opens Gates

There are few large towns along the approximately 85 miles of Ohio River banks between Wheeling, W. Va., and Marietta.

Below Marietta, at Parkersburg, W. Va., 12 of the 14 gates of the city's new flood wall will be closed by late tonight. Although the main part of Parkersburg and major industries there were protected, about 75 families in outlying communities have been chased from their homes.

South of Parkersburg about 35 miles, the neighboring towns of Pomeroy and Middleport were "waiting and watching" for flood crests expected late tomorrow night.

Floods nearly immobilized cross-country traffic in Southern and some Northern Ohio sections. The State Highway Department reported about 100 Ohio roads cut by high water.

An aerial view of the Ohio River flood would run something like this:

W. Va. Towns Hard Hit

About 2,000 or more homeless in the area from Steubenville, O., south to Wellsburg, W. Va. Particularly hard hit: The villages of Brilliant, Stratton and Empire, O., and New Cumberland, W. Va. and Wellsburg.

About 2,200 or more homeless in the area from Wheeling, W. Va., through Martins Ferry, Bellaire, Bridgeport, O., Benwood, W. Va., to Shadyside and Powhatan Point, O.

About 2,000 or more homeless at Marietta, where Marietta College put back its second semester enrollment date to Monday, Feb. 4.

Union Rejects Rail Peace Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — The Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen today rejected an emergency board's recommendations for settling a two-year dispute with the nation's railroads.

A union statement said it had expected the board to "try to ram down the employes' throats the destructive proposals of the railroads and the unwarranted policies of the administration—and that is exactly what it did."

The brotherhood had refused to participate in the board's hearings, charging that board members were biased in favor of the carriers.

The union, with 50,000 to 75,000 members, is prohibited by law from conducting a strike for at least 30 days. A strike even after that time is doubtful, since the carriers are under government seizure and any walkout could be halted by court injuctnion.

The emergency board recommended a 23½ cent hourly pay boost for road service employes represented by the union, and a 38 cent increase for yard workers, plus a four cent hourly additional raise when the 40 hour week is put into effect.

Mid-East Defense Plan Protested By Russia

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—Russia has protested against the proposed Middle Eastern defense command as planned by the United States, Britain, France and Turkey, the Moscow radio announced early today.

In identical notes handed last night to the United States charge d'affaires and the British, French and Turkish ambassadors in Moscow, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared again that the proposed command is intended to draw Turkey "into the aggressive Atlantic bloc." This is the same charge Russia made two months ago.

Weather Forecast

Saboteurs Blow Up Train In Suez Area

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 28 (AP)—Premier Aly Maher Pasha's new independent government got a pledge of support today—with a big "if"—from the powerful Wafdist Party it replaced at the climax of this country's bloodied relations with Britain.

The "if" was that the new government must follow the Wafdst policy for throwing the British out of the Suez area and the Sudan.

Maher Pasha took over the reins of a country under martial law from the two-year-old Wafdist government of Mustapha Nahas Pasha, who was ousted last night by King Farouk after unchecked mobs put the torch to Cairo Saturday and killed at least 62 persons.

Saboteurs Blow Up Train

Violence flared again in the Suez Canal zone today when Egyptian saboteurs blew up a train, wounding four British soldiers. One Egyptian was killed in the gunfight that followed.

The Wafdist-dominated parliament accepted Maher Pasha's nonparty cabinet and voted to keep the country under martial law for the next two months. There was one dissenting vote in the Chamber of Deputies on the martial law vote, but the Senate vote was unanimous. Maher told the deputies he would lift the martial law within a week if circumstances were favorable.

"But if events develop against Egypt's interests," he added, "I might ask for a renewal of the period."

Application of martial law, he promised, would be restricted to "criminals and their accomplices working against Egypt's national aims."

Curfew Restrictions Eased

Tanks and armored cars continued to patrol Cairo's streets and infantrymen were stationed at important intersections. But rigid curfew restrictions were relaxed and passes were issued to newspapermen and others whose work required them to be on the streets at night.

The 68-year-old "strong man" also took over the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Army, Navy and Radio. He was made military governor by the king, backed by an army commanded by Gen. Mohammed Haidar Pasha.

Wafdist, Saadist and liberal constitutional deputies and senators gave their conditional pledge of support for Maher Pasha's government only "as long as it goes ahead to fulfill Egypt's national demands for evacuation (of British troops) from the Suez and union of the Sudan under the Egyptian crown."

O'Conor Opposes New Tax Boost

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 28 (AP)—President Truman's request for a 5 billion dollar increase in taxes should not be granted, Sen. O'Conor (D-Md) said tonight.

"It is my firm conviction that the taxes already pyramided on individuals and corporations alike are dangerous in the extreme," he told the Binghamton Chamber of Commerce.

"They tend to destroy initiative. They penalize all individuals and corporations who want to go all out in the development of the ideas and the productive facilities which have made, and are needed to maintain this country as the unmatched economic leader of the world.

"Instead of levying 5 billion dollars additional taxes, the Congress must cut the budget to the bone, to the end that there be no further deficit to add to the already dangerously high debt level."

The Democrat who has spent two decades in political office, including governor of Maryland, announced earlier this month he would not seek reelection after one term in the Senate.

Stassen Blames HCL On Policy "Failures"

DECATUR, Ill., Jan. 28 (AP)—Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, tonight blamed rising living costs on "failures in foreign policy."

He told a Central Illinois audience that the foreign policies of both President Truman and Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) are "very bad for America."

He outlined his own international relations philosophy and advocated re-establishing Gen. Douglas MacArthur as leader in the Western Pacific and reorganizing the United Nations and revamping its charter.

300 Million Aid Grant To Britain Announced

Will Be Used For Raw Materials

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—A 300 million dollar aid grant to Britain "to support the United Kingdom defense program" was announced tonight by mutual Security Director W. Averell Harriman.

The funds, from the new $7,328,903,976 Mutual Security Act, will be used almost entirely for "raw materials and components" purchased up to next July 1.

Britain had asked for 600 million dollars, pleading that because of her current financial plight, the British defense program otherwise might have to be curtailed unless U. S. aid were forthcoming.

Harriman Writes Connelly

Harriman said in a letter to Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that without the 300 million grant "it would be necessary for the United Kingdom to reduce its defense program by more than twice as much."

"In light of the fact that the British are now producing more military equipment than all other European NATO countries combined, it is considered particularly important that such a reduction in its defense program should not have to be made," Harriman said.

"It seems clear that this 300 million will contribute to the fulfillment of the military material requirements of mutual defense more effectively in the form contemplated than if the same funds were to be used to procure military end-items guns, tanks, planes, etc., in the United States."

Harriman said that as part of the arrangement for the grant, Britain agreed to supply an equivalent amount in sterling currency to the maintenance of its defense production program.

This presumably explained Harriman's estimate that without the grant the British defense effort would be reduced by "more than twice as much."

France has announced she expects to receive a grand total of about 600 million in American direct aid and in dollars spent this fiscal year in France by the United States for military installations and similar purposes.

DEFENSE MINISTER — Field Marshal Viscount Alexander (above), former governor general of Canada and one of Britain's most famous soldiers, was named yesterday to take over the post of minister of defense from Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Alexander's strategy paved the way for the defeat of the Axis in North Africa in World War II.

Some Decontrol May Be Feasible

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Price Stabilizer Michael V. DiSalle told Congress today he is preparing to appoint a committee to explore the possibility of decontrolling prices in some fields.

He hastened to say, however, he is convinced that the nation at this time "should not properly take the risk of any major decontrol." He added that this may well continue to be the case in the months ahead.

The new top-level committee within his Office of Price Stabilization, he explained, will "explore critically and continuously the question of decontrol in specific areas where price pressures, at the moment, are largely absent."

He said it would "develop standards under which we can continually test whether decontrol is feasible, and when it becomes feasible, provide an orderly and objective procedure for its accomplishment."

DiSalle testified before the Senate-House Economic Committee, which is studying the President's annual economic message to Congress.

Baltimore Transit Co. Seeks To Boost Fares

BALTIMORE, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Baltimore Transit Company today told the Maryland Public Service Commission more revenue is needed right away to meet a newly-raised payroll.

The commission heard the company's plea, then took the matter under advisement late today. At the outset of the hearing, Commission Chairman John H. Hessey made it clear that, if granted, the fare relief would be only "temporary".

The agreement reached Sunday to end the strike called for all buses and trolleys to start at 4 a. m. Tuesday.

Chances Of Reds Accepting Allied POW Plan Slim

U. N. Calls Proposal "Complete Solution"

MUNSAN, Korea, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—The United Nations command Monday presented the Communists with a 14-point "complete solution" to the long-standing prisoner-exchange controversy and asked the Reds to reply as soon as possible.

The chances of Red agreement appeared dim. The Allies' solution contained the U. N. proposal for voluntary repatriation of prisoners, which the Communists have announced they would "reject forever."

The delegates are dealing with the prisoner problem while the staff officers, at a lower level of negotiation, consider the 18-page armistice draft presented by the Allies on Sunday.

With the exception of only one item—recommendations to governments, not yet considered by either side—the Allied blueprint for an armistice was complete. The documents spelled out in detail what the Allies want and provided a basis for discussion at Panmunjom. It was the backbone on which to build an armistice, but it contained points the Reds have repeatedly turned down.

(In Washington U. S. State Department officials and military leaders conferred with Allied representatives on what steps should be taken if the Korean truce talks collapsed. Hope of success was not dead, but there appeared to be recognition that prospects of an overall agreement were slackening.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — Political crossfires grew hotter today as Sen. Mayband (D-SC) came out against another term for President Truman, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur called for the election of a skilled "civil" leader in November.

Withdrawing his own name from the New Hampshire presidential primary, Gen. MacArthur expressed his view that the country's voters should elect a President of demonstrated capability in the "science of civil government."

On Capitol Hill, MacArthur's comment was interpreted in some quarters as a slap at the candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, like MacArthur a life-long soldier. Eisenhower has said he would accept the GOP presidential nomination.

MacArthur is regarded as a likely supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio).

Truman Again Urges St. Lawrence Seaway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — President Truman told Congress today it should authorize construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project as a matter of "immediate urgency."

The President, in a special message on the controversial issue which he has supported since 1935, said it was "inconceivable" that local or special interests should influence Congress to block the building of the waterway, estimated to cost 818 million dollars.

Congress refused to act on the project last year, and even as the reading of Mr. Truman's message was completed in the Senate, Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations Committee arose to reiterate his oft-expressed opposition to the proposal.

"Meanest Thief" Jailed

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Jan. 28 (AP)—A man who stole a March of Dimes "iron lung" with $3.34 in it because he was "broke and hungry" was sentenced to the state penal farm today.

City Judge Alvin D. Blieden sentenced William H. Bach, 63, fireman in a hotel, to six months.

War Plot By West Charged By Malik

PARIS, Jan. 28 (AP)—The United States, Britain and France served firm notice on the Soviet Union today that any Communist aggression against Southeast Asia would be put before the U. N. for urgent action.

Russia's Delegate Jacob A. Malik replied promptly that this warning was the result of a "new war plot that was hatched" by President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill at their recent Washington talks.

Russia Accused In Debate

These declarations came during debate in the Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly on a complaint by Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang that Russia violated the 1945 treaty of friendship with Chiang Kai-Shek. The committee will vote tomorrow on Tsiang's request for the U. N. to return a "moral judgment" against Russia.

Burmese Delegate U Mynt Thein jumped into the scrap today. His government has been trying for months to expel a fragment of Kuomintang (Nationalist Chinese) troops but has not succeeded. He said they were being supplied from Formosa. He asked the Western Powers if their assurances against aggression meant also assurances against "Kuomintang aggression." He got no answer at this session.

Cooper Backs Tsiang

John Sherman Cooper, former Republican senator from Kentucky, strongly backed Tsiang's appeal for a judgment against Russia and cited what Cooper called evidence to show the Soviet Union had violated the treaty of friendship. Then he referred to a speech Jan. 3 here by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

Vishinsky had charged that the United States was ferrying Nationalist Chinese troops to Burma, Thailand and other Southeast Asian countries and that "these illegal—flagrantly illegal—acts of the United States, we can be quite sure, will be declared to be defensive measures against China's aggression whenever events begin to take their course on the southern borders of China."

Mine Safety Proposal Rejected By John L.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Part of the coal industry today suggested compromise government powers to close down unsafe mines, but John L. Lewis said the plan was so hedged it would fail to halt mine accident "slaughter."

Lewis, president of the independent United Mine Workers union, coldly rejected the proposal put forward at Senate Labor subcommittee hearings by mine owners representing about one-fifth of the industry.

"I am speaking for the employes of this industry who are not yet dead," Lewis roared.

U. S. Stars' Absence Disappoints India

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 28 (AP)—The absence of American film stars from India's international film festival is a keen disappointment to Indians. U. S. stars are tremendously popular in India.

So sharp was Indian hunger for a U. S. movie face—or figure—that milling crowds greeted the arrival of a diplomat's buxom wife at the opening with the cry:

"Jane Russell."

Boy's Big Bounce On Bed Ends Five Stories Below

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Seven-year-old Albert Magee decided to liven things up last night for some of his 12 bored brothers and sisters.

He said he bet he could bounce higher than any of them. With that, he bounced on the bed—and right out the window.

He landed five floors below on a rain-softened patch of dirt.

Today attaches at Long Island College Hospital were able to find only scratches and bruises on his face. No broken bones. But they will keep him a few days for observation.

Alleged Spies On Trial

LONDON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Five Bulgarians were put on trial today on charges of spying for the United States, the Sofia radio said.

All pleaded guilty, the broadcast announced.

Freezing Weather Slows River Surge

MARIETTA, O., Jan. 28 (AP) — Freezing temperatures slowed the surging waters of the Ohio River tonight as the brunt of a flood neared this Southeastern Ohio area, leaving nine dead and 7,000 homeless.

The U. S. Weather Bureau forecast cloudy and colder with occasional snow flurries throughout Ohio tonight and more of the same tomorrow.

Towns like Marietta, where the Ohio River already is six feet over flood stage, are all set for more high water. About 1,000 persons have been moved to higher ground. A crest of 47-48 feet is expected tomorrow. Flood stage is 35 feet.

The river crested at 44 feet in Wheeling, where flood waters drove out 2,000 persons and slowed industry almost to a halt.

It is impossible to estimate damage to homes and industries at this stage. But the figure is expected to run into the hundreds of thousands.

Parkersburg Opens Gates

There are few large towns along the approximately 85 miles of Ohio River banks between Wheeling, W. Va., and Marietta.

Below Marietta, at Parkersburg, W. Va., 12 of the 14 gates of the city's new flood wall will be closed by late tonight. Although the main part of Parkersburg and major industries there were protected, about 75 families in outlying communities have been chased from their homes.

South of Parkersburg about 35 miles, the neighboring towns of Pomeroy and Middleport were "waiting and watching" for flood crests expected late tomorrow night.

Floods nearly immobilized cross-country traffic in Southern and some Northern Ohio sections. The State Highway Department reported about 100 Ohio roads cut by high water.

An aerial view of the Ohio River flood would run something like this:

W. Va. Towns Hard Hit

About 2,000 or more homeless in the area from Steubenville, O., south to Wellsburg, W. Va. Particularly hard hit: The villages of Brilliant, Stratton and Empire, O., and New Cumberland, W. Va. and Wellsburg.

About 2,200 or more homeless in the area from Wheeling, W. Va., through Martins Ferry, Bellaire, Bridgeport, O., Benwood, W. Va., to Shadyside and Powhatan Point, O.

About 2,000 or more homeless at Marietta, where Marietta College put back its second semester enrollment date to Monday, Feb. 4.

Union Rejects Rail Peace Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP) — The Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen today rejected an emergency board's recommendations for settling a two-year dispute with the nation's railroads.

A union statement said it had expected the board to "try to ram down the employes' throats the destructive proposals of the railroads and the unwarranted policies of the administration—and that is exactly what it did."

The brotherhood had refused to participate in the board's hearings, charging that board members were biased in favor of the carriers.

The union, with 50,000 to 75,000 members, is prohibited by law from conducting a strike for at least 30 days. A strike even after that time is doubtful, since the carriers are under government seizure and any walkout could be halted by court injuctnion.

The emergency board recommended a 23½ cent hourly pay boost for road service employes represented by the union, and a 38 cent increase for yard workers, plus a four cent hourly additional raise when the 40 hour week is put into effect.

Mid-East Defense Plan Protested By Russia

LONDON, Tuesday, Jan. 29 (AP)—Russia has protested against the proposed Middle Eastern defense command as planned by the United States, Britain, France and Turkey, the Moscow radio announced early today.

In identical notes handed last night to the United States charge d'affaires and the British, French and Turkish ambassadors in Moscow, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared again that the proposed command is intended to draw Turkey "into the aggressive Atlantic bloc." This is the same charge Russia made two months ago.

Rubinoff Will Play Stradivarius Violin At Concerts In Frostburg

Lions To Sponsor Event Feb. 13

RUBINOFF

FROSTBURG — Rubinoff will play one of the most precious instruments in the world when he appears at Beall High School Auditorium Wednesday, February 13, under the sponsorhip of the Frostburg Lions Club.

The famous violinist will use the Romanoff-Stradivarius violin, which is insured for $100,000.

The violin is famous for its silken, lustrous tone, its full range and almost unbelievable depth. Made in 1731 by the master of all violin makers, this particular "Strad" eventually found its way into the hands of the Romanoffs, onetime rulers of Russia, and still bears the bejeweled crest of that family. During the revolution it was smuggled out of Russia and eventually was purchased by Rubinoff.

The ancient instrument still retains the original varnish.

Included in Rubinoff's program are "Warsaw Concerta," Chopin's "Polonaise," the ever-popular "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin, and the haunting melody of Debussy's 'Clair de Lune"; all these famous compositions will have their premier performance as violin solos arranged and played by the maestro.

The famous violinist will also present a matinee for students at Beall High School in the afternoon.

Lonaconing Grocer Happy About His Grandchildren

Isadore Rosenberg, Lonaconing grocer, is a happy grandparent.

They are Marvin Rosenberg, 9, and Eileen Rosenberg, 5.

The children, who live in a section of Brooklyn called Brighton, were singled out in the feature story because their parents are deaf mutes.

Their father, Leon Rosenberg, is one of Isadore's three sons. He grew up in Lonaconing and came back there with his New York bride some 10 years ago. However, she wanted to return to the big city so that is where the Rosenberg children have lived most of their young lives.

Marvin and Eileen often come to Lonaconing to visit with their grandfather, a Lonaconing grocer for the past 46 years. They were in Allegany County last August and probably will be back here for Easter.

The article in the Brooklyn Eagle emphasized that Marvin draws with great imagination and writes poetry that's filled with aspiration. Eileen can dance a number of intricate steps, like the rhumba.

Accompanying the story was a two-column picture of the two attractive children.

Diphtheria, Typhoid Set New Low In West Virginia

KEYSER, W. Va. — The incidence of typhoid fever and diphtheria fell to the lowest level ever recorded in West Virginia in 1951, according to information compiled by the West Virginia Department of Health, and released Friday by the Mineral County office.

The number of cases of typhoid fever reported in the calendar year just ended was 41, compared with the previous low of 65 cases reported in 1948.

Dr. N. H. Dyer, director of the State Department of Health, attributed most of the decline of cases of typhoid fever to a continuing improvement in environment sanitation in the state. The majority of the cases that occurred during the past year, he pointed out, originated in communities with poor sanitation standards.

There were 89 cases of diphtheria in 1951 as contrasted with a previous low of 165 cases reported in 1949. This reduction, he said, has been accomplished solely by increasing emphasis on the necessity for protection of children early in life through immunization. Records kept by the local health department show that an increasingly large number of children are being protected before they reach school age.

Doctor Dyer, in continuing his statement, said:

"The importance of public health practices can be fully realized when we compare these figures with those of 20 years ago when over 1,200 cases of both typhoid and diphtheria were reported, with that many more cases being unreported. At that time both diseases were a significant cause of death in West Virginia and the economic cost of these diseases in loss of life and disability could be reckoned in the hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Rubinoff Will Play Stradivarius Violin At Concerts In Frostburg

Lions To Sponsor Event Feb. 13

FROSTBURG — Rubinoff will play one of the most precious instruments in the world when he appears at Beall High School Auditorium Wednesday, February 13, under the sponsorhip of the Frostburg Lions Club.

The famous violinist will use the Romanoff-Stradivarius violin, which is insured for $100,000.

The violin is famous for its silken, lustrous tone, its full range and almost unbelievable depth. Made in 1731 by the master of all violin makers, this particular "Strad" eventually found its way into the hands of the Romanoffs, onetime rulers of Russia, and still bears the bejeweled crest of that family. During the revolution it was smuggled out of Russia and eventually was purchased by Rubinoff.

The ancient instrument still retains the original varnish.

Included in Rubinoff's program are "Warsaw Concerta," Chopin's "Polonaise," the ever-popular "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin, and the haunting melody of Debussy's 'Clair de Lune"; all these famous compositions will have their premier performance as violin solos arranged and played by the maestro.

The famous violinist will also present a matinee for students at Beall High School in the afternoon.

Lonaconing Grocer Happy About His Grandchildren

Isadore Rosenberg, Lonaconing grocer, is a happy grandparent.

They are Marvin Rosenberg, 9, and Eileen Rosenberg, 5.

The children, who live in a section of Brooklyn called Brighton, were singled out in the feature story because their parents are deaf mutes.

Their father, Leon Rosenberg, is one of Isadore's three sons. He grew up in Lonaconing and came back there with his New York bride some 10 years ago. However, she wanted to return to the big city so that is where the Rosenberg children have lived most of their young lives.

Marvin and Eileen often come to Lonaconing to visit with their grandfather, a Lonaconing grocer for the past 46 years. They were in Allegany County last August and probably will be back here for Easter.

The article in the Brooklyn Eagle emphasized that Marvin draws with great imagination and writes poetry that's filled with aspiration. Eileen can dance a number of intricate steps, like the rhumba.

Accompanying the story was a two-column picture of the two attractive children.

Diphtheria, Typhoid Set New Low In West Virginia

KEYSER, W. Va. — The incidence of typhoid fever and diphtheria fell to the lowest level ever recorded in West Virginia in 1951, according to information compiled by the West Virginia Department of Health, and released Friday by the Mineral County office.

The number of cases of typhoid fever reported in the calendar year just ended was 41, compared with the previous low of 65 cases reported in 1948.

Dr. N. H. Dyer, director of the State Department of Health, attributed most of the decline of cases of typhoid fever to a continuing improvement in environment sanitation in the state. The majority of the cases that occurred during the past year, he pointed out, originated in communities with poor sanitation standards.

There were 89 cases of diphtheria in 1951 as contrasted with a previous low of 165 cases reported in 1949. This reduction, he said, has been accomplished solely by increasing emphasis on the necessity for protection of children early in life through immunization. Records kept by the local health department show that an increasingly large number of children are being protected before they reach school age.

Doctor Dyer, in continuing his statement, said:

"The importance of public health practices can be fully realized when we compare these figures with those of 20 years ago when over 1,200 cases of both typhoid and diphtheria were reported, with that many more cases being unreported. At that time both diseases were a significant cause of death in West Virginia and the economic cost of these diseases in loss of life and disability could be reckoned in the hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Lonaconing Grocer Happy About His Grandchildren

Isadore Rosenberg, Lonaconing grocer, is a happy grandparent.

They are Marvin Rosenberg, 9, and Eileen Rosenberg, 5.

The children, who live in a section of Brooklyn called Brighton, were singled out in the feature story because their parents are deaf mutes.

Their father, Leon Rosenberg, is one of Isadore's three sons. He grew up in Lonaconing and came back there with his New York bride some 10 years ago. However, she wanted to return to the big city so that is where the Rosenberg children have lived most of their young lives.

Marvin and Eileen often come to Lonaconing to visit with their grandfather, a Lonaconing grocer for the past 46 years. They were in Allegany County last August and probably will be back here for Easter.

The article in the Brooklyn Eagle emphasized that Marvin draws with great imagination and writes poetry that's filled with aspiration. Eileen can dance a number of intricate steps, like the rhumba.

Accompanying the story was a two-column picture of the two attractive children.

Diphtheria, Typhoid Set New Low In West Virginia

KEYSER, W. Va. — The incidence of typhoid fever and diphtheria fell to the lowest level ever recorded in West Virginia in 1951, according to information compiled by the West Virginia Department of Health, and released Friday by the Mineral County office.

The number of cases of typhoid fever reported in the calendar year just ended was 41, compared with the previous low of 65 cases reported in 1948.

Dr. N. H. Dyer, director of the State Department of Health, attributed most of the decline of cases of typhoid fever to a continuing improvement in environment sanitation in the state. The majority of the cases that occurred during the past year, he pointed out, originated in communities with poor sanitation standards.

There were 89 cases of diphtheria in 1951 as contrasted with a previous low of 165 cases reported in 1949. This reduction, he said, has been accomplished solely by increasing emphasis on the necessity for protection of children early in life through immunization. Records kept by the local health department show that an increasingly large number of children are being protected before they reach school age.

Doctor Dyer, in continuing his statement, said:

"The importance of public health practices can be fully realized when we compare these figures with those of 20 years ago when over 1,200 cases of both typhoid and diphtheria were reported, with that many more cases being unreported. At that time both diseases were a significant cause of death in West Virginia and the economic cost of these diseases in loss of life and disability could be reckoned in the hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Resident Says One-Way Plan Aid To Traffic

The Police Department received a verbal "pat on the back" by an indirect means yesterday.

Patsy Idoni, 242 Columbia Street, wrote the Mayor and Council he had lived on that street for 20 years and "traffic conditions for the past week have been better than ever before. You have done what should have been done years ago."

The Police Department recently changed Columbia Street to a one-way thoroughfare in an attempt to ease traffic pressures. Idoni's letter apparently referred to the move and drew from Mayor Thomas S. Post the comment:

"We're glad to see some one appreciates our efforts."

Mostly Routine

Most of yesterday's session was routine.

The council was invited to the annual meeting of the Cumberland-Allegany County Industrial Promotion Company Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce offices and said representatives will attend. Ten directors are to be elected and a discussion held on what to do with the balance and unexpended funds.

Mayor Post termed a "worthy project" the first public showing of the Maryland-Tennessee football game films here Friday night at 7:30 p. m. by the National Guard for the benefit of the March of Dimes drive. No admission will be charged but a collection will be taken.

In another letter to the council, B. Fay Thompson, 206 Elder Street, a local contractor, said he favored the closing of the Williams Street crossing if the city was going to get an adequate subway in place of it.

He recommended a committee of five interested citizens be appointed to make recommendations and report back in 20 to 60 days.

The council has postponed indefinitely any action on the proposal asked by the B. and O. Railroad to ease the crush in its local yards. The B. and O. proposes to erect a footbridge for pedestrians in lieu of the crossing.

Proclaim "VFW Week"

The council approved a proclamation naming January 24-31 as "National Veterans of Foreign Wars Week."

The payroll for the last two weeks of the month was approved and checks ordered issued Friday.

Clinton Brotemarkle's application for a taxi stand at the Court House was denied on recommendation of Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, who said the county commissioners did not want another stand there.

A tax overpayment refund was ordered paid Gibson Lease, 174 Thomas Street, in the amount of $39.92.

John Riley, of John Riley and Sons, holders of the city garbage collection contract, informed the city the firm would renew the contract. It was referred to the Health Department.

Water consumption for the week ending yesterday was 95,440,000 gallons as compared to 87,980,000 last year with a daily average of 13,634,000. The water level at Lake Gordon is one foot below the crest of the spillway and at Lake Koon three feet below.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator, said 12 other inductees entered the Army.

County Makes Bid For Band Festival

MARTINSBURG, W. Va.—(AP)—Allegany county of Maryland put in a bid Saturday for the 1953 tri-state band festival.

Band directors from Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia postponed action on the bid until the spring festival to be held here April 24-26.

Johnson Talk Impresses At Kelly Dinner

Former Congressman Calvin D. Johnson, of Illinois, made an impressive talk at the dinner meeting of Kelly-Springfield Tire Company supervisory personnel Saturday night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Johnson's topic was "Politics versus Free Enterprise." His comments were delivered in a humorous as well as sincere vein.

His theme was summarized in the 10 cardinal principles of government:

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.
2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.
3. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.
4. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.
5. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred.
6. You cannot help small men by tearing down big men.
7. You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.
8. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn.
9. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence.
10. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

The key address at the dinner was by Edmund S. Burke, company president, who expressed optimism about prospects for the tire industry for 1952 and the prospects at Kelly particularly.

Burke announced Kelly is now making 1,000 more tires per day due to the installation of more equipment, and that the production of camelback has been increased.

He also said the Kelly plant has introduced the production of bicycle tires and tubes to its line of merchandise. The Kelly plant also produces both passenger and truck tires and tubes, camelback and repair materials and accessories.

The teenagers code of casualness requires true sophistication; it calls for knowledge and poise.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The teen code for clothes and actions with a breezy, casual air is a natural outgrowth of modern modes and mores. It is both attractive and charming. But, as with all good things, any extreme in casualness prevents all chance of social distinction.

The point where this extreme occurs mystifies many a teen, which is easy to understand. It's a fairly fine point, and one that many an adult has not fully mastered.

Casualness actually only can be achieved by knowing the gracious ways of acting and talking—and then acting and talking accordingly with easy, practiced poise. Most people stumble over the difference between casualness of manner and casualness of manners. They are not the same at all.

you don a ball dress for a prom. Otherwise, the impression you make is apt to be one of slovenliness and ignorance rather than of casualness.

To see whether you are making the impression you wish—or an opposite one—take this five-question test. It will give you a fairly accurate indication.

1. During a movie, do you make clever remarks about it to your companions? 2. When a girl and boy meet as they walk along a street, who speaks first? 3. Do you finish your meal before others at the table? 4. Do you dissect a sandwich before eating it? 5. Are there occasions when it is unnecessary to thank those who serve you — the soda-jerk, the cook, your sister, or mother?

Answers: 1. If you do, it's the height of rudeness! 2.The girl always speaks first—or her lack of poise is showing. 3. If you do, you look greedy and that's anything but casual. 4. It is not necessary to do so with a one-bite sandwich or a large one that is spread with an unmanageable filling. 5. A "yes" answer indicates your lack of consideration for others is lowering your popularity rating—fast!

There are dozens of other small points of conduct worth checking on. Get them right. You can depend upon them to stamp you with the kind of assurance that always marks the lass with a flair for the casual air!

Stockyard Sales Total Over Million Dollars Last Year

Total sales of the Cumberland Stockyards, Inc., during 1951 were $1,034,627.27, an increase over 1950, the best previous year, of $193,793.26, according to a report by Harry J. Barton, president.

The business was organized in 1945 and is designed primarily as a service of farmers of Allegany and nearby sections, Barton said.

The operation does not have a profit motive, consequently commission and yardage rates are very low, he added.

Buyers of livestock come principally from Cumberland, Frostburg and western Pennsylvania communities. Local residents purchase most of the items, such as vegetables, lard, potatoes and used equipment.

The weekly auction each Tuesday results in the sale of second hand farm implements, household furniture, fixtures and similar items.

The stockyards organization employs about 25 persons on sale day.

The annual meeting of the stockholders will be held February 14 at 7:30 p. m. at the LaVale Fire Hall.

Directors of the stockyards are Gay Stonestreet, Flintstone; William H. Johnson, Willowbrook Road; C. R. Armstrong, Rawlings; Wilbur Perrin, Flintstone; Arthur P. Hoffa, Barton; William Shumaker, Rawlings; Charles Blue, Springfield, W. Va., and W. R. Porter, Frostburg.

Resident Says One-Way Plan Aid To Traffic

The Police Department received a verbal "pat on the back" by an indirect means yesterday.

Patsy Idoni, 242 Columbia Street, wrote the Mayor and Council he had lived on that street for 20 years and "traffic conditions for the past week have been better than ever before. You have done what should have been done years ago."

The Police Department recently changed Columbia Street to a one-way thoroughfare in an attempt to ease traffic pressures. Idoni's letter apparently referred to the move and drew from Mayor Thomas S. Post the comment:

"We're glad to see some one appreciates our efforts."

Mostly Routine

Most of yesterday's session was routine.

The council was invited to the annual meeting of the Cumberland-Allegany County Industrial Promotion Company Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce offices and said representatives will attend. Ten directors are to be elected and a discussion held on what to do with the balance and unexpended funds.

Mayor Post termed a "worthy project" the first public showing of the Maryland-Tennessee football game films here Friday night at 7:30 p. m. by the National Guard for the benefit of the March of Dimes drive. No admission will be charged but a collection will be taken.

In another letter to the council, B. Fay Thompson, 206 Elder Street, a local contractor, said he favored the closing of the Williams Street crossing if the city was going to get an adequate subway in place of it.

He recommended a committee of five interested citizens be appointed to make recommendations and report back in 20 to 60 days.

The council has postponed indefinitely any action on the proposal asked by the B. and O. Railroad to ease the crush in its local yards. The B. and O. proposes to erect a footbridge for pedestrians in lieu of the crossing.

Proclaim "VFW Week"

The council approved a proclamation naming January 24-31 as "National Veterans of Foreign Wars Week."

The payroll for the last two weeks of the month was approved and checks ordered issued Friday.

Clinton Brotemarkle's application for a taxi stand at the Court House was denied on recommendation of Chief of Police R. Emmett Flynn, who said the county commissioners did not want another stand there.

A tax overpayment refund was ordered paid Gibson Lease, 174 Thomas Street, in the amount of $39.92.

John Riley, of John Riley and Sons, holders of the city garbage collection contract, informed the city the firm would renew the contract. It was referred to the Health Department.

Water consumption for the week ending yesterday was 95,440,000 gallons as compared to 87,980,000 last year with a daily average of 13,634,000. The water level at Lake Gordon is one foot below the crest of the spillway and at Lake Koon three feet below.

Three Selectees Become Marines

Three Selective Service draftees who reported last Monday in Baltimore for induction have been accepted by the Marine Corps. They are:

George Harry Harris, 483 Eastern Avenue, and Richard Pearson Henry, Cresaptown, both of Board No. 28, and Norman Edward Sell, 305 Mt. View Drive, of Board No. 29.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator, said 12 other inductees entered the Army.

County Makes Bid For Band Festival

MARTINSBURG, W. Va.—(AP)—Allegany county of Maryland put in a bid Saturday for the 1953 tri-state band festival.

Band directors from Maryland, West Virginia and Virginia postponed action on the bid until the spring festival to be held here April 24-26.

Johnson Talk Impresses At Kelly Dinner

Former Congressman Calvin D. Johnson, of Illinois, made an impressive talk at the dinner meeting of Kelly-Springfield Tire Company supervisory personnel Saturday night at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Johnson's topic was "Politics versus Free Enterprise." His comments were delivered in a humorous as well as sincere vein.

His theme was summarized in the 10 cardinal principles of government:

1. You cannot bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift.
2. You cannot strengthen the weak by weakening the strong.
3. You cannot help the poor by destroying the rich.
4. You cannot help the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer.
5. You cannot further the brotherhood of man by encouraging class hatred.
6. You cannot help small men by tearing down big men.
7. You cannot establish sound security on borrowed money.
8. You cannot keep out of trouble by spending more than you earn.
9. You cannot build character and courage by taking away man's initiative and independence.
10. You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

The key address at the dinner was by Edmund S. Burke, company president, who expressed optimism about prospects for the tire industry for 1952 and the prospects at Kelly particularly.

Burke announced Kelly is now making 1,000 more tires per day due to the installation of more equipment, and that the production of camelback has been increased.

He also said the Kelly plant has introduced the production of bicycle tires and tubes to its line of merchandise. The Kelly plant also produces both passenger and truck tires and tubes, camelback and repair materials and accessories.

The teenagers code of casualness requires true sophistication; it calls for knowledge and poise.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

The teen code for clothes and actions with a breezy, casual air is a natural outgrowth of modern modes and mores. It is both attractive and charming. But, as with all good things, any extreme in casualness prevents all chance of social distinction.

The point where this extreme occurs mystifies many a teen, which is easy to understand. It's a fairly fine point, and one that many an adult has not fully mastered.

Casualness actually only can be achieved by knowing the gracious ways of acting and talking—and then acting and talking accordingly with easy, practiced poise. Most people stumble over the difference between casualness of manner and casualness of manners. They are not the same at all.

you don a ball dress for a prom. Otherwise, the impression you make is apt to be one of slovenliness and ignorance rather than of casualness.

To see whether you are making the impression you wish—or an opposite one—take this five-question test. It will give you a fairly accurate indication.

1. During a movie, do you make clever remarks about it to your companions? 2. When a girl and boy meet as they walk along a street, who speaks first? 3. Do you finish your meal before others at the table? 4. Do you dissect a sandwich before eating it? 5. Are there occasions when it is unnecessary to thank those who serve you — the soda-jerk, the cook, your sister, or mother?

Answers: 1. If you do, it's the height of rudeness! 2.The girl always speaks first—or her lack of poise is showing. 3. If you do, you look greedy and that's anything but casual. 4. It is not necessary to do so with a one-bite sandwich or a large one that is spread with an unmanageable filling. 5. A "yes" answer indicates your lack of consideration for others is lowering your popularity rating—fast!

There are dozens of other small points of conduct worth checking on. Get them right. You can depend upon them to stamp you with the kind of assurance that always marks the lass with a flair for the casual air!

Stockyard Sales Total Over Million Dollars Last Year

Total sales of the Cumberland Stockyards, Inc., during 1951 were $1,034,627.27, an increase over 1950, the best previous year, of $193,793.26, according to a report by Harry J. Barton, president.

The business was organized in 1945 and is designed primarily as a service of farmers of Allegany and nearby sections, Barton said.

The operation does not have a profit motive, consequently commission and yardage rates are very low, he added.

Buyers of livestock come principally from Cumberland, Frostburg and western Pennsylvania communities. Local residents purchase most of the items, such as vegetables, lard, potatoes and used equipment.

Stockyard Sales Total Over Million Dollars Last Year

Total sales of the Cumberland Stockyards, Inc., during 1951 were $1,034,627.27, an increase over 1950, the best previous year, of $193,793.26, according to a report by Harry J. Barton, president.

The business was organized in 1945 and is designed primarily as a service of farmers of Allegany and nearby sections, Barton said.

The operation does not have a profit motive, consequently commission and yardage rates are very low, he added.

Buyers of livestock come principally from Cumberland, Frostburg and western Pennsylvania communities. Local residents purchase most of the items, such as vegetables, lard, potatoes and used equipment.

The weekly auction each Tuesday results in the sale of second hand farm implements, household furniture, fixtures and similar items.

The stockyards organization employs about 25 persons on sale day.

The annual meeting of the stockholders will be held February 14 at 7:30 p. m. at the LaVale Fire Hall.

Directors of the stockyards are Gay Stonestreet, Flintstone; William H. Johnson, Willowbrook Road; C. R. Armstrong, Rawlings; Wilbur Perrin, Flintstone; Arthur P. Hoffa, Barton; William Shumaker, Rawlings; Charles Blue, Springfield, W. Va., and W. R. Porter, Frostburg.

Tunis Also Kicks Up

The Tunisian nationalists are using force in rejecting the conciliatory offer of the new French government under Premier Faure. The premier offered a greater degree of "internal autonomy" for Tunisia, a policy supported by the National Aassembly in Paris by almost a 2 to 1 vote. At the same time Faure warned that France was in Tunisia to stay. Almost a year ago, in February 1951, France had promised Tunisia more self-rule in domestic affairs and eventual autonomy in the French Union.

The clashes between police and Arabs from the resurgence of nationalism in Tunisia have taken on an anti-Semitic tinge in the looting of Jewish shops in the holy city of Kairouan. Heretofore Tunisia's three million Moslems and 100,000 Jews had got along relatively well, even during the Arab-Jewish hostilities in Palestine.

The unrest in Tunisia appears to be another development in the vast Arab or Moslem revolt that emerged in the Middle East and Africa after World War I and gained impetus with World War II. The Neodestour (New Constitutionalist) party until two years ago had been moderate in its demands for self-government.

The Neodestour leader, Habib Bourguiba, was still asking only autonomy in internal affairs when he ended his recent world tour recruiting support for Tunisian nationalists. Now he insists on Tunisian "sovereignty," although willing to have it restored "step by step."

In April 1950 the exiled Moroccan leader, Abd el Krim, had listed Tunisian independence as among the aims of his Committee for Freedom of North Africa. Since then, nationalists of other Arab lands have asked UN for an end of the French protectorate. In September 1951 France protested to Washington when Voice of America facilities were given to Bourgiba, who used them to appeal for Tunisian independence.

If equal representation were granted in Tunisia, the 3,300,000 Arabs would easily dominate the 240,000 Europeans (French and Italian), and the 72,000 native Jews. The present 11-member Council of Ministers is made up of six Tunisians, five French. The consultative Great Council, an elected assembly, is half French, half Tunisian.

As a protectorate of France and an "associated state" of the French Union, Tunisia sends delegates to the assembly of the French union. This is a consultative body made up of 75 members representing metropolitan France (50 chosen by the National Assembly and 25 by the Council of the Republic) and 75 members elected by the assemblies of overseas territories. Nominally the bey is the ruler of Tunisia; actually, control is largely in the hands of the resident general. The former bey was deposed by France in 1943.

The economy of Tunisia is chiefly agricultural, and the Tunisians, considered among the most advanced of North Africa Arabs, are good farmers. Except for the mining of phosphate rock, lead, iron, zinc, and lignite, industry is limited to food processing. France invaded and took over Tunisia in 1881, despite protests of Italy, as one of the agreements at the Congress of Berlin in 1878.

Words Versus Actions

Presentation by the President of a record peacetime budget has been followed by the usual cry in Congress for a sharp reduction in expenditures. Senator George, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, says $5,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 should be cut from the total.

Senator Russell, another Georgia Democrat, demands an examination of every single item to the end that all possible economies may be effected. A group of representatives promises total war against Mr. Truman's policy of "spend and spend."

Every taxpayer will wish he could believe that these brave words mean what they say and have a chance of being translated into action. But it is the lamentable fact that congressmen, when they get down to the business of making appropriations, forget what they said and as a result of the pressures applied by minority blocs spend more money than the President proposed.

That has been the case with every one of the budgets which Mr. Truman has prepared during his years in the White House. There are usually minor changes in individual items, but the overall amount is invariably larger.

Inasmuch as the sum sought by the President this year is so breath-taking and the reluctance to increase taxes is so clearly in evidence, there is a possibility Congress will exhibit more sense than usual and trim appropriations slightly. But if that happens it will be something as new in government as it is devoutly to be desired.

With . . . Interfusions

No question about it, the facts are as reported. But they still don't add up to a story that sounds right. It's inherently implausible that a high government official—whose department issues pricing orders and regulations—should hand a golden plaque to Milton Smith, assistant general counsel for the United States Chamber of Commerce, for inventing a new and wonderful word for the jargon used by federal bureaucrats.

Verily, truth is stranger than fiction.

The official involved was Price Stabilization Director Di Salle. As for Smith's word, that's better than convincing. He calls the language of the bureaucracy "bafflegab." It fits like a glove.

Bafflegab may be understood by the people who use it, though there is reason to doubt it. Sometimes it seems as though they reel it off as part of a ceremonial connected with getting their pay checks—not as a means of communication. And it seems to reflect an absence of thought, instead of the contrary, at the cost of a great waste of paper and scandalous injury to the English tongue.

Of course everybody knows what bafflegab is. It's the language in which nothing is ever done because everything is "processed," where nothing is processed quickly because everything is "expedited," where nothing expedited is ever finished because it is always festation of abstruse expatiation commonly utilized for by the coiner of the word:

"Bafflegab: Multiloquence, characterized by consummate interfusion of circumlocution or periphrase, inscrutability, incognizability, or other familiar manifestation of abstruse expatation commonly utilized for promulgations implementing procrustean determinations of governmental bodies."

Did we say that Smith got his plaque because the Bellingham, Wash., Herald said he ought to have a medal? If we didn't, it's because we wish we had thought of it first.

A Swiss has invented a cigaret that lights itself, but will it do it under water?

How To Keep Well

Decreasing Thyroid Activity

The thyroid gland is placid normally but becomes a real troublemaker when it goes berserk. Overactivity of the structure leads to marked increase in body metabolism and unless the condition is brought under control the victim burns up from within and wastes away in no time.

The contrary occurs when the organ becomes sluggish; there is gain in weight and all body processes slow down. Treatment of this condition is relatively simple. An appropriate number of thyroid tablets usually will make up the deficit and dramatic recovery follows; but the overactive thyroid is like a runaway team of horses; it is difficult to handle and requires much skill and judgment.

We now have many more remedies than we had in the past but this does not mean that the physician can always select the easiest or least expensive. The choice depends upon the age of the patient, the condition of the thyroid, and whether or not complications exist. The number of plans available allow for flexibility and as a result a safe and effective method can be decided upon that is consistent with the comfort, convenience, and desires of the patient.

With medical regimens on tap, many sufferers are skeptical about operations. But surgery often is necessary and in the long run may prove to be the best bet. As a rule it is recommended and leads to cure in a high percentage when hyperthyroidism is associated with a nodular goiter. The procedure is safe as it is done today and the majority of patients remain in the hospital no longer than a week. The gland is out, further medication is unnecessary, and the physician usually is able to discharge his patient as "cured." Furthermore, surgery offers the best opportunity to determine whether or not the nodules in the gland are cancerous. This itself makes surgery extremely advantageous.

Prophylthiouracil is recommended generally in younger individuals with hyperthyroidism, especially when the size of the gland is normal or only moderately enlarged. About 75 per cent of individuals in this group can expect effective results. Should the disorder recur, one of the other methods is tried. Recently a newcomer, methimazole, was introduced and has been tried on 23 patients; the results were comparable with those obtained thru the use of prophylthiouracil.

Another remedy is radioactive iodine (I 131). This liquid is easy to administer and one dose by mouth may be sufficient. The substance finds its way into the thyroid gland and gives off radioactive rays as tho it were a miniature X-ray machine. This suppresses the activity of the gland and in time metabolism returns to normal. The method is preferred in elderly individuals and in those who are too ill to undergo surgery because the heart is affected as well as in recurring overactivity. There is no inconvenience in this procedure in the form of hospitalization, loss of work, or repeated visits to the physician.

TOMORROW: Don't let high blood pressure be your lot.

YOUNG FOR IT

D. W. writes: Could a young man of 20 have a diseased gall bladder?

REPLY

Yes. The condition is more common in the next two decades but no age is exempt. It has been known to develop in infants and oldsters.

SCIATICA TREATMENT

B. G. writes: What is the best treatment for sciatica? I have had injections but the pain is still there.

REPLY

Since the cause, in the majority of cases, stems from a disturbance in the lower back, the injections you mention usually offer only temporary relief. The best way to handle the situation is to undergo a thoro examination, including X-rays of the lower spine and a study of the reflex changes in the involved leg.

TESTS FOR HARDENING

M. L. writes: How does a doctor detect hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

Hardened vessels can be seen in the eyes by using an ophthalmoscope. By X-raying the lower extremities and chest it is possible to detect plaques of calcium in the larger blood vessels of the legs and the aorta. Feeling the pulse also offers a clew but this is not as reliable a test as was thought formerly. Indirect evidence of arteriosclerosis is obtained by studying the organs that are most likely to be involved by this process. A person with angina pectoris or coronary thrombosis serves as a good example. In more than 95 per cent of such cases, hardening of the coronary arteries is responsible. When these conditions develop, therefore, we may assume that arteriosclerosis exists.

President Truman Investigates Source Of Merry-Go-Round Column On Bradley Conference; White House Orders Vigorous Probe Of This Column

(Editors Note — Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter, Mrs. George L. Arnold of Santa Monica, Calif.)

Washington, D. C.
Jan. 26, 1952

Dear Daughter,

The house has seemed very empty ever since you kids left. I suppose I shouldn't call you kids anymore inasmuch as you're a grown up lady now with two sons of your own. But anyway it's been lonesome since you left. We packed up the electric train and put it in the attic till next Christmas when I hope you'll be back, and when little Drew will be able to operate it almost as much as his grandfather.

Only next time please don't fly. We almost held our breath until that plane got back to Los Angeles.

A lot of things have been happening since you left. Among others, Harry Truman has been trying to put me in jail again. Undersecretary of the Navy Whitehair tipped him off that I had written a column about a White House conference with General Bradley and he immediately blew his top.

The column had only been on the teletype to New York one hour when I began to hear about it.

The President was really mad. He stormed and raged and said he would throw me in jail. I can't begin to repeat his language, but it was pretty rough.

Finally he told General Bradley to get hold of me and kill the column.

However, when General Bradley read the column he didn't seem to think there was much wrong. He suggested only two changes, which I was glad to make.

Investigation Begins

The column was published on schedule as corrected, no military secrets were revealed, and so far I am still out of jail. But that didn't end the matter. Immediately afterward, the President ordered the FBI to make a superduper investigation of your old man, together with just about everyone I've ever talked to at the Army and Navy.

On top of this, Jim McInerney, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, (his boss, Howard McGrath doesn't like me) had the FBI contact some men who once worked for me and appealed to them to disclose my news sources. Naturally they didn't. They didn't know my sources in the first place and wouldn't have revealed 'em if they did.

The White House investigators then dug back into what I said in defense of General George Marshall when Senator McCarthy attacked him, and have been trying to find out where I got the material I used one whole year ago. I compared General Marshall's wonderful war record with McCarthy's failure to take part in any combat missions; so the investigators want to know where I got McCarthy's war record, which they say was supposed to be a complete secret.

Funny how the President now wants to protect one of his worst senatorial enemies and go after a newsman who defended his old friend Marshall. However, that's the way things are sometimes done around here these days.

However, I'm still out of jail, and if anyone has detected any pulling of punches as a result of all this, I hope my family will be the first to tell me.

Meanwhile, I went down to Reidsville, N. C., last week, to the only town where I was supposed to have spent some time in jail — aside from a short interim in a Siberian jail as the guest of the Soviet.

I don't know whether it's because a criminal always returns to the scene of a crime or whether the folks of Reidsville wanted to give their most famous alleged jailbird a home-coming reception. But anyway I went down to North Carolina and had a wonderful time.

Predawn Bath

P. W. Glidewell, the attorney who defended me against the charge of taking a sponge bath in the Southern Railroad yards at 3 a. m. after taking down a chautauqua tent, introduced me to the Reidsville Chamber of Commerce where I spoke in the evening, and we had quite a time.

A lot of things have changed about Reidsville since that first memorable occasion when I was there. And I guess a lot of things have changed about your father, too. I was 16 then, just out of high school, and no one ever dreamed I would become the bete noir of certain politicians, least of all myself.

Reidsville was just a country village then, and its chief industry was Red Jay and Black Eagle chewing tobacco. Now that same tobacco factory turns out 180 million Lucky Strikes a day, and every morning the American Tobacco Company hands Uncle Sam a check for $800,000, as its daily cigaret tax.

Judge Ira Humphries, who acquitted me for taking the bath in the railroad yards, has retired now. And the court house where I was tried has been torn down. (Incidentally, your father was never actually put in jail — just held for an hour by a very courteous cop.)

The welcoming committee drove me down to the railroad yards to try to find the spigot and the scene of the alleged crime, but we couldn't locate it. The town has changed too much.

Before The A-Bomb

In fact, it's become quite modern. There is an up-to-date Negro high school more modern than the white schools. And I saw a blue-tile community swimming pool which should make impromptu bathing much easier — and less public. I also drove by the high school grounds where we once pitched our chautauqua tent. The old school is gone now and a modern one has taken its place.

It made me feel a little old to see

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Smart politicians hereabouts have about come to the conclusion that there is less of a joke and a teasing game about President Truman's reluctance to tell his intentions about third term than there is well-defined strategy.

This strategy is to announce before May 1 that he does not wish to run and that he would prefer if the Democratic party would choose someone else.

Then will come the cry that nobody else is available who can command the confidence of the whole party and that he himself, having made the "glorious record" which the Democratic party orators have already begun to extoll, there can be no other course but to draft him.

These smart politicians—some of them friendly and some unfriendly to Mr. Truman—point out that he is following almost exactly the course that President Franklin D. Roosevelt did in the early months of 1940—letting the reporters guess, giving no hint to any of his callers and then finally announcing that he didn't want to run but opening the door to the "draft" that finally came.

No bigger piece of hypocrisy has been invented in modern politics than that in an emergency all the existing rules of a representative system should be suspended and that, for example, the two-term tradition established by Washington and Jefferson shall be ignored because of such an emergency. The only emergency that confronts the Democratic party is the necessity of winning another election.

It is, of course, in a political sense a real emergency. If Mr. Truman deserts the officeholders—some 500,000 of them have high-income jobs—they can be removed from office in one way or another if another administration comes into power.

The argument most often made against the third term before 1940 was that no matter what the excuse—even a war emergency—once the tradition was broken would be violated again and again.

What excuse will the Democratic party give the nation if it decides to "draft" President Truman for a third term? Already a constitutional amendment has been adopted barring everybody else from a third term. The only reason that Mr. Truman himself was not barred was because of the fear that the amendment would become a political issue and adoption in Truman states would be blocked if the exemption were not made. The supporters of the amendment felt it was more important to America in the long-range future to put a third-term ban in the Constitution now than to worry about whether Mr. Truman would or would not seek the office again. Lots of them thought he would be beaten anyhow.

But Mr. Truman's tactics of silence have had a direct effect on the means by which the nomination itself will be made this year. Nobody else has dared to come out—that is, nobody in the administration camp—and build a position and encourage the election of delegates. Senator Kefauver, of Tennessee, is obviously not popular with the administration and the cool reception given his candidacy by the "regulars" is proof of the hostility that awaits anybody else who dares to do likewise without the President's consent.

It really is too late now for an orthodox race to be held inside the Democratic party. Mr. Truman says he will make his announcement before April 29—which happens to be the deadline before the Missouri primary. This has been construed to mean that he may try for nomination as a United States senator again. But it could also mean that he thinks the months of May and June afford ample time for the party organizations to choose delegates pledged to other candidates or for the "draft process" to function for him. Franklin Roosevelt kept the guessing game going almost to the last minute in 1940 and didn't allow the buildup of any rival candidate. Mr. Truman perhaps is thinking that two months' notice gives everybody concerned a better break than under the Roosevelt method.

Last year—in fact, not long after the attempt at assassination was made at Blair House in November 1950 by the Puerto Rican radicals—the tsory went all through Washington that Mrs. Truman had expressed a vehement objection against any further service by her husband in the White House. Months later the impression was indirectly confirmed by answers at press conferences at the White House that the family would prefer Mr. Truman's termination of the Presidency in January of 1953.

But now the smart politicians are saying that the President — whatever his earlier intentions have been — is changing his mind about it all and will let the Democratic party decide the issue after he makes it clear that he would prefer not to be a candidate and will not "seek" renomination.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Sleazy Business

WASHINGTON

If the President decides to run again, one thing is clear. The great issues will fade into the background, while such problems as the quality of the President's friends will occupy the foreground of the campaign. The new Congressional session is in fact preparing a regular smorgasbord table of executive malfeasance.

Take, for example, the up-coming case of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, ex-patron of Theron Lamar Caudle, ex-oil lobbyist before the Texas legislature, and ex-attorney general of the United States. In the early days of the Truman administration, Tom Clark and Postmaster General Robert Hannegan had no closer businessman-friend than Jack Frye, then president of Trans World Airlines.

Frye was popular in Washington as a generous fellow with his private plane and a generous contributor to the Democratic party. These traits failed to endear him, however, to TWA's chief stockholder, Howard Hughes, who decided, in 1946, that the company needed a new hand at the helm. But when Hughes moved to oust Frye, Clark and Hannegan hastened to his defense.

A great many million dollars of TWA notes were held by the Equitable Life Insurance Company. Accordingly, Clark and Hannegan indicated to the president of Equitable, Thomas I. Parkinson, that firing Frye would be a grave error of business judgment. Much impressed, Parkinson hastened to pass on the Clark-Hannegan advice to TWA Director Noah Dietrich and TWA General Counsel Palmer Bradley. The potential meaning, in terms of airmail contracts and decisions of the Civil Aviation Board, was only too obvious. Yet Hughes defied the politicoes and ousted Frye.

TWA Predominance Fades

Almost at once, Frye was named president of General Aniline Corporation, a firm in the hands of the Alien Property Office, and thus under Attorney General Clark's control. He holds this place still, and draws a salary of $97,000 a year from General Aniline and its subsidiary, General Dyestuff. Meanwhile, the period of TWA's predominance at the Civil Aviation Board drew to its close, and the Pan American Airways era set in a little later.

Against the vast, dark panorama of our times, this sleazy little story does not matter very much. Yet it will matter in the campaign. So too will the peculiar manifestations of Secretary John Snyder's remarkably relaxed management of the Treasury Department.

Here the alcohol tax unit is due for attention. One subject of investigation will be the intra-industry struggle of the distillers over a ruling on the use of new barrels in aging bourbon whisky. For mysterious reasons, the ruling meant millions of dollars of profit and loss to various distilling companies. The reported result was a golden flow of contributions to the Democratic National Committee—so much simpler an approach to such problems than long arguments in hearings. The investigators also want to know why at least one official of alcohol tax unit, now retired, has seemingly been given highly profitable "distributorships" of popular brands of drinkables by grateful distilling companies.

By the same token, the Commodity Credit Corporation is due for a going over. So is the Alien Property Office (although this investigation is likely to be a trifle uninteresting, since the head of the office, Harold Baynton, is actually an appointee of the chief investigator, Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada). And just to round out the list, there will be a sterner inquiry into the doings at War Assets, where Caudle's great friend, Frank Nathan, made a nice profit.

Meanwhile, the alleged softness-towards communism issue will also be inflated at a great rate. The President's own change in loyalty rules has already caused John S. Service to be dismissed from the State Department, after suffering octuple jeopardy, and for indiscretion rather than disloyalty. It is an open secret that at least one more unfortunate State Department official is to become a victim of this same change of rules. Senator McCarran's internal security subcommittee is also still in business, with the same equipment of witnesses ready to mass produce charges of treason on the basis of hearsay recollection 10 years after the event. And the case of Ambassador Philip Jessup still impends and will almost surely be lost.

It is a grave thing, that our people have half-forgotten that an American citizen has a prescriptive right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. Yet this forgetfulness must partly be laid to the failure of the President and Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson to fight the invasion of citizen's liberties right down the line. And if the corruption issue has substance, it is because the President has trusted some pretty rotten and some pretty incompetent people.

By any reasonable standard, it matters a great dead less whether there are Communist clerks in the State Department, or whether Frank Nathan made a fast buck, than whether the United States survives. But if the President runs again, the great issues of survival will be forgotten, and the national political debate will stay right down in the sewer, where it is today.

Universal Military Service

The organization of a garrison state involves social and political consequences and the diversion of men from their normal activities to military participation. Shifting youth from schools to camps, from free activities to regimented disciplines, during the early years of their lives, can produce permanent psychological reactions.

The present program for universal military service is an extraordinarily involved one, from which only the mentally and physically defective will be freed. All your men, 18½ years of age, fresh out of high school, are to be given a six months' pilot course in universal military training.

About 1,200,000 come of age, that is 18½ years old, each year. Of this number, it is estimated that 400,000 will be unfit, leaving 800,000 for this program. Only the psysically and mentally unfit, according to Pentagon standards, will be able to proceed directly from high school to college with some assurance of remaining there.

After a young man has served for six months in this pilot course, he will be put into the active reserve for one year and a half. This means that the young man might begin a course at college, but could be interrupted at any time by being called to replace American troops in Korea, Malaya, Burma or Europe, without regard to his personal future. As, except in Korea, our troops mostly mark time, this enforced idleness, in uniform, is of great concern to those who fear its social consequences.

At any rate, according to this program, few ambitious young men would be able to enter college before they are 20 or 21 years of age. They would be 24 or 25 years old before they got their Bachelor's degree. Those who require graduate work, such as doctors, lawyers, engineers, technicians, would be close to 30 before they would be graduated.

Experience shows that many in the military services, out of boredom and loneliness, marry, often under circumstances and to persons that can only be regarded as unfortunate. This raises moral problems which permanently affect our society.

In the past, our youth were used in this way to defend their country for comparatively short periods of great national peril. This, however, is planned to be a permanent program, to be followed in peace as well as in war. Further, after a young man has given his two years to this service, he is to be put into the inactive reserve for a period of six years, the President apparently to have the right to shift individuals from the inactive to the active reserve at will.

Smart boys, that is, those who are brilliant in their marks, will be able to find ways to get an education. In this country, however, it has been experience that the most useful men are not always those who have been exceptionally smart as boys. The large reservoir of college graduates has been drawn upon to produce competent persons to do the multitude of tasks essential in an industrial society.

Already, as a consequence of World War II, this country is short of engineers, which is a serious matter for the future. Shortages also appear in many fields of scholarship in which theoretical work is done, thus forming the basis for our amazing success in technical fields. Atomic fission is a product of the classroom and college laboratory as it is of engineering and industrial skill.

Recently, a number of religious leaders came to Washington for one of those orientation sessions which have become so customary since the war. This conference was called to consider the character guidance program for our troops.

UMT arose only in question time and was not on the agenda among the clergymen and religious leaders present. These men have devoted their lives to moral issues and have had to deal with young people through the various stages of development. Also, some had even served as chaplains.

So far as I can learn, while the clergy were deeply moved by the broad nature of the discussion of moral problems, which, at this conference, transcended religious differences, many of them felt that UMT imperils both the young man and the country and is not wise for such a society as ours. It could defeat our civilization by making it militaristic. Such militarism, including universal military service, had devastating effects on Germany and Japan, both of which employed it, in one form or another.

Moral leaders, particularly the clergy, cannot concern themselves only with immediate, pressing political problems. Their responsibility is to think in terms of civilization and the relationship of man to it.

This is a subject that requires more than casual discussion and might well be made a campaign issue. Stalin is becoming more troublesome, in our domestic matters, than Hitler ever was.

Tunis Also Kicks Up

The Tunisian nationalists are using force in rejecting the conciliatory offer of the new French government under Premier Faure. The premier offered a greater degree of "internal autonomy" for Tunisia, a policy supported by the National Aassembly in Paris by almost a 2 to 1 vote. At the same time Faure warned that France was in Tunisia to stay. Almost a year ago, in February 1951, France had promised Tunisia more self-rule in domestic affairs and eventual autonomy in the French Union.

The clashes between police and Arabs from the resurgence of nationalism in Tunisia have taken on an anti-Semitic tinge in the looting of Jewish shops in the holy city of Kairouan. Heretofore Tunisia's three million Moslems and 100,000 Jews had got along relatively well, even during the Arab-Jewish hostilities in Palestine.

The unrest in Tunisia appears to be another development in the vast Arab or Moslem revolt that emerged in the Middle East and Africa after World War I and gained impetus with World War II. The Neodestour (New Constitutionalist) party until two years ago had been moderate in its demands for self-government.

The Neodestour leader, Habib Bourguiba, was still asking only autonomy in internal affairs when he ended his recent world tour recruiting support for Tunisian nationalists. Now he insists on Tunisian "sovereignty," although willing to have it restored "step by step."

In April 1950 the exiled Moroccan leader, Abd el Krim, had listed Tunisian independence as among the aims of his Committee for Freedom of North Africa. Since then, nationalists of other Arab lands have asked UN for an end of the French protectorate. In September 1951 France protested to Washington when Voice of America facilities were given to Bourgiba, who used them to appeal for Tunisian independence.

If equal representation were granted in Tunisia, the 3,300,000 Arabs would easily dominate the 240,000 Europeans (French and Italian), and the 72,000 native Jews. The present 11-member Council of Ministers is made up of six Tunisians, five French. The consultative Great Council, an elected assembly, is half French, half Tunisian.

As a protectorate of France and an "associated state" of the French Union, Tunisia sends delegates to the assembly of the French union. This is a consultative body made up of 75 members representing metropolitan France (50 chosen by the National Assembly and 25 by the Council of the Republic) and 75 members elected by the assemblies of overseas territories. Nominally the bey is the ruler of Tunisia; actually, control is largely in the hands of the resident general. The former bey was deposed by France in 1943.

The economy of Tunisia is chiefly agricultural, and the Tunisians, considered among the most advanced of North Africa Arabs, are good farmers. Except for the mining of phosphate rock, lead, iron, zinc, and lignite, industry is limited to food processing. France invaded and took over Tunisia in 1881, despite protests of Italy, as one of the agreements at the Congress of Berlin in 1878.

Words Versus Actions

Presentation by the President of a record peacetime budget has been followed by the usual cry in Congress for a sharp reduction in expenditures. Senator George, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, says $5,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 should be cut from the total.

Senator Russell, another Georgia Democrat, demands an examination of every single item to the end that all possible economies may be effected. A group of representatives promises total war against Mr. Truman's policy of "spend and spend."

Every taxpayer will wish he could believe that these brave words mean what they say and have a chance of being translated into action. But it is the lamentable fact that congressmen, when they get down to the business of making appropriations, forget what they said and as a result of the pressures applied by minority blocs spend more money than the President proposed.

That has been the case with every one of the budgets which Mr. Truman has prepared during his years in the White House. There are usually minor changes in individual items, but the overall amount is invariably larger.

Inasmuch as the sum sought by the President this year is so breath-taking and the reluctance to increase taxes is so clearly in evidence, there is a possibility Congress will exhibit more sense than usual and trim appropriations slightly. But if that happens it will be something as new in government as it is devoutly to be desired.

With . . . Interfusions

No question about it, the facts are as reported. But they still don't add up to a story that sounds right. It's inherently implausible that a high government official—whose department issues pricing orders and regulations—should hand a golden plaque to Milton Smith, assistant general counsel for the United States Chamber of Commerce, for inventing a new and wonderful word for the jargon used by federal bureaucrats.

Verily, truth is stranger than fiction.

The official involved was Price Stabilization Director Di Salle. As for Smith's word, that's better than convincing. He calls the language of the bureaucracy "bafflegab." It fits like a glove.

Bafflegab may be understood by the people who use it, though there is reason to doubt it. Sometimes it seems as though they reel it off as part of a ceremonial connected with getting their pay checks—not as a means of communication. And it seems to reflect an absence of thought, instead of the contrary, at the cost of a great waste of paper and scandalous injury to the English tongue.

Of course everybody knows what bafflegab is. It's the language in which nothing is ever done because everything is "processed," where nothing is processed quickly because everything is "expedited," where nothing expedited is ever finished because it is always festation of abstruse expatiation commonly utilized for by the coiner of the word:

"Bafflegab: Multiloquence, characterized by consummate interfusion of circumlocution or periphrase, inscrutability, incognizability, or other familiar manifestation of abstruse expatation commonly utilized for promulgations implementing procrustean determinations of governmental bodies."

Did we say that Smith got his plaque because the Bellingham, Wash., Herald said he ought to have a medal? If we didn't, it's because we wish we had thought of it first.

A Swiss has invented a cigaret that lights itself, but will it do it under water?

How To Keep Well

Decreasing Thyroid Activity

The thyroid gland is placid normally but becomes a real troublemaker when it goes berserk. Overactivity of the structure leads to marked increase in body metabolism and unless the condition is brought under control the victim burns up from within and wastes away in no time.

The contrary occurs when the organ becomes sluggish; there is gain in weight and all body processes slow down. Treatment of this condition is relatively simple. An appropriate number of thyroid tablets usually will make up the deficit and dramatic recovery follows; but the overactive thyroid is like a runaway team of horses; it is difficult to handle and requires much skill and judgment.

We now have many more remedies than we had in the past but this does not mean that the physician can always select the easiest or least expensive. The choice depends upon the age of the patient, the condition of the thyroid, and whether or not complications exist. The number of plans available allow for flexibility and as a result a safe and effective method can be decided upon that is consistent with the comfort, convenience, and desires of the patient.

With medical regimens on tap, many sufferers are skeptical about operations. But surgery often is necessary and in the long run may prove to be the best bet. As a rule it is recommended and leads to cure in a high percentage when hyperthyroidism is associated with a nodular goiter. The procedure is safe as it is done today and the majority of patients remain in the hospital no longer than a week. The gland is out, further medication is unnecessary, and the physician usually is able to discharge his patient as "cured." Furthermore, surgery offers the best opportunity to determine whether or not the nodules in the gland are cancerous. This itself makes surgery extremely advantageous.

Prophylthiouracil is recommended generally in younger individuals with hyperthyroidism, especially when the size of the gland is normal or only moderately enlarged. About 75 per cent of individuals in this group can expect effective results. Should the disorder recur, one of the other methods is tried. Recently a newcomer, methimazole, was introduced and has been tried on 23 patients; the results were comparable with those obtained thru the use of prophylthiouracil.

Another remedy is radioactive iodine (I 131). This liquid is easy to administer and one dose by mouth may be sufficient. The substance finds its way into the thyroid gland and gives off radioactive rays as tho it were a miniature X-ray machine. This suppresses the activity of the gland and in time metabolism returns to normal. The method is preferred in elderly individuals and in those who are too ill to undergo surgery because the heart is affected as well as in recurring overactivity. There is no inconvenience in this procedure in the form of hospitalization, loss of work, or repeated visits to the physician.

TOMORROW: Don't let high blood pressure be your lot.

YOUNG FOR IT

D. W. writes: Could a young man of 20 have a diseased gall bladder?

REPLY

Yes. The condition is more common in the next two decades but no age is exempt. It has been known to develop in infants and oldsters.

SCIATICA TREATMENT

B. G. writes: What is the best treatment for sciatica? I have had injections but the pain is still there.

REPLY

Since the cause, in the majority of cases, stems from a disturbance in the lower back, the injections you mention usually offer only temporary relief. The best way to handle the situation is to undergo a thoro examination, including X-rays of the lower spine and a study of the reflex changes in the involved leg.

TESTS FOR HARDENING

M. L. writes: How does a doctor detect hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

Hardened vessels can be seen in the eyes by using an ophthalmoscope. By X-raying the lower extremities and chest it is possible to detect plaques of calcium in the larger blood vessels of the legs and the aorta. Feeling the pulse also offers a clew but this is not as reliable a test as was thought formerly. Indirect evidence of arteriosclerosis is obtained by studying the organs that are most likely to be involved by this process. A person with angina pectoris or coronary thrombosis serves as a good example. In more than 95 per cent of such cases, hardening of the coronary arteries is responsible. When these conditions develop, therefore, we may assume that arterioscerosis exists.

President Truman Investigates Source Of Merry-Go-Round Column On Bradley Conference; White House Orders Vigorous Probe Of This Column

(Editors Note — Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to his daughter, Mrs. George L. Arnold of Santa Monica, Calif.)

Washington, D. C.
Jan. 26, 1952

Dear Daughter,

The house has seemed very empty ever since you kids left. I suppose I shouldn't call you kids anymore inasmuch as you're a grown up lady now with two sons of your own. But anyway it's been lonesome since you left. We packed up the electric train and put it in the attic till next Christmas when I hope you'll be back, and when little Drew will be able to operate it almost as much as his grandfather.

Only next time please don't fly. We almost held our breath until that plane got back to Los Angeles.

A lot of things have been happening since you left. Among others, Harry Truman has been trying to put me in jail again. Undersecretary of the Navy Whitehair tipped him off that I had written a column about a White House conference with General Bradley and he immediately blew his top.

The column had only been on the teletype to New York one hour when I began to hear about it.

The President was really mad. He stormed and raged and said he would throw me in jail. I can't begin to repeat his language, but it was pretty rough.

Finally he told General Bradley to get hold of me and kill the column.

However, when General Bradley read the column he didn't seem to think there was much wrong. He suggested only two changes, which I was glad to make.

Investigation Begins

The column was published on schedule as corrected, no military secrets were revealed, and so far I am still out of jail. But that didn't end the matter. Immediately afterward, the President ordered the FBI to make a superduper investigation of your old man, together with just about everyone I've ever talked to at the Army and Navy.

On top of this, Jim McInerney, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, (his boss, Howard McGrath doesn't like me) had the FBI contact some men who once worked for me and appealed to them to disclose my news sources. Naturally they didn't. They didn't know my sources in the first place and wouldn't have revealed 'em if they did.

The White House investigators then dug back into what I said in defense of General George Marshall when Senator McCarthy attacked him, and have been trying to find out where I got the material I used one whole year ago. I compared General Marshall's wonderful war record with McCarthy's failure to take part in any combat missions; so the investigators want to know where I got McCarthy's war record, which they say was supposed to be a complete secret.

Funny how the President now wants to protect one of his worst senatorial enemies and go after a newsman who defended his old friend Marshall. However, that's the way things are sometimes done around here these days.

However, I'm still out of jail, and if anyone has detected any pulling of punches as a result of all this, I hope my family will be the first to tell me.

Meanwhile, I went down to Reidsville, N. C., last week, to the only town where I was supposed to have spent some time in jail — aside from a short interim in a Siberian jail as the guest of the Soviet.

I don't know whether it's because a criminal always returns to the scene of a crime or whether the folks of Reidsville wanted to give their most famous alleged jailbird a home-coming reception. But anyway I went down to North Carolina and had a wonderful time.

Predawn Bath

P. W. Glidewell, the attorney who defended me against the charge of taking a sponge bath in the Southern Railroad yards at 3 a. m. after taking down a chautauqua tent, introduced me to the Reidsville Chamber of Commerce where I spoke in the evening, and we had quite a time.

A lot of things have changed about Reidsville since that first memorable occasion when I was there. And I guess a lot of things have changed about your father, too. I was 16 then, just out of high school, and no one ever dreamed I would become the bete noir of certain politicians, least of all myself.

Reidsville was just a country village then, and its chief industry was Red Jay and Black Eagle chewing tobacco. Now that same tobacco factory turns out 180 million Lucky Strikes a day, and every morning the American Tobacco Company hands Uncle Sam a check for $800,000, as its daily cigaret tax.

Judge Ira Humphries, who acquitted me for taking the bath in the railroad yards, has retired now. And the court house where I was tried has been torn down. (Incidentally, your father was never actually put in jail — just held for an hour by a very courteous cop.)

The welcoming committee drove me down to the railroad yards to try to find the spigot and the scene of the alleged crime, but we couldn't locate it. The town has changed too much.

Before The A-Bomb

In fact, it's become quite modern. There is an up-to-date Negro high school more modern than the white schools. And I saw a blue-tile community swimming pool which should make impromptu bathing much easier — and less public. I also drove by the high school grounds where we once pitched our chautauqua tent. The old school is gone now and a modern one has taken its place.

It made me feel a little old to see

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Smart politicians hereabouts have about come to the conclusion that there is less of a joke and a teasing game about President Truman's reluctance to tell his intentions about third term than there is well-defined strategy.

This strategy is to announce before May 1 that he does not wish to run and that he would prefer if the Democratic party would choose someone else.

Then will come the cry that nobody else is available who can command the confidence of the whole party and that he himself, having made the "glorious record" which the Democratic party orators have already begun to extoll, there can be no other course but to draft him.

These smart politicians—some of them friendly and some unfriendly to Mr. Truman—point out that he is following almost exactly the course that President Franklin D. Roosevelt did in the early months of 1940—letting the reporters guess, giving no hint to any of his callers and then finally announcing that he didn't want to run but opening the door to the "draft" that finally came.

No bigger piece of hypocrisy has been invented in modern politics than that in an emergency all the existing rules of a representative system should be suspended and that, for example, the two-term tradition established by Washington and Jefferson shall be ignored because of such an emergency. The only emergency that confronts the Democratic party is the necessity of winning another election.

It is, of course, in a political sense a real emergency. If Mr. Truman deserts the officeholders—some 500,000 of them have high-income jobs—they can be removed from office in one way or another if another administration comes into power.

The argument most often made against the third term before 1940 was that no matter what the excuse—even a war emergency—once the tradition was broken would be violated again and again.

What excuse will the Democratic party give the nation if it decides to "draft" President Truman for a third term? Already a constitutional amendment has been adopted barring everybody else from a third term. The only reason that Mr. Truman himself was not barred was because of the fear that the amendment would become a political issue and adoption in Truman states would be blocked if the exemption were not made. The supporters of the amendment felt it was more important to America in the long-range future to put a third-term ban in the Constitution now than to worry about whether Mr. Truman would or would not seek the office again. Lots of them thought he would be beaten anyhow.

But Mr. Truman's tactics of silence have had a direct effect on the means by which the nomination itself will be made this year. Nobody else has dared to come out—that is, nobody in the administration camp—and build a position and encourage the election of delegates. Senator Kefauver, of Tennessee, is obviously not popular with the administration and the cool reception given his candidacy by the "regulars" is proof of the hostility that awaits anybody else who dares to do likewise without the President's consent.

It really is too late now for an orthodox race to be held inside the Democratic party. Mr. Truman says he will make his announcement before April 29—which happens to be the deadline before the Missouri primary. This has been construed to mean that he may try for nomination as a United States senator again. But it could also mean that he thinks the months of May and June afford ample time for the party organizations to choose delegates pledged to other candidates or for the "draft process" to function for him. Franklin Roosevelt kept the guessing game going almost to the last minute in 1940 and didn't allow the buildup of any rival candidate. Mr. Truman perhaps is thinking that two months' notice gives everybody concerned a better break than under the Roosevelt method.

Last year—in fact, not long after the attempt at assassination was made at Blair House in November 1950 by the Puerto Rican radicals—the tsory went all through Washington that Mrs. Truman had expressed a vehement objection against any further service by her husband in the White House. Months later the impression was indirectly confirmed by answers at press conferences at the White House that the family would prefer Mr. Truman's termination of the Presidency in January of 1953.

But now the smart politicians are saying that the President — whatever his earlier intentions have been — is changing his mind about it all and will let the Democratic party decide the issue after he makes it clear that he would prefer not to be a candidate and will not "seek" renomination.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Sleazy Business

WASHINGTON

If the President decides to run again, one thing is clear. The great issues will fade into the background, while such problems as the quality of the President's friends will occupy the foreground of the campaign. The new Congressional session is in fact preparing a regular smorgasbord table of executive malfeasance.

Take, for example, the up-coming case of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, ex-patron of Theron Lamar Caudle, ex-oil lobbyist before the Texas legislature, and ex-attorney general of the United States. In the early days of the Truman administration, Tom Clark and Postmaster General Robert Hannegan had no closer businessman-friend than Jack Frye, then president of Trans World Airlines.

Frye was popular in Washington as a generous fellow with his private plane and a generous contributor to the Democratic party. These traits failed to endear him, however, to TWA's chief stockholder, Howard Hughes, who decided, in 1946, that the company needed a new hand at the helm. But when Hughes moved to oust Frye, Clark and Hannegan hastened to his defense.

A great many million dollars of TWA notes were held by the Equitable Life Insurance Company. Accordingly, Clark and Hannegan indicated to the president of Equitable, Thomas I. Parkinson, that firing Frye would be a grave error of business judgment. Much impressed, Parkinson hastened to pass on the Clark-Hannegan advice to TWA Director Noah Dietrich and TWA General Counsel Palmer Bradley. The potential meaning, in terms of airmail contracts and decisions of the Civil Aviation Board, was only too obvious. Yet Hughes defied the politicoes and ousted Frye.

TWA Predominance Fades

Almost at once, Frye was named president of General Aniline Corporation, a firm in the hands of the Alien Property Office, and thus under Attorney General Clark's control. He holds this place still, and draws a salary of $97,000 a year from General Aniline and its subsidiary, General Dyestuff. Meanwhile, the period of TWA's predominance at the Civil Aviation Board drew to its close, and the Pan American Airways era set in a little later.

Against the vast, dark panorama of our times, this sleazy little story does not matter very much. Yet it will matter in the campaign. So too will the peculiar manifestations of Secretary John Snyder's remarkably relaxed management of the Treasury Department.

Here the alcohol tax unit is due for attention. One subject of investigation will be the intra-industry struggle of the distillers over a ruling on the use of new barrels in aging bourbon whisky. For mysterious reasons, the ruling meant millions of dollars of profit and loss to various distilling companies. The reported result was a golden flow of contributions to the Democratic National Committee—so much simpler an approach to such problems than long arguments in hearings. The investigators also want to know why at least one official of alcohol tax unit, now retired, has seemingly been given highly profitable "distributorships" of popular brands of drinkables by grateful distilling companies.

By the same token, the Commodity Credit Corporation is due for a going over. So is the Alien Property Office (although this investigation is likely to be a trifle uninteresting, since the head of the office, Harold Baynton, is actually an appointee of the chief investigator, Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada). And just to round out the list, there will be a sterner inquiry into the doings at War Assets, where Caudle's great friend, Frank Nathan, made a nice profit.

Meanwhile, the alleged softness-towards communism issue will also be inflated at a great rate. The President's own change in loyalty rules has already caused John S. Service to be dismissed from the State Department, after suffering octuple jeopardy, and for indiscretion rather than disloyalty. It is an open secret that at least one more unfortunate State Department official is to become a victim of this same change of rules. Senator McCarran's internal security subcommittee is also still in business, with the same equipment of witnesses ready to mass produce charges of treason on the basis of hearsay recollection 10 years after the event. And the case of Ambassador Philip Jessup still impends and will almost surely be lost.

It is a grave thing, that our people have half-forgotten that an American citizen has a prescriptive right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. Yet this forgetfulness must partly be laid to the failure of the President and Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson to fight the invasion of citizen's liberties right down the line. And if the corruption issue has substance, it is because the President has trusted some pretty rotten and some pretty incompetent people.

By any reasonable standard, it matters a great dead less whether there are Communist clerks in the State Department, or whether Frank Nathan made a fast buck, than whether the United States survives. But if the President runs again, the great issues of survival will be forgotten, and the national political debate will stay right down in the sewer, where it is today.

Recently, a number of religious leaders came to Washington for one of those orientation sessions which have become so customary since the war. This conference was called to consider the character guidance program for our troops.

UMT arose only in question time and was not on the agenda among the clergymen and religious leaders present. These men have devoted their lives to moral issues and have had to deal with young people through the various stages of development. Also, some had even served as chaplains.

So far as I can learn, while the clergy were deeply moved by the broad nature of the discussion of moral problems, which, at this conference, transcended religious differences, many of them felt that UMT imperils both the young man and the country and is not wise for such a society as ours. It could defeat our civilization by making it militaristic. Such militarism, including universal military service, had devastating effects on Germany and Japan, both of which employed it, in one form or another.

Moral leaders, particularly the clergy, cannot concern themselves only with immediate, pressing political problems. Their responsibility is to think in terms of civilization and the relationship of man to it.

This is a subject that requires more than casual discussion and might well be made a campaign issue. Stalin is becoming more troublesome, in our domestic matters, than Hitler ever was.

Tunis Also Kicks Up

The Tunisian nationalists are using force in rejecting the conciliatory offer of the new French government under Premier Faure. The premier offered a greater degree of "internal autonomy" for Tunisia, a policy supported by the National Aassembly in Paris by almost a 2 to 1 vote. At the same time Faure warned that France was in Tunisia to stay. Almost a year ago, in February 1951, France had promised Tunisia more self-rule in domestic affairs and eventual autonomy in the French Union.

The clashes between police and Arabs from the resurgence of nationalism in Tunisia have taken on an anti-Semitic tinge in the looting of Jewish shops in the holy city of Kairouan. Heretofore Tunisia's three million Moslems and 100,000 Jews had got along relatively well, even during the Arab-Jewish hostilities in Palestine.

The unrest in Tunisia appears to be another development in the vast Arab or Moslem revolt that emerged in the Middle East and Africa after World War I and gained impetus with World War II. The Neodestour (New Constitutionalist) party until two years ago had been moderate in its demands for self-government.

The Neodestour leader, Habib Bourguiba, was still asking only autonomy in internal affairs when he ended his recent world tour recruiting support for Tunisian nationalists. Now he insists on Tunisian "sovereignty," although willing to have it restored "step by step."

In April 1950 the exiled Moroccan leader, Abd el Krim, had listed Tunisian independence as among the aims of his Committee for Freedom of North Africa. Since then, nationalists of other Arab lands have asked UN for an end of the French protectorate. In September 1951 France protested to Washington when Voice of America facilities were given to Bourgiba, who used them to appeal for Tunisian independence.

If equal representation were granted in Tunisia, the 3,300,000 Arabs would easily dominate the 240,000 Europeans (French and Italian), and the 72,000 native Jews. The present 11-member Council of Ministers is made up of six Tunisians, five French. The consultative Great Council, an elected assembly, is half French, half Tunisian.

As a protectorate of France and an "associated state" of the French Union, Tunisia sends delegates to the assembly of the French union. This is a consultative body made up of 75 members representing metropolitan France (50 chosen by the National Assembly and 25 by the Council of the Republic) and 75 members elected by the assemblies of overseas territories. Nominally the bey is the ruler of Tunisia; actually, control is largely in the hands of the resident general. The former bey was deposed by France in 1943.

The economy of Tunisia is chiefly agricultural, and the Tunisians, considered among the most advanced of North Africa Arabs, are good farmers. Except for the mining of phosphate rock, lead, iron, zinc, and lignite, industry is limited to food processing. France invaded and took over Tunisia in 1881, despite protests of Italy, as one of the agreements at the Congress of Berlin in 1878.

Words Versus Actions

Presentation by the President of a record peacetime budget has been followed by the usual cry in Congress for a sharp reduction in expenditures. Senator George, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Committee on Finance, says $5,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 should be cut from the total.

Senator Russell, another Georgia Democrat, demands an examination of every single item to the end that all possible economies may be effected. A group of representatives promises total war against Mr. Truman's policy of "spend and spend."

Every taxpayer will wish he could believe that these brave words mean what they say and have a chance of being translated into action. But it is the lamentable fact that congressmen, when they get down to the business of making appropriations, forget what they said and as a result of the pressures applied by minority blocs spend more money than the President proposed.

That has been the case with every one of the budgets which Mr. Truman has prepared during his years in the White House. There are usually minor changes in individual items, but the overall amount is invariably larger.

Inasmuch as the sum sought by the President this year is so breath-taking and the reluctance to increase taxes is so clearly in evidence, there is a possibility Congress will exhibit more sense than usual and trim appropriations slightly. But if that happens it will be something as new in government as it is devoutly to be desired.

With . . . Interfusions

No question about it, the facts are as reported. But they still don't add up to a story that sounds right. It's inherently implausible that a high government official—whose department issues pricing orders and regulations—should hand a golden plaque to Milton Smith, assistant general counsel for the United States Chamber of Commerce, for inventing a new and wonderful word for the jargon used by federal bureaucrats.

Verily, truth is stranger than fiction.

The official involved was Price Stabilization Director Di Salle. As for Smith's word, that's better than convincing. He calls the language of the bureaucracy "bafflegab." It fits like a glove.

Bafflegab may be understood by the people who use it, though there is reason to doubt it. Sometimes it seems as though they reel it off as part of a ceremonial connected with getting their pay checks—not as a means of communication. And it seems to reflect an absence of thought, instead of the contrary, at the cost of a great waste of paper and scandalous injury to the English tongue.

Of course everybody knows what bafflegab is. It's the language in which nothing is ever done because everything is "processed," where nothing is processed quickly because everything is "expedited," where nothing expedited is ever finished because it is always festation of abstruse expatiation commonly utilized for by the coiner of the word:

"Bafflegab: Multiloquence, characterized by consummate interfusion of circumlocution or periphrase, inscrutability, incognizability, or other familiar manifestation of abstruse expatation commonly utilized for promulgations implementing procrustean determinations of governmental bodies."

Did we say that Smith got his plaque because the Bellingham, Wash., Herald said he ought to have a medal? If we didn't, it's because we wish we had thought of it first.

A Swiss has invented a cigaret that lights itself, but will it do it under water?

How To Keep Well

Decreasing Thyroid Activity

The thyroid gland is placid normally but becomes a real troublemaker when it goes berserk. Overactivity of the structure leads to marked increase in body metabolism and unless the condition is brought under control the victim burns up from within and wastes away in no time.

The contrary occurs when the organ becomes sluggish; there is gain in weight and all body processes slow down. Treatment of this condition is relatively simple. An appropriate number of thyroid tablets usually will make up the deficit and dramatic recovery follows; but the overactive thyroid is like a runaway team of horses; it is difficult to handle and requires much skill and judgment.

We now have many more remedies than we had in the past but this does not mean that the physician can always select the easiest or least expensive. The choice depends upon the age of the patient, the condition of the thyroid, and whether or not complications exist. The number of plans available allow for flexibility and as a result a safe and effective method can be decided upon that is consistent with the comfort, convenience, and desires of the patient.

With medical regimens on tap, many sufferers are skeptical about operations. But surgery often is necessary and in the long run may prove to be the best bet. As a rule it is recommended and leads to cure in a high percentage when hyperthyroidism is associated with a nodular goiter. The procedure is safe as it is done today and the majority of patients remain in the hospital no longer than a week. The gland is out, further medication is unnecessary, and the physician usually is able to discharge his patient as "cured." Furthermore, surgery offers the best opportunity to determine whether or not the nodules in the gland are cancerous. This itself makes surgery extremely advantageous.

Prophylthiouracil is recommended generally in younger individuals with hyperthyroidism, especially when the size of the gland is normal or only moderately enlarged. About 75 per cent of individuals in this group can expect effective results. Should the disorder recur, one of the other methods is tried. Recently a newcomer, methimazole, was introduced and has been tried on 23 patients; the results were comparable with those obtained thru the use of prophylthiouracil.

Another remedy is radioactive iodine (I 131). This liquid is easy to administer and one dose by mouth may be sufficient. The substance finds its way into the thyroid gland and gives off radioactive rays as tho it were a miniature X-ray machine. This suppresses the activity of the gland and in time metabolism returns to normal. The method is preferred in elderly individuals and in those who are too ill to undergo surgery because the heart is affected as well as in recurring overactivity. There is no inconvenience in this procedure in the form of hospitalization, loss of work, or repeated visits to the physician.

TOMORROW: Don't let high blood pressure be your lot.

YOUNG FOR IT

D. W. writes: Could a young man of 20 have a diseased gall bladder?

REPLY

Yes. The condition is more common in the next two decades but no age is exempt. It has been known to develop in infants and oldsters.

SCIATICA TREATMENT

B. G. writes: What is the best treatment for sciatica? I have had injections but the pain is still there.

REPLY

Since the cause, in the majority of cases, stems from a disturbance in the lower back, the injections you mention usually offer only temporary relief. The best way to handle the situation is to undergo a thoro examination, including X-rays of the lower spine and a study of the reflex changes in the involved leg.

TESTS FOR HARDENING

M. L. writes: How does a doctor detect hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

Hardened vessels can be seen in the eyes by using an ophthalmoscope. By X-raying the lower extremities and chest it is possible to detect plaques of calcium in the larger blood vessels of the legs and the aorta. Feeling the pulse also offers a clew but this is not as reliable a test as was thought formerly. Indirect evidence of arteriosclerosis is obtained by studying the organs that are most likely to be involved by this process. A person with angina pectoris or coronary thrombosis serves as a good example. In more than 95 per cent of such cases, hardening of the coronary arteries is responsible. When these conditions develop, therefore, we may assume that arterioscerosis exists.

President Truman Investigates Source Of Merry-Go-Round Column On Bradley Conference; White House Orders Vigorous Probe Of This Column

Washington, D. C.
Jan. 26, 1952

Dear Daughter,

The house has seemed very empty ever since you kids left. I suppose I shouldn't call you kids anymore inasmuch as you're a grown up lady now with two sons of your own. But anyway it's been lonesome since you left. We packed up the electric train and put it in the attic till next Christmas when I hope you'll be back, and when little Drew will be able to operate it almost as much as his grandfather.

Only next time please don't fly. We almost held our breath until that plane got back to Los Angeles.

A lot of things have been happening since you left. Among others, Harry Truman has been trying to put me in jail again. Undersecretary of the Navy Whitehair tipped him off that I had written a column about a White House conference with General Bradley and he immediately blew his top.

The column had only been on the teletype to New York one hour when I began to hear about it.

The President was really mad. He stormed and raged and said he would throw me in jail. I can't begin to repeat his language, but it was pretty rough.

Finally he told General Bradley to get hold of me and kill the column.

However, when General Bradley read the column he didn't seem to think there was much wrong. He suggested only two changes, which I was glad to make.

Investigation Begins

The column was published on schedule as corrected, no military secrets were revealed, and so far I am still out of jail. But that didn't end the matter. Immediately afterward, the President ordered the FBI to make a superduper investigation of your old man, together with just about everyone I've ever talked to at the Army and Navy.

On top of this, Jim McInerney, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, (his boss, Howard McGrath doesn't like me) had the FBI contact some men who once worked for me and appealed to them to disclose my news sources. Naturally they didn't. They didn't know my sources in the first place and wouldn't have revealed 'em if they did.

The White House investigators then dug back into what I said in defense of General George Marshall when Senator McCarthy attacked him, and have been trying to find out where I got the material I used one whole year ago. I compared General Marshall's wonderful war record with McCarthy's failure to take part in any combat missions; so the investigators want to know where I got McCarthy's war record, which they say was supposed to be a complete secret.

Funny how the President now wants to protect one of his worst senatorial enemies and go after a newsman who defended his old friend Marshall. However, that's the way things are sometimes done around here these days.

However, I'm still out of jail, and if anyone has detected any pulling of punches as a result of all this, I hope my family will be the first to tell me.

Meanwhile, I went down to Reidsville, N. C., last week, to the only town where I was supposed to have spent some time in jail — aside from a short interim in a Siberian jail as the guest of the Soviet.

I don't know whether it's because a criminal always returns to the scene of a crime or whether the folks of Reidsville wanted to give their most famous alleged jailbird a home-coming reception. But anyway I went down to North Carolina and had a wonderful time.

Predawn Bath

P. W. Glidewell, the attorney who defended me against the charge of taking a sponge bath in the Southern Railroad yards at 3 a. m. after taking down a chautauqua tent, introduced me to the Reidsville Chamber of Commerce where I spoke in the evening, and we had quite a time.

A lot of things have changed about Reidsville since that first memorable occasion when I was there. And I guess a lot of things have changed about your father, too. I was 16 then, just out of high school, and no one ever dreamed I would become the bete noir of certain politicians, least of all myself.

Reidsville was just a country village then, and its chief industry was Red Jay and Black Eagle chewing tobacco. Now that same tobacco factory turns out 180 million Lucky Strikes a day, and every morning the American Tobacco Company hands Uncle Sam a check for $800,000, as its daily cigaret tax.

Judge Ira Humphries, who acquitted me for taking the bath in the railroad yards, has retired now. And the court house where I was tried has been torn down. (Incidentally, your father was never actually put in jail — just held for an hour by a very courteous cop.)

The welcoming committee drove me down to the railroad yards to try to find the spigot and the scene of the alleged crime, but we couldn't locate it. The town has changed too much.

Before The A-Bomb

In fact, it's become quite modern. There is an up-to-date Negro high school more modern than the white schools. And I saw a blue-tile community swimming pool which should make impromptu bathing much easier — and less public. I also drove by the high school grounds where we once pitched our chautauqua tent. The old school is gone now and a modern one has taken its place.

It made me feel a little old to see

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — Smart politicians hereabouts have about come to the conclusion that there is less of a joke and a teasing game about President Truman's reluctance to tell his intentions about third term than there is well-defined strategy.

This strategy is to announce before May 1 that he does not wish to run and that he would prefer if the Democratic party would choose someone else.

Then will come the cry that nobody else is available who can command the confidence of the whole party and that he himself, having made the "glorious record" which the Democratic party orators have already begun to extoll, there can be no other course but to draft him.

These smart politicians—some of them friendly and some unfriendly to Mr. Truman—point out that he is following almost exactly the course that President Franklin D. Roosevelt did in the early months of 1940—letting the reporters guess, giving no hint to any of his callers and then finally announcing that he didn't want to run but opening the door to the "draft" that finally came.

No bigger piece of hypocrisy has been invented in modern politics than that in an emergency all the existing rules of a representative system should be suspended and that, for example, the two-term tradition established by Washington and Jefferson shall be ignored because of such an emergency. The only emergency that confronts the Democratic party is the necessity of winning another election.

It is, of course, in a political sense a real emergency. If Mr. Truman deserts the officeholders—some 500,000 of them have high-income jobs—they can be removed from office in one way or another if another administration comes into power.

The argument most often made against the third term before 1940 was that no matter what the excuse—even a war emergency—once the tradition was broken would be violated again and again.

What excuse will the Democratic party give the nation if it decides to "draft" President Truman for a third term? Already a constitutional amendment has been adopted barring everybody else from a third term. The only reason that Mr. Truman himself was not barred was because of the fear that the amendment would become a political issue and adoption in Truman states would be blocked if the exemption were not made. The supporters of the amendment felt it was more important to America in the long-range future to put a third-term ban in the Constitution now than to worry about whether Mr. Truman would or would not seek the office again. Lots of them thought he would be beaten anyhow.

But Mr. Truman's tactics of silence have had a direct effect on the means by which the nomination itself will be made this year. Nobody else has dared to come out—that is, nobody in the administration camp—and build a position and encourage the election of delegates. Senator Kefauver, of Tennessee, is obviously not popular with the administration and the cool reception given his candidacy by the "regulars" is proof of the hostility that awaits anybody else who dares to do likewise without the President's consent.

It really is too late now for an orthodox race to be held inside the Democratic party. Mr. Truman says he will make his announcement before April 29—which happens to be the deadline before the Missouri primary. This has been construed to mean that he may try for nomination as a United States senator again. But it could also mean that he thinks the months of May and June afford ample time for the party organizations to choose delegates pledged to other candidates or for the "draft process" to function for him. Franklin Roosevelt kept the guessing game going almost to the last minute in 1940 and didn't allow the buildup of any rival candidate. Mr. Truman perhaps is thinking that two months' notice gives everybody concerned a better break than under the Roosevelt method.

Last year—in fact, not long after the attempt at assassination was made at Blair House in November 1950 by the Puerto Rican radicals—the tsory went all through Washington that Mrs. Truman had expressed a vehement objection against any further service by her husband in the White House. Months later the impression was indirectly confirmed by answers at press conferences at the White House that the family would prefer Mr. Truman's termination of the Presidency in January of 1953.

But now the smart politicians are saying that the President — whatever his earlier intentions have been — is changing his mind about it all and will let the Democratic party decide the issue after he makes it clear that he would prefer not to be a candidate and will not "seek" renomination.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Sleazy Business

WASHINGTON

If the President decides to run again, one thing is clear. The great issues will fade into the background, while such problems as the quality of the President's friends will occupy the foreground of the campaign. The new Congressional session is in fact preparing a regular smorgasbord table of executive malfeasance.

Take, for example, the up-coming case of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, ex-patron of Theron Lamar Caudle, ex-oil lobbyist before the Texas legislature, and ex-attorney general of the United States. In the early days of the Truman administration, Tom Clark and Postmaster General Robert Hannegan had no closer businessman-friend than Jack Frye, then president of Trans World Airlines.

Frye was popular in Washington as a generous fellow with his private plane and a generous contributor to the Democratic party. These traits failed to endear him, however, to TWA's chief stockholder, Howard Hughes, who decided, in 1946, that the company needed a new hand at the helm. But when Hughes moved to oust Frye, Clark and Hannegan hastened to his defense.

A great many million dollars of TWA notes were held by the Equitable Life Insurance Company. Accordingly, Clark and Hannegan indicated to the president of Equitable, Thomas I. Parkinson, that firing Frye would be a grave error of business judgment. Much impressed, Parkinson hastened to pass on the Clark-Hannegan advice to TWA Director Noah Dietrich and TWA General Counsel Palmer Bradley. The potential meaning, in terms of airmail contracts and decisions of the Civil Aviation Board, was only too obvious. Yet Hughes defied the politicoes and ousted Frye.

TWA Predominance Fades

Almost at once, Frye was named president of General Aniline Corporation, a firm in the hands of the Alien Property Office, and thus under Attorney General Clark's control. He holds this place still, and draws a salary of $97,000 a year from General Aniline and its subsidiary, General Dyestuff. Meanwhile, the period of TWA's predominance at the Civil Aviation Board drew to its close, and the Pan American Airways era set in a little later.

Against the vast, dark panorama of our times, this sleazy little story does not matter very much. Yet it will matter in the campaign. So too will the peculiar manifestations of Secretary John Snyder's remarkably relaxed management of the Treasury Department.

Here the alcohol tax unit is due for attention. One subject of investigation will be the intra-industry struggle of the distillers over a ruling on the use of new barrels in aging bourbon whisky. For mysterious reasons, the ruling meant millions of dollars of profit and loss to various distilling companies. The reported result was a golden flow of contributions to the Democratic National Committee—so much simpler an approach to such problems than long arguments in hearings. The investigators also want to know why at least one official of alcohol tax unit, now retired, has seemingly been given highly profitable "distributorships" of popular brands of drinkables by grateful distilling companies.

By the same token, the Commodity Credit Corporation is due for a going over. So is the Alien Property Office (although this investigation is likely to be a trifle uninteresting, since the head of the office, Harold Baynton, is actually an appointee of the chief investigator, Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada). And just to round out the list, there will be a sterner inquiry into the doings at War Assets, where Caudle's great friend, Frank Nathan, made a nice profit.

Meanwhile, the alleged softness-towards communism issue will also be inflated at a great rate. The President's own change in loyalty rules has already caused John S. Service to be dismissed from the State Department, after suffering octuple jeopardy, and for indiscretion rather than disloyalty. It is an open secret that at least one more unfortunate State Department official is to become a victim of this same change of rules. Senator McCarran's internal security subcommittee is also still in business, with the same equipment of witnesses ready to mass produce charges of treason on the basis of hearsay recollection 10 years after the event. And the case of Ambassador Philip Jessup still impends and will almost surely be lost.

It is a grave thing, that our people have half-forgotten that an American citizen has a prescriptive right to be considered innocent until proven guilty. Yet this forgetfulness must partly be laid to the failure of the President and Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson to fight the invasion of citizen's liberties right down the line. And if the corruption issue has substance, it is because the President has trusted some pretty rotten and some pretty incompetent people.

By any reasonable standard, it matters a great dead less whether there are Communist clerks in the State Department, or whether Frank Nathan made a fast buck, than whether the United States survives. But if the President runs again, the great issues of survival will be forgotten, and the national political debate will stay right down in the sewer, where it is today.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Universal Military Service

The organization of a garrison state involves social and political consequences and the diversion of men from their normal activities to military participation. Shifting youth from schools to camps, from free activities to regimented disciplines, during the early years of their lives, can produce permanent psychological reactions.

The present program for universal military service is an extraordinarily involved one, from which only the mentally and physically defective will be freed. All your men, 18½ years of age, fresh out of high school, are to be given a six months' pilot course in universal military training.

About 1,200,000 come of age, that is 18½ years old, each year. Of this number, it is estimated that 400,000 will be unfit, leaving 800,000 for this program. Only the psysically and mentally unfit, according to Pentagon standards, will be able to proceed directly from high school to college with some assurance of remaining there.

After a young man has served for six months in this pilot course, he will be put into the active reserve for one year and a half. This means that the young man might begin a course at college, but could be interrupted at any time by being called to replace American troops in Korea, Malaya, Burma or Europe, without regard to his personal future. As, except in Korea, our troops mostly mark time, this enforced idleness, in uniform, is of great concern to those who fear its social consequences.

At any rate, according to this program, few ambitious young men would be able to enter college before they are 20 or 21 years of age. They would be 24 or 25 years old before they got their Bachelor's degree. Those who require graduate work, such as doctors, lawyers, engineers, technicians, would be close to 30 before they would be graduated.

Experience shows that many in the military services, out of boredom and loneliness, marry, often under circumstances and to persons that can only be regarded as unfortunate. This raises moral problems which permanently affect our society.

In the past, our youth were used in this way to defend their country for comparatively short periods of great national peril. This, however, is planned to be a permanent program, to be followed in peace as well as in war. Further, after a young man has given his two years to this service, he is to be put into the inactive reserve for a period of six years, the President apparently to have the right to shift individuals from the inactive to the active reserve at will.

Smart boys, that is, those who are brilliant in their marks, will be able to find ways to get an education. In this country, however, it has been experience that the most useful men are not always those who have been exceptionally smart as boys. The large reservoir of college graduates has been drawn upon to produce competent persons to do the multitude of tasks essential in an industrial society.

Already, as a consequence of World War II, this country is short of engineers, which is a serious matter for the future. Shortages also appear in many fields of scholarship in which theoretical work is done, thus forming the basis for our amazing success in technical fields. Atomic fission is a product of the classroom and college laboratory as it is of engineering and industrial skill.

Recently, a number of religious leaders came to Washington for one of those orientation sessions which have become so customary since the war. This conference was called to consider the character guidance program for our troops.

UMT arose only in question time and was not on the agenda among the clergymen and religious leaders present. These men have devoted their lives to moral issues and have had to deal with young people through the various stages of development. Also, some had even served as chaplains.

So far as I can learn, while the clergy were deeply moved by the broad nature of the discussion of moral problems, which, at this conference, transcended religious differences, many of them felt that UMT imperils both the young man and the country and is not wise for such a society as ours. It could defeat our civilization by making it militaristic. Such militarism, including universal military service, had devastating effects on Germany and Japan, both of which employed it, in one form or another.

Moral leaders, particularly the clergy, cannot concern themselves only with immediate, pressing political problems. Their responsibility is to think in terms of civilization and the relationship of man to it.

This is a subject that requires more than casual discussion and might well be made a campaign issue. Stalin is becoming more troublesome, in our domestic matters, than Hitler ever was.

Hazel Sharon Becomes Bride Of Douglas Bernard Durbin

Miss Catherine Hazel Sharon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Sharon, 1528 Shade's Lane, became the bride of Douglas Bernard Durbin, son of Mrs. Augusta Durbin, 65 Offutt Street, Friday.

The double ring wedding ceremony was solemnized at 6 p. m., in Emmanual Methodist Church with Rev. Kenneth Grove officiating.

Miss Ellen Durbin, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. Stephen Sharon, brother of the bride, served as Mr. Durbin's best man.

The bride wore a light blue satin gown, trimmed with black velvet. With it she had black accessories and an orchid corsage completed her costume.

Her maid of honor's costume was a dark blue crepe, and she had a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Durbin both attended Fort Hill High School. He is employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Sharon entertained with a reception at their home in honor of their daughter and her bridal party. The bridal motif was carried out in the tiered wedding cake ornamented with a miniature bride and bridegroom, centering the table.

Attending the reception were Rev. Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Durbin, Ellen Durbin, Francis Durbin, Mary Fay Sharon, Walter Bussard, Dorothy Durbin, Harvey Sharon, Mrs. Augusta Durbin, Gary Durbin, and June Durbin.

The couple plan to reside in Cumberland after a wedding trip to Wheeling, W. Va., and other surrounding cities.

Duo Club Programs Suggested

Ideas for using the talents of the members and their friends to promote evenings of fun, fellowship and knowledge helpful to home and family builders were suggested at the meeting of the Presbyterian Duo Club meeting. The new officers held the first executive session Sunday evening in the manse, 827 Buckingham Road.

Plans for the February 22 gathering will be kept a secret. Members are asked to bring along with them an extra suit of clothes and all their enemies. Mr. and Mrs. William H. Harrison, program chairmen, will work out details with the committee February 3.

Also discussed at the meeting were ways in which membership could be increased both from within the church and those moving into the community. No age limit is set and all young couples are welcome. Mr. and Mrs. George Rushlein are chairmen of the committee and report activities are being planned for the opening of the meeting to promote the interest of newcomers.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koegel were tentatively appointed to the sunshine committee, and Mrs. Peter W. Smith was named publicity chairman. A social hour concluded the evening with Mrs. Winsheimer presiding at the dining table.

Others present were Mr. and Mrs. James R. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Black, Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Shrout and Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Bell.

Memorial Hospital benefit party will be at 8 tonight at the Masonic Temple.

ANN FRANCES WHITING

With DDU In Germany

Miss Ann Frances Whiting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Brooke Whiting, 632 Washington Street, arrived in Germany yesterday, where she will work at the headquarters of the Army of Occupation.

She will be with the Documents Disposal Unit for the next two years, at Frankfurt-on-Main.

Whitworth Will Ask Probe In State Yacht Disposition

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., (R-Allegany) announced yesterday he will request an investigation ofthe action taken by the Board of Public Works and Arthur H. Brice, head of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries in connection with the failure to dispose of the Maryland state yacht, "Potomac."

Whitworth said the mandate of the General Assembly under Joint Resolution No. 10 of the Acts of 1951 was clear in calling for the state to dispose of the vessel due to the heavy expenditure in keeping it operating.

"Certain public officials have been giving lip service for economy and people of Maryland, yet by their actions have recently decided to keep the Yacht Potomac operating at a cost of $60,955 to the taxpayers", Whitworth declared.

"This cost is hidden in the Tidewater Fisheries budget under the title "Oyster Propagation", he added.

Salaried Crew Of 18

"At the hearing on the resolution before the House Ways and Means committee in the 1951 session, Arthur Brice testified that the yacht has proven of very little practical use to the department either in law enforcement or conservation purposes and was used mostly for social purposes", Whitworth charged.

The vessel has a salaried crew of 18 persons, who eat three meals per day on the vessel which is seldom out of port, Delegate Whitworth recounted.

"This is a lot of money for social purposes, especially when the burden on the Maryland taxpayer is so heavy. If we expect economy nationally we must start locally and the General Assembly recognized this foolish expenditure of money when it passed the joint resolution directing the State Board of Public Works to dispose of the yacht, if a satisfactory price could be obtained for it", Whitworth stated.

"I am bringing this up in the legislature next month because Arthur Brice has announced to the press that the yacht will be retained, and the public thus will still be required to pay $60,955 for social purposes of the Fisheries Department. The defor lightening the tax burden of the partment should have as its main purpose the preservation of our great seafood industry and the propagation of oysters", Whitworth pointed out.

The total budget of the Fisheries Department for the 1952 fiscal year is $680,634 and of this $60,955 is for social purposes. This sum is 10 per cent of the total budget, Whitworth said.

"Many people on the Eastern Shore of Maryland realize the foolishness of this expenditure and would like to see the money go into oyster conservation. It would be much better to allow the Executive Department an allowance for a small motor launch for social purposes than to hide the enormous expense of the present vessel in the Fisheries Department budget" Whitworth concluded.

Council Given 1951 Report By Housing Group

The second of three local housing projects should be advertised for bids within the next 90 days, the Housing authority of Cumberland said yesterday in its annual report to the Mayor and Council.

Title work for the 30-unit project has been completed, the report states, and a site along Frederick Street, immediately south of Carver High School, selected. Purchases of necessary land should be consummated within 60 days but approval of the site by the Board of Zoning Appeals must be received.

The report listed a progress report on the 125-unit Mapleside project, first of the three, noting through pictures development made on the $1,138,000 undertaking.

The third and last project of 145 units has been recommended for a site in South View Addition, the report continues, adjacent to the Mapleside units.

School, utility and transportation facilities along with accessibility were strong recommendations for the third site, the report said, adding that the development program should be completed during this year.

In a financial statement, the Authority notes total development costs to December 31 of $706,364.92.

Members of the Authority are William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman, Earle Bracey, vice chairman, F. Patrick Allender, Rev. H. M. Richardson, and Paul D. Pickens, the last named appointed by the council last week to fill the term of the late Robert L. Stallings.

James B. Raines is executive director; William Long, bookkeeper and accountant; and Mrs. Alma Hinkle, tenant selection supervisor. Thomas B. Finan is attorney to the Authority.

The Authority said it has been receiving applications for tenancy at the projects and all are being carefully screened. Rules governing eligibility have been adopted and approved by the Public Housing Authority.

The Authority met some delay in its plans, the report said, because of housing legislation introduced in Congress and the abandonment of the Philadelphia field office of the PHA. The local Authority had been under Philadelphia jurisdiction of the Public Housing Administration but is now connected with the New York office.

The council was thanked for its cooperation with the Authority.

The group will have lunch and dinner at the Washington Bible Institute and will take a sightseeing tour of the capital.

State Health Dept. Requests Improvements At City Dump

A more satisfactory method of refuse disposal has been recommended for the city by the Maryland Department of Health.

In addition the department recommended to the Mayor and Council in a letter yesterday morning that:

(1) The feeding of hogs and other animals on garbage at the dump must be stopped; and

(2) Steps be taken to control the rodent population at the dump, and that spraying with insecticide be practiced.

Referred To Health Unit

George L. Hall, chief of the Division of Sanitary Engineering, made the recommendations. They were referred to the Health Department by council.

Hall said several visits were made in the past year to the dump on Oldtown Road, and added that because of its location not many complaints are received.

"The operator at the dump maintains and allows to feed on the dump a large number of hogs and fowl. The feeding of animals used for food for human beings on open dumps is not a good public health practice. Garbage is the source of numerous diseases of the animals themselves and also several diseases of man, particularly trichinosis, which can be traced to this practice," Hall explained.

"The dump also provides a home for a large rodent population and in the summer months many insects, including flies, breed at such places. Other nuisance conditions associated with such a dump are odors and smoke.

"We recommend that the city consider the establishment of a more satisfactory method of refuse disposal, either by incineration or sanitary land-fill. If this cannot be done, we strongly recommend that steps be taken to control the rodent population existing at the present dump by poisoning and that spraying with insecticide be practiced.

"The feeding of hogs and other animals should be discontinued immediately and not allowed under any circumstances," Hall's report concluded.

State Health Dept. Requests Improvements At City Dump

A more satisfactory method of refuse disposal has been recommended for the city by the Maryland Department of Health.

In addition the department recommended to the Mayor and Council in a letter yesterday morning that:

(1) The feeding of hogs and other animals on garbage at the dump must be stopped; and

(2) Steps be taken to control the rodent population at the dump, and that spraying with insecticide be practiced.

Referred To Health Unit

George L. Hall, chief of the Division of Sanitary Engineering, made the recommendations. They were referred to the Health Department by council.

Hall said several visits were made in the past year to the dump on Oldtown Road, and added that because of its location not many complaints are received.

"The operator at the dump maintains and allows to feed on the dump a large number of hogs and fowl. The feeding of animals used for food for human beings on open dumps is not a good public health practice. Garbage is the source of numerous diseases of the animals themselves and also several diseases of man, particularly trichinosis, which can be traced to this practice," Hall explained.

"The dump also provides a home for a large rodent population and in the summer months many insects, including flies, breed at such places. Other nuisance conditions associated with such a dump are odors and smoke.

"We recommend that the city consider the establishment of a more satisfactory method of refuse disposal, either by incineration or sanitary land-fill. If this cannot be done, we strongly recommend that steps be taken to control the rodent population existing at the present dump by poisoning and that spraying with insecticide be practiced.

"The feeding of hogs and other animals should be discontinued immediately and not allowed under any circumstances," Hall's report concluded.

Whitworth Will Ask Probe In State Yacht Disposition

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., (R-Allegany) announced yesterday he will request an investigation ofthe action taken by the Board of Public Works and Arthur H. Brice, head of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries in connection with the failure to dispose of the Maryland state yacht, "Potomac."

Whitworth said the mandate of the General Assembly under Joint Resolution No. 10 of the Acts of 1951 was clear in calling for the state to dispose of the vessel due to the heavy expenditure in keeping it operating.

"Certain public officials have been giving lip service for economy and people of Maryland, yet by their actions have recently decided to keep the Yacht Potomac operating at a cost of $60,955 to the taxpayers", Whitworth declared.

"This cost is hidden in the Tidewater Fisheries budget under the title "Oyster Propagation", he added.

Salaried Crew Of 18

"At the hearing on the resolution before the House Ways and Means committee in the 1951 session, Arthur Brice testified that the yacht has proven of very little practical use to the department either in law enforcement or conservation purposes and was used mostly for social purposes", Whitworth charged.

The vessel has a salaried crew of 18 persons, who eat three meals per day on the vessel which is seldom out of port, Delegate Whitworth recounted.

"This is a lot of money for social purposes, especially when the burden on the Maryland taxpayer is so heavy. If we expect economy nationally we must start locally and the General Assembly recognized this foolish expenditure of money when it passed the joint resolution directing the State Board of Public Works to dispose of the yacht, if a satisfactory price could be obtained for it", Whitworth stated.

"I am bringing this up in the legislature next month because Arthur Brice has announced to the press that the yacht will be retained, and the public thus will still be required to pay $60,955 for social purposes of the Fisheries Department. The defor lightening the tax burden of the partment should have as its main purpose the preservation of our great seafood industry and the propagation of oysters", Whitworth pointed out.

The total budget of the Fisheries Department for the 1952 fiscal year is $680,634 and of this $60,955 is for social purposes. This sum is 10 per cent of the total budget, Whitworth said.

"Many people on the Eastern Shore of Maryland realize the foolishness of this expenditure and would like to see the money go into oyster conservation. It would be much better to allow the Executive Department an allowance for a small motor launch for social purposes than to hide the enormous expense of the present vessel in the Fisheries Department budget" Whitworth concluded.

Council Given 1951 Report By Housing Group

The second of three local housing projects should be advertised for bids within the next 90 days, the Housing authority of Cumberland said yesterday in its annual report to the Mayor and Council.

Title work for the 30-unit project has been completed, the report states, and a site along Frederick Street, immediately south of Carver High School, selected. Purchases of necessary land should be consummated within 60 days but approval of the site by the Board of Zoning Appeals must be received.

The report listed a progress report on the 125-unit Mapleside project, first of the three, noting through pictures development made on the $1,138,000 undertaking.

The third and last project of 145 units has been recommended for a site in South View Addition, the report continues, adjacent to the Mapleside units.

School, utility and transportation facilities along with accessibility were strong recommendations for the third site, the report said, adding that the development program should be completed during this year.

In a financial statement, the Authority notes total development costs to December 31 of $706,364.92.

Members of the Authority are William L. Wilson, Jr., chairman, Earle Bracey, vice chairman, F. Patrick Allender, Rev. H. M. Richardson, and Paul D. Pickens, the last named appointed by the council last week to fill the term of the late Robert L. Stallings.

James B. Raines is executive director; William Long, bookkeeper and accountant; and Mrs. Alma Hinkle, tenant selection supervisor. Thomas B. Finan is attorney to the Authority.

The Authority said it has been receiving applications for tenancy at the projects and all are being carefully screened. Rules governing eligibility have been adopted and approved by the Public Housing Authority.

The Authority met some delay in its plans, the report said, because of housing legislation introduced in Congress and the abandonment of the Philadelphia field office of the PHA. The local Authority had been under Philadelphia jurisdiction of the Public Housing Administration but is now connected with the New York office.

The council was thanked for its cooperation with the Authority.

Fort Hill, LaSalle Clash Tonight; AHS Invades Keyser

Explorers Are Hosts In City Title Contest

Sentinels Seek Sweep Of Series; Campers Streak On The Line

LaSalle's Explorers host the Fort Hill High Sentinels tonight at 8 o'clock on the SS. Peter and Paul gym in the second clash between the city rivals and the winner of the contest will momentarily take the lead in the three-cornered race for the city championship.

It will be the second of three city games to be played within the period of eight days beginning with last Friday's Allegany-Fort Hill meeting at Campobello and ending next Friday with LaSalle's invasion of the Alco lair.

Sentinels Won First

Fort Hill won the initial meeting with Coach Art Slocum's Explorers at Fort Hill by the decisive score of 54 to 35 and the Centre Street school team will be seeking revenge. The Sentinels' first decision marked the seventh straight time Fort Hill has turned back LaSalle on the basketball court since 1947-48.

Bob Pence and Clifton Van Roby are scheduled to officiate the important contest in which Fort Hill will strive for its ninth victory in 11 starts and LaSalle will be seeking its 12th in 16 games.

All seats at the SS. Peter and Paul gym have been reserved for tonight's battle and LaSalle school officials said last night patrons holding seats in Sections C and D of the gym should use the entrance near Smallwood Street to facilitate easier seating.

Another slam-bang toss-up battle is expected when Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers' Allegany Campers invade Keyser to collide head-on with John Shelton's Golden Tornado. The Campers edged Keyser in the initial meeting of the two teams in a 38-36 overtime thriller at Campobello.

Keyser has an 8-2 mark for the season while Allegany has won eight and lost three and currently is sporting a six-game winning streak. Both teams are leading their respective leagues, the Alco quint on top in the WMI with a 5-0 record and Keyser undefeated in Potomac Valley Conference competition with an 8-0 mark. All Western Maryland Interscholastic League teams will be idle in loop engagements this week with the exception of the Beall-Fort Hill encounter Thursday, a playoff of a previously postponed contest.

With Keyser playing a non-conference contest second-place Petersburg heads a list of four PVC games tonight by traveling to Circleville to seek its seventh loop victory in eight starts. The Vikings' only conference loss is a 64-62 defeat at the hands of Keyser.

Other Contests Listed

Other Valley games include West Virginia School for Deaf at Romney, Moorefield at Fort Ashby and Berkeley Springs at Wardensville.

Another WMI member, Bruce High, will invade Piedmont to battle Coach William "Huck" Mier's Lions. It will be the first meeting of the two teams this season. Piedmont holds verdicts over Barton twice and split with Beall while Coach Augie Elchhorn's Westernporters have been returned the winners over both in single contests. Beall and Central of the WMI circuit will be idle tonight.

Other contests listed tonight:

Schellsburg at Hyndman.

Franklin at Harman.

Thomas at Terra Alta.

Parsons at Davis.

St. Joseph's (Martinsburg) at Paw Paw.

Norman Hayes Scores Decision Over Jake LaMotta

BOSTON, Jan. 28 (INS)—Norman Hayes of Roxbury, was awarded a split 10-round decision over former middleweight champion Jake LaMotta of Bronx, N. Y., tonight at Boston Garden.

A near sellout crowd of 12,915 booed the decision of the thrilling bout that saw both fighters battle toe-to-toe in several rounds.

It was Referee Mel Manning's 99 points for Hayes to 93 for LaMotta that gave the decision to the young colored battler.

Fuchs To Appear In Garden Feb. 9

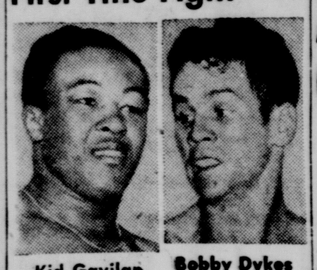
NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP) — Jim Fuchs, world record holder in the shot put, will make his 1952 debut in the annual New York Athletic Club games Feb. 9 at Madison Square Garden.

Ed Swinburne, chairman of athletics at NYAC, announced Fuchs' entry today.

Martinez Wins KO

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Lavinnie Martinez, 149 Paterson, N. J., knocked out Mario Moreno, 147½, Havana, Cuba, in 56 seconds of the sixth round of the feature bout at the St. Nicholas Arena tonight. The fight was scheduled for eight rounds.

Meet In Florida's First Title Fight



Kid Gavilan Bobby Dykes

AP Newsfeatures

MIAMI, Fla.,—The honor of taking part in Florida's first legalized championship fight will go to Kid Gavilan and Bobby Dykes.

They meet in Miami Stadium, Monday, Feb. 4, for the world's welterweight title. It will be Gavilan's second title defense. He won the crown by beating Johnny Bratton last May and defended it by taking an unpopular split decision against Billy Graham last August.

The bout figures to draw well because Gavilan comes from Cuba and Dykes, though the underdog, has a huge following here. Gavilan will get 37½ per cent of the gate, Dykes 17½ per cent.

Moore Favored To Beat Johnson

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 28 (AP) —Archie Moore, 36-year-old light heavyweight title contender, will be a 7-5 favorite over 23-year-old Harold Johnson of Philadelphia tomorrow night in their 10-round main event at the sports arena here.

Moore has won eight straight here, and Johnson, who upset the perennial contender in a 10-rounder in Milwaukee last month, will be making his first appearance in Toledo. He has been beaten only three times in five years—two decisions to Moore and a TKO to Jersey Jo Walcott.

Dodgers Sign Lease For Vero Beach

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (INS)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today signed a 21-year lease to use Vero Beach, Fla., as their spring training base.

President Walter F. O'Malley said the contract with Vero Beach gives the Brooks an option to renew when the lease expires.

Under the agreement, the Dodgers have the right to swap training bases with other major league teams for the period of one year.

McGregor Wins Aussie Tennis Championship

Upsets Sedgman In 4-Set Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 28 (AP) —Ken McGregor abandoned his role of innocent bystander in the hectic goings-on of the Australian tennis season today long enough to accomplish the biggest court upset of the year. McGregor, a big youngster with a potent net game, soundly whipped Frank Sedgman, 7-5, 12-10, 2-6, 6-2, in the final for the Australian championship.

Like Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., who beat him in the final last year, McGregor was by-passed by his Davis Cup team selectors in picking singles players for the challenge round this year. Today's victory not only gave substance to the contention that Ken should have been chosen over Mervyn Rose for the second singles berth with Sedgman but it showed that McGregor's semi-final triumph over Saviett was not a fluke.

Sedgman, rated as the world's No. 1 player, appeared far off his usual form. He failed to hold leads of 5-2 in the first set and 3-0 in the second and wasn't even a threat in the fourth and final set.

The crowd of about 6,500 gave McGregor a standing ovation as he closed out the match.

Sedgman's attacking game was in evidence only in the third set, which he won easily. The rest of the time McGregor, charging the net and hitting with great power and accuracy, simply overpowered his doubles partner.

It was the first Australian championship for McGregor, who had reached the final round three times.

Dudley Quits Pro Football

Resigns As Active Player For 'Skins

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Bill Dudley, 30-year-old halfback for the Washington Redskins, today announced that he is quitting as an active player.

Dudley has been mentioned as a possible backfield coach for the Pittsburgh Steelers. Today's action would permit him to go with the Steelers if they want him and if he decided to coach.

In resigning, Dudley told George Preston Marshall, Redskin owner, that he isn't sure whether he wants to coach. He runs a successful insurance business in Lynchburg, Va.

Although Dudley weighed but 175 pounds, he put in eight successful years in the National Football League — three with the Steelers, three with the Detroit Lions and two with the Redskins.

He is a graduate of the University of Virginia.

Dudley twice led the league in ground gaining when he was with the Steelers. He was the Redskins' regular left halfback, and did all their extra point and field goal kicking as well as most of their punting.

NBA Requests New York To Join In Ranks

Commends Chairman For Recent Stands

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 28—(AP)—The National Boxing Association today gave Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, a pat on the back for getting tough with Jersey Joe Walcott and once again asked New York to join the NBA ranks.

In a statement by NBA Commissioner Abe Greene, issued in conjunction with NBA President Dave Rochon and Executive Secretary Harvey Miller, New York was urged to join a fight to (1) curb common evils and (2) promote favorable activities.

Christenberry's action in ordering Walcott to agree by Feb. 5 for a defense of his crown was called the "best advance in many years in the move to coordinate relations of all the boxing commissioners of the country." The NBA has set March 15 as the deadline for Walcott.

"New York's willingness to go along with a policy of forcing champions to defend their titles within six-month periods makes it possible for a united front in that direction," the statement continued.

Greene pointed out that the NBA has hesitated to enforce the fight-or-else dictum only because it had no desire to invite the return of dual championships.

"For us to remove title recognition was to invite contrary action by New York State," he wrote. "Now the door is opened to a closer association xxx and since Commissioner Christenberry has abandoned New York's traditional attitude of acting contrary to every move made by NBA, it would seem that now is the time for the two agencies to act in union."

Greene also favored requiring contenders to meet the same obligations as champs to avoid the evils of jockeying and juggling for position.

"Under our system of rating," he wrote, "we had listed Harry Matthews and Archie Moore as logical contenders for the light heavyweight championship, and they were so universally recognized. If we view boxing as a sport and not as a cash register, then the question of which would draw more at the gate with the champion is not the issue. Why shouldn't Matthews and Moore have fought it out for the right to box Joey Maxim for the title?

Fort Hill, LaSalle Clash Tonight; AHS Invades Keyser

Sentinels Seek Sweep Of Series; Campers Streak On The Line

LaSalle's Explorers host the Fort Hill High Sentinels tonight at 8 o'clock on the SS. Peter and Paul gym in the second clash between the city rivals and the winner of the contest will momentarily take the lead in the three-cornered race for the city championship.

It will be the second of three city games to be played within the period of eight days beginning with last Friday's Allegany-Fort Hill meeting at Campobello and ending next Friday with LaSalle's invasion of the Alco lair.

Sentinels Won First

Fort Hill won the initial meeting with Coach Art Slocum's Explorers at Fort Hill by the decisive score of 54 to 35 and the Centre Street school team will be seeking revenge. The Sentinels' first decision marked the seventh straight time Fort Hill has turned back LaSalle on the basketball court since 1947-48.

Bob Pence and Clifton Van Roby are scheduled to officiate the important contest in which Fort Hill will strive for its ninth victory in 11 starts and LaSalle will be seeking its 12th in 16 games.

All seats at the SS. Peter and Paul gym have been reserved for tonight's battle and LaSalle school officials said last night patrons holding seats in Sections C and D of the gym should use the entrance near Smallwood Street to facilitate easier seating.

Another slam-bang toss-up battle is expected when Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers' Allegany Campers invade Keyser to collide head-on with John Shelton's Golden Tornado. The Campers edged Keyser in the initial meeting of the two teams in a 38-36 overtime thriller at Campobello.

Keyser has an 8-2 mark for the season while Allegany has won eight and lost three and currently is sporting a six-game winning streak. Both teams are leading their respective leagues, the Alco quint on top in the WMI with a 5-0 record and Keyser undefeated in Potomac Valley Conference competition with an 8-0 mark. All Western Maryland Interscholastic League teams will be idle in loop engagements this week with the exception of the Beall-Fort Hill encounter Thursday, a playoff of a previously postponed contest.

With Keyser playing a non-conference contest second-place Petersburg heads a list of four PVC games tonight by traveling to Circleville to seek its seventh loop victory in eight starts. The Vikings' only conference loss is a 64-62 defeat at the hands of Keyser.

Other Contests Listed

Other Valley games include West Virginia School for Deaf at Romney, Moorefield at Fort Ashby and Berkeley Springs at Wardensville.

Another WMI member, Bruce High, will invade Piedmont to battle Coach William "Huck" Mier's Lions. It will be the first meeting of the two teams this season. Piedmont holds verdicts over Barton twice and split with Beall while Coach Augie Elchhorn's Westernporters have been returned the winners over both in single contests. Beall and Central of the WMI circuit will be idle tonight.

Other contests listed tonight:
Schellsburg at Hyndman.
Franklin at Harman.
Thomas at Terra Alta.
Parsons at Davis.
St. Joseph's (Martinsburg) at Paw Paw.

Norman Hayes Scores Decision Over Jake LaMotta

BOSTON, Jan. 28 (INS)—Norman Hayes of Roxbury, was awarded a split 10-round decision over former middleweight champion Jake LaMotta of Bronx, N. Y., tonight at Boston Garden.

A near sellout crowd of 12,915 booed the decision of the thrilling bout that saw both fighters battle toe-to-toe in several rounds.

It was Referee Mel Manning's 99 points for Hayes to 93 for LaMotta that gave the decision to the young colored battler.

In the co-feature, Tommy Collins, South End, New England featherweight champion, repeated his knockout over Joey Cam of East Boston, when he chilled the former title holder in 2:45 of the second round of a 12-round bout.

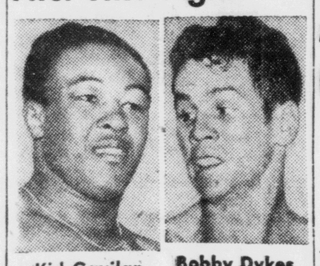
Meet In Florida's First Title Fight



Kid Gavilan — Bobby Dykes

AP Newsfeatures

MIAMI, Fla.,—The honor of taking part in Florida's first legalized championship fight will go to Kid Gavilan and Bobby Dykes.

They meet in Miami Stadium, Monday, Feb. 4, for the world's welterweight title. It will be Gavilan's second title defense. He won the crown by beating Johnny Bratton last May and defended it by taking an unpopular split decision against Billy Graham last August.

The bout figures to draw well because Gavilan comes from Cuba and Dykes, though the underdog, has a huge following here. Gavilan will get 37½ per cent of the gate, Dykes 17½ per cent.

McGregor Wins Aussie Tennis Championship

Upsets Sedgman In 4-Set Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 28 (AP) —Ken McGregor abandoned his role of innocent bystander in the hectic goings-on of the Australian tennis season today long enough to accomplish the biggest court upset of the year. McGregor, a big youngster with a potent net game, soundly whipped Frank Sedgman, 7-5, 12-10, 2-6, 6-2, in the final for the Australian championship.

Like Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., who beat him in the final last year, McGregor was by-passed by his Davis Cup team selectors in picking singles players for the challenge round this year. Today's victory not only gave substance to the contention that Ken should have been chosen over Mervyn Rose for the second singles berth with Sedgman but it showed that McGregor's semi-final triumph over Saviett was not a fluke.

Sedgman, rated as the world's No. 1 player, appeared far off his usual form. He failed to hold leads of 5-2 in the first set and 3-0 in the second and wasn't even a threat in the fourth and final set.

The crowd of about 6,500 gave McGregor a standing ovation as he closed out the match.

Sedgman's attacking game was in evidence only in the third set, which he won easily. The rest of the time McGregor, charging the net and hitting with great power and accuracy, simply overpowered his doubles partner.

It was the first Australian championship for McGregor, who had reached the final round three times.

Resigns As Active Player For 'Skins

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 (AP)—Bill Dudley, 30-year-old halfback for the Washington Redskins, today announced that he is quitting as an active player.

Dudley has been mentioned as a possible backfield coach for the Pittsburgh Steelers. Today's action would permit him to go with the Steelers if they want him and if he decided to coach.

In resigning, Dudley told George Preston Marshall, Redskin owner, that he isn't sure whether he wants to coach. He runs a successful insurance business in Lynchburg, Va.

Although Dudley weighed but 175 pounds, he put in eight successful years in the National Football League — three with the Steelers, three with the Detroit Lions and two with the Redskins.

He is a graduate of the University of Virginia.

Dudley twice led the league in ground gaining when he was with the Steelers. He was the Redskins' regular left halfback, and did all their extra point and field goal kicking as well as most of their punting.

NBA Requests New York To Join In Ranks

Commends Chairman For Recent Stands

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 28—(AP)—The National Boxing Association today gave Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, a pat on the back for getting tough with Jersey Joe Walcott and once again asked New York to join the NBA ranks.

In a statement by NBA Commissioner Abe Greene, issued in conjunction with NBA President Dave Rochon and Executive Secretary Harvey Miller, New York was urged to join a fight to (1) curb common evils and (2) promote favorable activities.

Christenberry's action in ordering Walcott to agree by Feb. 5 for a defense of his crown was called the "best advance in many years in the move to coordinate relations of all the boxing commissioners of the country." The NBA has set March 15 as the deadline for Walcott.

"New York's willingness to go along with a policy of forcing champions to defend their titles within six-month periods makes it possible for a united front in that direction," the statement continued.

Greene pointed out that the NBA has hesitated to enforce the fight-or-else dictum only because it had no desire to invite the return of dual championships.

"For us to remove title recognition was to invite contrary action by New York State," he wrote. "Now the door is opened to a closer association xxx and since Commissioner Christenberry has abandoned New York's traditional attitude of acting contrary to every move made by NBA, it would seem that now is the time for the two agencies to act in union."

Greene also favored requiring contenders to meet the same obligations as champs to avoid the evils of jockeying and juggling for position.

"Under our system of rating," he wrote, "we had listed Harry Matthews and Archie Moore as logical contenders for the light heavyweight championship, and they were so universally recognized. If we view boxing as a sport and not as a cash register, then the question of which would draw more at the gate with the champion is not the issue. Why shouldn't Matthews and Moore have fought it out for the right to box Joey Maxim for the title?

Fort Hill, LaSalle Clash Tonight; AHS Invades Keyser

Sentinels Seek Sweep Of Series; Campers Streak On The Line

LaSalle's Explorers host the Fort Hill High Sentinels tonight at 8 o'clock on the SS. Peter and Paul gym in the second clash between the city rivals and the winner of the contest will momentarily take the lead in the three-cornered race for the city championship.

It will be the second of three city games to be played within the period of eight days beginning with last Friday's Allegany-Fort Hill meeting at Campobello and ending next Friday with LaSalle's invasion of the Alco lair.

Sentinels Won First

Fort Hill won the initial meeting with Coach Art Slocum's Explorers at Fort Hill by the decisive score of 54 to 35 and the Centre Street school team will be seeking revenge. The Sentinels' first decision marked the seventh straight time Fort Hill has turned back LaSalle on the basketball court since 1947-48.

Bob Pence and Clifton Van Roby are scheduled to officiate the important contest in which Fort Hill will strive for its ninth victory in 11 starts and LaSalle will be seeking its 12th in 16 games.

All seats at the SS. Peter and Paul gym have been reserved for tonight's battle and LaSalle school officials said last night patrons holding seats in Sections C and D of the gym should use the entrance near Smallwood Street to facilitate easier seating.

Another slam-bang toss-up battle is expected when Coach Walter L. "Bill" Bowers' Allegany Campers invade Keyser to collide head-on with John Shelton's Golden Tornado. The Campers edged Keyser in the initial meeting of the two teams in a 38-36 overtime thriller at Campobello.

Keyser has an 8-2 mark for the season while Allegany has won eight and lost three and currently is sporting a six-game winning streak. Both teams are leading their respective leagues, the Alco quint on top in the WMI with a 5-0 record and Keyser undefeated in Potomac Valley Conference competition with an 8-0 mark. All Western Maryland Interscholastic League teams will be idle in loop engagements this week with the exception of the Beall-Fort Hill encounter Thursday, a playoff of a previously postponed contest.

With Keyser playing a non-conference contest second-place Petersburg heads a list of four PVC games tonight by traveling to Circleville to seek its seventh loop victory in eight starts. The Vikings' only conference loss is a 64-62 defeat at the hands of Keyser.

Other Contests Listed

Other Valley games include West Virginia School for Deaf at Romney, Moorefield at Fort Ashby and Berkeley Springs at Wardensville.

Another WMI member, Bruce High, will invade Piedmont to battle Coach William "Huck" Mier's Lions. It will be the first meeting of the two teams this season. Piedmont holds verdicts over Barton twice and split with Beall while Coach Augie Eichhorn's Westernporters have been returned the winners over both in single contests. Beall and Central of the WMI circuit will be idle tonight.

Other contests listed tonight:

Schellsburg at Hyndman.

Franklin at Harman.

Thomas at Terra Alta.

Parsons at Davis.

St. Joseph's (Martinsburg) at Paw Paw.

Norman Hayes Scores Decision Over Jake LaMotta

BOSTON, Jan. 28 (INS)—Norman Hayes of Roxbury, was awarded a split 10-round decision over former middleweight champion Jake LaMotta of Bronx, N. Y., tonight at Boston Garden.

A near sellout crowd of 12,915 booed the decision of the thrilling bout that saw both fighters battle toe-to-toe in several rounds.

It was Referee Mel Manning's 99 points for Hayes to 93 for LaMotta that gave the decision to the young colored battler.

In the co-feature, Tommy Collins, South End, New England featherweight champion, repeated his knockout over Joey Cam of East Boston, when he chilled the former title holder in 2:45 of the second round of a 12-round bout.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP) — Jim Fuchs, world record holder in the shot put, will make his 1952 debut in the annual New York Athletic Club games Feb. 9 at Madison Square Garden.

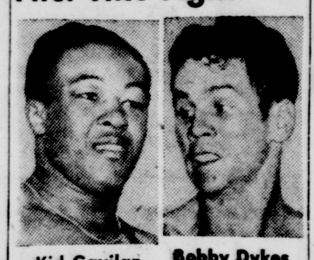
Meet In Florida's First Title Fight



Kid Gavilan — Bobby Dykes

AP Newsfeatures

MIAMI, Fla.,—The honor of taking part in Florida's first legalized championship fight will go to Kid Gavilan and Bobby Dykes.

They meet in Miami Stadium, Monday, Feb. 4, for the world's welterweight title. It will be Gavilan's second title defense. He won the crown by beating Johnny Bratton last May and defended it by taking an unpopular split decision against Billy Graham last August.

The bout figures to draw well because Gavilan comes from Cuba and Dykes, though the underdog, has a huge following here. Gavilan will get 37½ per cent of the gate, Dykes 17½ per cent.

McGregor Wins Aussie Tennis Championship

Upsets Sedgman In 4-Set Finals

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 28 (AP) —Ken McGregor abandoned his role of innocent bystander in the hectic goings-on of the Australian tennis season today long enough to accomplish the biggest court upset of the year. McGregor, a big youngster with a potent net game, soundly whipped Frank Sedgman, 7-5, 12-10, 2-6, 6-2, in the final for the Australian championship.

Like Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., who beat him in the final last year, McGregor was by-passed by his Davis Cup team selectors in picking singles players for the challenge round this year. Today's victory not only gave substance to the contention that Ken should have been chosen over Mervyn Rose for the second singles berth with Sedgman but it showed that McGregor's semi-final triumph over Saviett was not a fluke.

Sedgman, rated as the world's No. 1 player, appeared far off his usual form. He failed to hold leads of 5-2 in the first set and 3-0 in the second and wasn't even a threat in the fourth and final set.

The crowd of about 6,500 gave McGregor a standing ovation as he closed out the match.

Sedgman's attacking game was in evidence only in the third set, which he won easily. The rest of the time McGregor, charging the net and hitting with great power and accuracy, simply overpowered his doubles partner.

It was the first Australian championship for McGregor, who had reached the final round three times.

NBA Requests New York To Join In Ranks

Commends Chairman For Recent Stands

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 28—(AP)—The National Boxing Association today gave Bob Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, a pat on the back for getting tough with Jersey Joe Walcott and once again asked New York to join the NBA ranks.

In a statement by NBA Commissioner Abe Greene, issued in conjunction with NBA President Dave Rochon and Executive Secretary Harvey Miller, New York was urged to join a fight to (1) curb common evils and (2) promote favorable activities.

Christenberry's action in ordering Walcott to agree by Feb. 5 for a defense of his crown was called the "best advance in many years in the move to coordinate relations of all the boxing commissioners of the country." The NBA has set March 15 as the deadline for Walcott.

"New York's willingness to go along with a policy of forcing champions to defend their titles within six-month periods makes it possible for a united front in that direction," the statement continued.

Greene pointed out that the NBA has hesitated to enforce the fight-or-else dictum only because it had no desire to invite the return of dual championships.

"For us to remove title recognition was to invite contrary action by New York State," he wrote. "Now the door is opened to a closer association xxx and since Commissioner Christenberry has abandoned New York's traditional attitude of acting contrary to every move made by NBA, it would seem that now is the time for the two agencies to act in union."

Greene also favored requiring contenders to meet the same obligations as champs to avoid the evils of jockeying and juggling for position.

"Under our system of rating," he wrote, "we had listed Harry Matthews and Archie Moore as logical contenders for the light heavyweight championship, and they were so universally recognized. If we view boxing as a sport and not as a cash register, then the question of which would draw more at the gate with the champion is not the issue. Why shouldn't Matthews and Moore have fought it out for the right to box Joey Maxim for the title?

Forty and Eight cagers, runners-up in the first half drew an opening round bye tomorrow while Ridgeley Legion and Telephone Company will clash in the first half of the twin bill at 8:30. Cumberland Legion and the Elks vie for the nightcap honors at 9:30.

Games are set three night a week, Monday's, Wednesday's and Thursday's in the five-team circuit. All games are played on the YMCA court.

Lashbaugh Is Fined In Alarm Case Here

Walter Lashbaugh, Mt. Savage, who mistook a fire alarm box for a telephone early Sunday morning and was later taken into custody, was given a suspended 30-day jail sentence and a $30 fine yesterday in Police Court.

He was charged with turning in a false alarm at the corner of North Mechanic and Smith streets and with being intoxicated. Lashbaugh testified he heard a commotion while en route home and decided to summon police. Thinking Box 23 was a telephone, he pulled the lever. His wife said he cannot read.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28 (INS) — The acclaim Vivien Leigh has been getting throughout the country in "Street Car Named Desire" has given Jack Warner some ideas. Reposing on the shelf for the past six or more years is "Victoria Grandolet," a novel by Henry Belleman, which was bought after "King's Row" was a success. Originally it was bought for Bette Davis, then Warners and Bette parted company.

VIVIEN LEIGH

Now Jack wants Vivien for this and he sent her a script to read. If she accepts it will be the third southern girl she has played—"Gone With The Wind," "Street Car Named Desire" and "Victoria Grandolet."

The story is very dramatic and it had a big sale as a book when it came out a few years ago.

One of the most "all right" girls our town has ever known is Fay Wray, a big star in the silent days until she retired to marry Robert Riskin, the writer and producer.

Now Fay is doing her first role in years in "The Condor's Nest" at 20th and she definitely wants to continue along the comeback trail.

She says one of the main reasons she wants to be active again is that she can keep her ailing husband (Bob has been sick for years and in a serious condition since a brain operation last year) posted on the doings in the industry he loves so much.

Charlie Chaplin has finished "Limelight," a saga of the theater. He looked like a combination clown and tramp in his makeup when I went on the set. He directed himself, did the acting, and put some new business into the script. I guess you could call Charlie the last of the great geniuses.

He told me he is supremely happy with his young wife and that the four young children are wonderful. "Ours is a happy home," he said.

Charlie was a little on the defensive with me, but whatever the criticism he has brought on himself, you cannot deny there have been few, if any, in our business with talent comparable to Chaplin.

Two days after Shelley Winters arrived in Rome she and Vittorio Gassman took off for Genoa. It could have been because the Italian newspapers were not too kind to Shelley.

According to Italian law it's almost impossible to get a divorce if a child has been born to the union and a recent court decision set a precedent that Italy will not recognize a divorce received in a foreign country by an Italian citizen.

Mrs. Gassman was the former Nora Ricci, daughter of Renzo Ricci, Italy's most famous Shakespearean actor. She and Vittorio have a 7-year-old daughter, and friends of the Ricci family haven't been happy over Shelley's determination to marry Gassman.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The blonde lunching with Tyrone Power at 20th was Linda Christian (Mrs. P) in the blonde hair she wears in her picture.

The Navy is asking again for John Ford who is already in the naval reserve and who was a high officer in the last war.

With all this talk that the Gary Coopers will finally divorce, it's interesting that Pat Neal's mother arrives here next week. Look for Pat and Gary to make up and for mother to give her approval.

Jo Stafford has recently become a bridge addict. Now she's not sorry, because Paul Weston gave her a diamond pin made in the form of a bridge hand — a little slam in diamonds, for her birthday.

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond have rented an apartment in New York. Does that mean they're leaving us?

Clifton Webb, who was the sensation of New York when he danced with Mary Hay in the twenties, does a dance sequence in "Dreamboat." He's taking a refresher course with Dance Arranger Bob Alton.

Sixteen relatives in relays from Southern California are keeping the wolves away from 19-year-old Marissa Pavan. When mama had to go to Europe with her other daughter, Pier Angeli, she made these arrangements.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Lashbaugh Is Fined In Alarm Case Here

Walter Lashbaugh, Mt. Savage, who mistook a fire alarm box for a telephone early Sunday morning and was later taken into custody, was given a suspended 30-day jail sentence and a $30 fine yesterday in Police Court.

He was charged with turning in a false alarm at the corner of North Mechanic and Smith streets and with being intoxicated. Lashbaugh testified he heard a commotion while en route home and decided to summon police. Thinking Box 23 was a telephone, he pulled the lever. His wife said he cannot read.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28 (INS) — The acclaim Vivien Leigh has been getting throughout the country in "Street Car Named Desire" has given Jack Warner some ideas. Reposing on the shelf for the past six or more years is "Victoria Grandolet," a novel by Henry Belleman, which was bought after "King's Row" was a success. Originally it was bought for Bette Davis, then Warners and Bette parted company.

VIVIEN LEIGH

Now Jack wants Vivien for this and he sent her a script to read. If she accepts it will be the third southern girl she has played—"Gone With The Wind," "Street Car Named Desire" and "Victoria Grandolet."

The story is very dramatic and it had a big sale as a book when it came out a few years ago.

One of the most "all right" girls our town has ever known is Fay Wray, a big star in the silent days until she retired to marry Robert Riskin, the writer and producer.

Now Fay is doing her first role in years in "The Condor's Nest" at 20th and she definitely wants to continue along the comeback trail.

She says one of the main reasons she wants to be active again is that she can keep her ailing husband (Bob has been sick for years and in a serious condition since a brain operation last year) posted on the doings in the industry he loves so much.

Charlie Chaplin has finished "Limelight," a saga of the theater. He looked like a combination clown and tramp in his makeup when I went on the set. He directed himself, did the acting, and put some new business into the script. I guess you could call Charlie the last of the great geniuses.

He told me he is supremely happy with his young wife and that the four young children are wonderful. "Ours is a happy home," he said.

Charlie was a little on the defensive with me, but whatever the criticism he has brought on himself, you cannot deny there have been few, if any, in our business with talent comparable to Chaplin.

Two days after Shelley Winters arrived in Rome she and Vittorio Gassman took off for Genoa. It could have been because the Italian newspapers were not too kind to Shelley.

According to Italian law it's almost impossible to get a divorce if a child has been born to the union and a recent court decision set a precedent that Italy will not recognize a divorce received in a foreign country by an Italian citizen.

Mrs. Gassman was the former Nora Ricci, daughter of Renzo Ricci, Italy's most famous Shakespearean actor. She and Vittorio have a 7-year-old daughter, and friends of the Ricci family haven't been happy over Shelley's determination to marry Gassman.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

The Navy is asking again for John Ford who is already in the naval reserve and who was a high officer in the last war.

With all this talk that the Gary Coopers will finally divorce, it's interesting that Pat Neal's mother arrives here next week. Look for Pat and Gary to make up and for mother to give her approval.

Jo Stafford has recently become a bridge addict. Now she's not sorry, because Paul Weston gave her a diamond pin made in the form of a bridge hand — a little slam in diamonds, for her birthday.

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond have rented an apartment in New York. Does that mean they're leaving us?

Clifton Webb, who was the sensation of New York when he danced with Mary Hay in the twenties, does a dance sequence in "Dreamboat." He's taking a refresher course with Dance Arranger Bob Alton.

Sixteen relatives in relays from Southern California are keeping the wolves away from 19-year-old Marissa Pavan. When mama had to go to Europe with her other daughter, Pier Angeli, she made these arrangements.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Lashbaugh Is Fined In Alarm Case Here

Walter Lashbaugh, Mt. Savage, who mistook a fire alarm box for a telephone early Sunday morning and was later taken into custody, was given a suspended 30-day jail sentence and a $30 fine yesterday in Police Court.

He was charged with turning in a false alarm at the corner of North Mechanic and Smith streets and with being intoxicated. Lashbaugh testified he heard a commotion while en route home and decided to summon police. Thinking Box 23 was a telephone, he pulled the lever. His wife said he cannot read.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 28 (INS) — The acclaim Vivien Leigh has been getting throughout the country in "Street Car Named Desire" has given Jack Warner some ideas. Reposing on the shelf for the past six or more years is "Victoria Grandolet," a novel by Henry Belleman, which was bought after "King's Row" was a success. Originally it was bought for Bette Davis, then Warners and Bette parted company.

VIVIEN LEIGH

Now Jack wants Vivien for this and he sent her a script to read. If she accepts it will be the third southern girl she has played—"Gone With The Wind," "Street Car Named Desire" and "Victoria Grandolet."

The story is very dramatic and it had a big sale as a book when it came out a few years ago.

One of the most "all right" girls our town has ever known is Fay Wray, a big star in the silent days until she retired to marry Robert Riskin, the writer and producer.

Now Fay is doing her first role in years in "The Condor's Nest" at 20th and she definitely wants to continue along the comeback trail.

She says one of the main reasons she wants to be active again is that she can keep her ailing husband (Bob has been sick for years and in a serious condition since a brain operation last year) posted on the doings in the industry he loves so much.

Charlie Chaplin has finished "Limelight," a saga of the theater. He looked like a combination clown and tramp in his makeup when I went on the set. He directed himself, did the acting, and put some new business into the script. I guess you could call Charlie the last of the great geniuses.

He told me he is supremely happy with his young wife and that the four young children are wonderful. "Ours is a happy home," he said.

Charlie was a little on the defensive with me, but whatever the criticism he has brought on himself, you cannot deny there have been few, if any, in our business with talent comparable to Chaplin.

Two days after Shelley Winters arrived in Rome she and Vittorio Gassman took off for Genoa. It could have been because the Italian newspapers were not too kind to Shelley.

According to Italian law it's almost impossible to get a divorce if a child has been born to the union and a recent court decision set a precedent that Italy will not recognize a divorce received in a foreign country by an Italian citizen.

Mrs. Gassman was the former Nora Ricci, daughter of Renzo Ricci, Italy's most famous Shakespearean actor. She and Vittorio have a 7-year-old daughter, and friends of the Ricci family haven't been happy over Shelley's determination to marry Gassman.

The Navy is asking again for John Ford who is already in the naval reserve and who was a high officer in the last war.

With all this talk that the Gary Coopers will finally divorce, it's interesting that Pat Neal's mother arrives here next week. Look for Pat and Gary to make up and for mother to give her approval.

Jo Stafford has recently become a bridge addict. Now she's not sorry, because Paul Weston gave her a diamond pin made in the form of a bridge hand — a little slam in diamonds, for her birthday.

Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond have rented an apartment in New York. Does that mean they're leaving us?

Sixteen relatives in relays from Southern California are keeping the wolves away from 19-year-old Marissa Pavan. When mama had to go to Europe with her other daughter, Pier Angeli, she made these arrangements.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

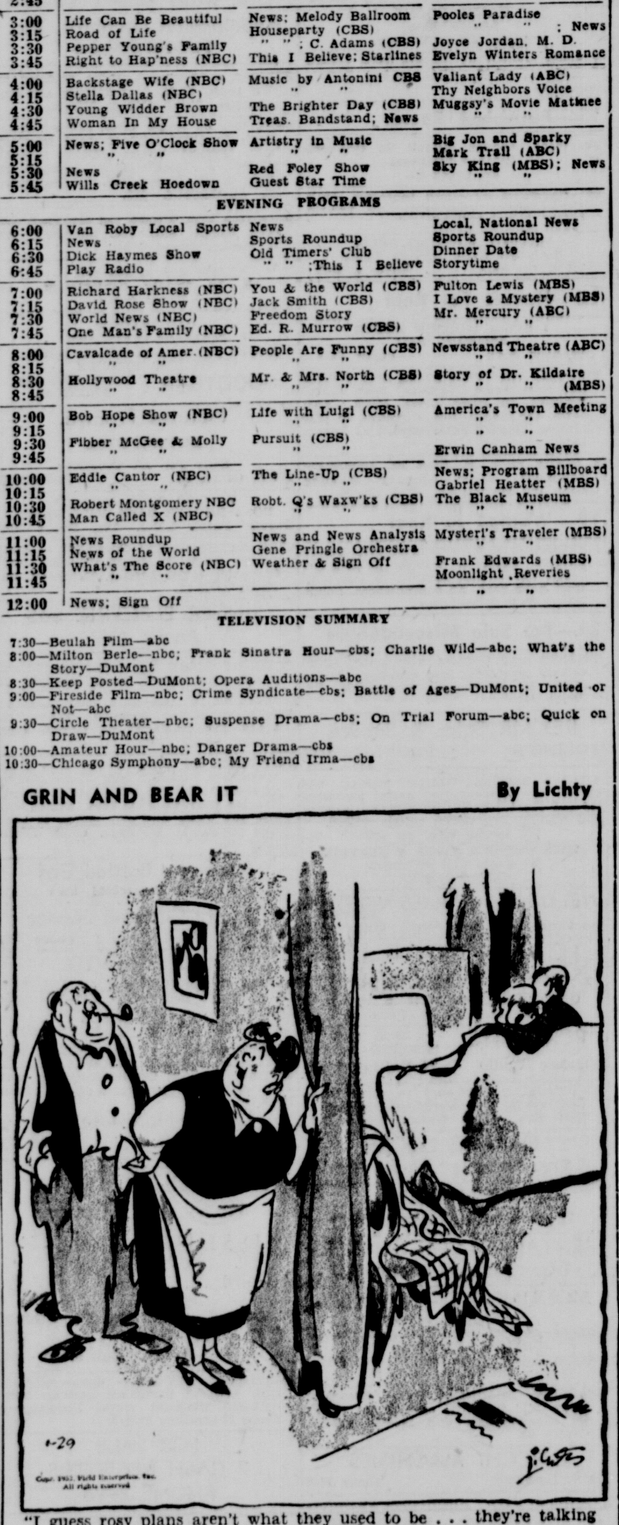
GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty



"I guess rosy plans aren't what they used to be . . . they're talking about getting married and managing to live somehow . . ."

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

YOU MAY NEED IT LATER

OVERTAKING your partner's honor, for the purpose of gaining the lead, is essential to successful defense on some deals. But always, before making such a play, it is well to ponder what the consequences may be if the hidden cards happen to be located in certain specific ways. Maybe your side can't afford to use two honors on the current trick. Your own may be needed later on, and plumping it on top of your partner's may amount to merely squandering it.

	♠ 9 6 3 2 ♥ K J 9 2 ♦ Q 9 7 2 ♣ K
♠ K Q 10 ♥ Q 10 8 6 5 4 ♦ 5 ♣ A Q 5	N W E S	♠ A 8 7 5 ♥ 3 ♦ 10 ♣ J 8 7 6 4 3 2
	♠ J 4 ♥ A 7 ♦ A K J 8 6 4 3 ♣ 10 9

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♦	1 ♥
2 ♦	3 ♣	5 ♦	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Rdbl.

East put his 8 on the spade K lead, then pondered just a moment when West led the Q. Noting that the setting trick might be immediately available if he overtook the Q with the A and led a third spade, he did this, hoping West had held a doubleton and could ruff.

Instead, however, it was South who trumped that trick, as West played the 10, setting up dummy's 9. South then raced on to success with his contract. The diamond A was followed by the heart A, finesse of the heart J and the heart K to discard one club, then the spade 9 to discard South's other club. That of course kept West's club A from taking any trick at all, as South finished the hand with diamonds.

East should have thought a bit longer before overtaking the spade Q. He could have been sure South had the J, since from K-Q-J West would have led the J second and not the Q. If West held the 10, the setting up of the 9 would have been inevitable by the overtake and lead of a third spade. Furthermore, for his overcall and eventual double, West must have had the A of hearts, diamonds or clubs; if either hearts or clubs, the setting up of the spade 9 might have enabled South to nullify that card by getting a crucial discard. A fine defender in the East, figuring thus, would not have overtaken the spade Q.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ J 7 6 ♥ K 10 4 ♦ J 10 8 7 6 4 3 ♣ None
♠ A 9 5 ♥ A Q J 9 6 2 ♦ 9 ♣ A 7 5	N W E S	♠ K 10 4 2 ♥ 8 7 5 3 ♦ 5 ♣ J 9 4 2
	♠ Q 8 3 ♥ None ♦ A K Q 2 ♣ K Q 10 8 6 3

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If your 1-Club in the South was overcalled by West's queer 4-Hearts, the next two players passing, what would you do?

YOU MAY NEED IT LATER

OVERTAKING your partner's honor, for the purpose of gaining the lead, is essential to successful defense on some deals. But always, before making such a play, it is well to ponder what the consequences may be if the hidden cards happen to be located in certain specific ways. Maybe your side can't afford to use two honors on the current trick. Your own may be needed later on, and plumping it on top of your partner's may amount to merely squandering it.

East put his 8 on the spade K lead, then pondered just a moment when West led the Q. Noting that the setting trick might be immediately available if he overtook the Q with the A and led a third spade, he did this, hoping West had held a doubleton and could ruff.

Instead, however, it was South who trumped that trick, as West played the 10, setting up dummy's 9. South then raced on to success with his contract. The diamond A was followed by the heart A, finesse of the heart J and the heart K to discard one club, then the spade 9 to discard South's other club. That of course kept West's club A from taking any trick at all, as South finished the hand with diamonds.

East should have thought a bit longer before overtaking the spade Q. He could have been sure South had the J, since from K-Q-J West would have led the J second and not the Q. If West held the 10, the setting up of the 9 would have been inevitable by the overtake and lead of a third spade. Furthermore, for his overcall and eventual double, West must have had the A of hearts, diamonds or clubs; if either hearts or clubs, the setting up of the spade 9 might have enabled South to nullify that card by getting a crucial discard. A fine defender in the East, figuring thus, would not have overtaken the spade Q.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Card Of Thanks

We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors who were so kind and sympathetic during our sad bereavement at the death of my wife and our mother, Mrs. Ora Rebecca Pittman. We especially want to thank Major Elmer Wall. We are grateful for floral tributes, for the use of cars for the funeral and other kind expressions of sympathy.

In Memoriam

In memory of our dear Mother, Ida B., Twigg, who passed away 5 years ago, January 29.
You have not left our house; it is as though
You passed from room to room. That where you lay
Was far too small, and as your spirit grew
Just through the door you passed, but not away!
Into another room . . . that's all . . . just through the door;
Into a larger, lighter room—forever more.
The children

Card Of Thanks

We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors who were so kind and sympathetic during our sad bereavement at the death of my wife and our mother, Mrs. Ora Rebecca Pittman. We especially want to thank Major Elmer Wall. We are grateful for floral tributes, for the use of cars for the funeral and other kind expressions of sympathy.
Husband & Children

In Memoriam

In memory of our dear Mother, Ida B., Twigg, who passed away 5 years ago, January 29.
You have not left our house; it is as though
You passed from room to room. That where you lay
Was far too small, and as your spirit grew
Just through the door you passed, but not away!
Into another room . . . that's all . . . just through the door;
Into a larger, lighter room—forever more.
The children
THURMAN, KERMIT, PHYLLIS, MRS. ERVIN SHROUT

Card Of Thanks

We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors who were so kind and sympathetic during our sad bereavement at the death of my wife and our mother, Mrs. Ora Rebecca Pittman. We especially want to thank Major Elmer Wall. We are grateful for floral tributes, for the use of cars for the funeral and other kind expressions of sympathy.
Husband & Children

In Memoriam

In memory of our dear Mother, Ida B., Twigg, who passed away 5 years ago, January 29.
You have not left our house; it is as though
You passed from room to room. That where you lay
Was far too small, and as your spirit grew
Just through the door you passed, but not away!
Into another room . . . that's all . . . just through the door;
Into a larger, lighter room—forever more.
The children

The passengers had not been told to fasten their safety belts because rough weather was not expected.

Market Advances As Coal Stocks, Railroads Set Pace

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Coal stocks and railroad issues gave the stock market a new lease on life in late trading today and prices all along the line advanced fractions to around a point.

The net result was a 30-cent increase in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at $102, only a dime away from its 21-year high.

The volume ran to 1,590,000 shares, somewhat under the 1,640,000 of the previous full session last Friday.

There were 493 advances and 399 declines among the 1,155 stocks traded. And 45 issues hit new highs while nine dropped to new lows.

Most active stock of the day was Traux Traer, which sold a block of 35,000 shares at an unchanged price. The coal company's volume built up to 41,700 shares and ended the day up ½ at 17½.

Plane Plummets 2,200 Feet, Then Levels Off

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28 (AP) — A Capital Airlines plane plummeted 2,200 feet toward the earth today, tossing its 18 passengers about like jackstraws before it leveled off again.

The passengers had not been told to fasten their safety belts because rough weather was not expected.

Pilot William Mason, Washington, said the ship hit a downdraft, but a spokesman for Capital Airlines at Washington said technicians "have not the vaguest idea what caused the mishap."

Market Advances As Coal Stocks, Railroads Set Pace

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 (AP)—Coal stocks and railroad issues gave the stock market a new lease on life in late trading today and prices all along the line advanced fractions to around a point.

The net result was a 30-cent increase in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at $102, only a dime away from its 21-year high.

The volume ran to 1,590,000 shares, somewhat under the 1,640,000 of the previous full session last Friday.

There were 493 advances and 399 declines among the 1,155 stocks traded. And 45 issues hit new highs while nine dropped to new lows.

Most active stock of the day was Traux Traer, which sold a block of 35,000 shares at an unchanged price. The coal company's volume built up to 41,700 shares and ended the day up ½ at 17½.

The second most active issue also was in the coal field—Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron, which sold 34,700 shares and wound up 1½ points ahead at 18¾.

Pittston Co., another coal operation, gained 1⅛ at 31⅝.

There also were some substantial gainers among the railroad stocks in late trading. Atlantic Coast Line moved ahead 1¼ at 81, Santa Fe gained 1½ at 79½ and Northern Pacific advanced a point at 63.

Douglas Aircraft gained 1¼ at 61½ while Boeing, United Aircraft and Lockheed each advanced fractions.

Frostburg Studies Proposal To Supply Mt. Savage Water

Officials Promise Early Report On Plan

Frostburg officials last night agreed to study a proposal for furnishing filtered water to Mt. Savage.

John R. Williams, representing Johnson and Williams, consulting engineers of Washington, D. C., appeared before the Mayor and Council of Frostburg last night to ascertain if city officials would consider a proposal to supply the town of Mt. Savage with filtered water under an agreement with the Mt. Savage Sanitary District, a unit of the Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Williams explained his firm has made a preliminary survey of the available sources of water supply in the vicinity of Mt. Savage and that results indicated that Frostburg's filtered water is of the highest quality and the most desirable.

Requests Data

He requested specific information on whether Frostburg has a sufficient supply of water to meet the needs of both communities, whether the city would supply the water and third, the price for each 1,000 gallons.

Williams explained that after his firm receives the information, it will complete its survey and estimate the cost of laying water mains from Frostburg's filtration plant to Mt. Savage.

He said the survey would be made on the basis of conveying a peak volume of water for a community of 5,000 citizens, although the Mt. Savage community at present would need only about 200,000 gallons of water a month.

City Clerk Alex G. Close reported Frostburg is now using about 400,000 gallons of water a month.

Williams informed the Mayor and Council he had inspected the Frostburg filtration plant and found it was in fine condition.

He aded that the Mt. Savage Sanitary District is interested only in the purchase of filtered water and not raw water from the Piney Run Dam in Garrett County.

Will Study Plans

The council agreed to consider the proposal and to submit an answer at an early date.

Frostburg receives its water supply from three sources, mountain springs which run by gravity into the city reservoir, from the Savage River and, when these sources diminish, from the Piney Run Dam.

The Piney Run Dam was in use only four months last year and the community's water supply was more than ample, in spite of the worst drought in the area in many years.

MORTGAGE BURNING—Central Young Men's Christian Association last night marked the burning of a 26-year-old mortgage on the huge Baltimore Street property with a dinner and ceremony attended by over 250 friends and guests. The top picture shows surviving members of the first board of directors serving in the present building who were able to attend. They include left to right, Cyril B. Geare, Wiley M. Faw, Charles A. Piper, D. Lindley Sloan, Harold W. Smith, John J. Tipton, Arthur J. Weber and E. T. Dixon. Lower left shows Weber lighting the candle held by Mrs. George N. Phillippi of the Ladies Auxiliary, starting a chain of lighted candles around the room, culminating with the mortgage burning at the right by Edmund S. Burke, Piper and Lynn C. Lashley, president. Piper represents the old board, Burke the Save-the-Y Committee and Lashley the present board. In the picture behind Mrs. Phillippi and Weber can be seen Winfield Adam, general secretary of the YMCA. The dinner was served by the Ladies Auxiliary.

Central 'Y' Termed 'Edifice Of Faith' By Jennings Randolph

Cites Public's Duties As Mortgage Is Burned

"It is the responsibility of every citizen to take an intense interest and active part in public affairs and all worthwhile community projects," Jennings Randolph, former West Virginia congressman, told 250 guests at last night's mortgage burning ceremony at Central YMCA.

Complimenting the members of the YMCA, the board of directors and all those who have over a 26-year period aided in the operation of the institution and liquidation of the debt against the building, Randolph said, "This institution lives and will live for many years as a monument to the cooperative effort and faith of Cumberland citizens.

"Built to serve the youth of the community, it is an edifice of faith and cooperation and community service," he declared.

Freedoms Taken Lightly

Randolph, speaking on the subject, "The Challenge of Community Citizenship," reminded his audience of the freedoms cherished by all Americans and declared that just as "our grandfathers planned and made possible such institutions as the YMCA, they also fought and sacrificed for the freedoms we accept today."

Charging that these freedoms are taken too lightly by most citizens, he reminded his audience that in the 19th Century, "Our grandfathers walked miles over rough roads on election day for the privilege of casting their ballots, and 85 out of every 100 eligible people voted.

"In the Presidential election of 1944," he noted, "50.9 per cent of eligibles used their franchise. In the 1948 election, 43 per cent voted."

Must Accept Challenge

He cited city after city and state after state where this "recurring pattern of American tragedy is crossing the country."

"We've got to do more than preach about democracy, and we've got to do more than take half-hearted interest in public and community affairs," he continued. "If we are to plan for the kind of future we think we want, if we are to pass our heritage on to our children, if we are to continue a free nation, then we must exchange this forfeiture of freedom for the franchise of freedom and accept the 'Challenge of Community Citizenship.'"

James W. Bishop presided at the mortgage burning dinner as recording secretary and chairman of arrangements. Dinner music was provided by the Duke Memorial Bible Class Orchestra and entertainment was furnished by the Elks Quartet.

Edmund S. Burke, who was chairman of the Save-the-Y Drive in 1942 which prevented a mortgage foreclosure on the institution, expressed his thanks for the continued faith of all who worked in that effort and have continued to see the plan through.

He noted that the last payment on the mortgage was made last month and "today, we are in debt to no man."

First Directors Introduced

Lynn C. Lashley, president, welcomed the guests and Bishop presented members of the first board of directors elected after the present building was occupied in January 1926. They included E. T. Dixon, John J. Tipton, Charles A. Piper, Cyril B. Geare, Wiley M. Faw, Arthur J. Weber, D. Lindley Sloan and Harold W. Smith. Dr. A. H. Hawkins and J. Milton Patterson were unable to attend, but were mentioned.

Everyone present had a part in the mortgage burning, symbolizing the participation of all friends of the "Y." The 250 guests formed a large circle around the gymnasium where the dinner was held, and Arthur J. Weber lighted a candle starting the flame for the mortgage. Each guest in turn lighted a candle from his neighbor and as the flame reached around the room, Lashley, Burke and Piper burned the mortgage.

Jury Convicts Trucking Firm For Overload

Unusual Appeal Involves Bridge

In a precedent-setting case, an Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday ruled that the Elliott Motor Lines, Winchester, Va., was guilty of violating the Maryland Truck Weight Law by traveling over the Wiley Ford Bridge with a load greater than the posted limit set for the bridge.

The jury, headed by Foreman H. Glenn Boyd of Luke, deliberated about two-and-one-half hours before returning a guilty verdict shortly before 4 p. m.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the trial, levied a $1,038 fine upon the Winchester trucking firm. The fine, plus $10.15 court costs was paid. The fine was figured on the basis of six cents per pound above the 20,000 pound limit for the bridge which spans the Potomac River between Cumberland and Wiley Ford, W. Va.

The effect of the jury's decision was to rule that a bridge and a highway are distinct.

Attorney Harold E. Naughton, representing the defendant, argued that a 1947 State Law had defined bridges as part of the state's highway system. Under this interpretation, bridges should be so maintained that they can handle the highway weight limit of 61,280 pounds. Elliott's truck weighs much less than this.

The Truck Weight Law passed by the General Assembly last year made no specific reference to bridges. However, in the section refering to fines it set forth that they should be the same as listed in another act passed in 1931. This 1931 act specifically mentioned fines for overweight loads on bridges.

Yesterday's trial was an appeal from a decision last August 18 by Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick. He had fined the firm $1,039.45. When the appeal first was tried last October 31, it ended in a jury which failed to agree.

Naughton said last night that the finding of the jury could not be appealed. However, the question of the constitutionality of the act itself could be carried to the Maryland Court of Appeals on a writ of certiorari. He has 30 days to file such an action.

Officials of the firm cited one specific hardship that the decision entails. The Interstate Commerce Commission stipulates specific routes that vans can travel. In Elliott's case, the route is from Winchester to Romney, W. Va. on Route 50 and from Romney to Wiley Ford on West Virginia Route 28 and thence across the bridge into Cumberland. Now the firm will have to stop hauling from Winchester into Cumberland until the ICC changes its route. This may take as long as a year before it can pass through the channel of red tape.

Although a number of overload cases involving highways have been tried in Maryland courts the past year this is the first known case under the law involving a bridge, according ot Naughton. Several other similar cases are pending in courts in other Maryland counties.

Associate Judge Henderson said most of the facts in the case were undisputed, and attorneys for both the state and defendant motor trucking company entered into a stipulation as to these facts.

The truck in question had a load of 37,700 pounds at the time the driver was arrested by a State Roads weighing crew. On the state highways the truck could legally carry 61,280 pounds.

Entered in the stipulation also were the load limits of bridges across the Potomac River between Westernport and Hancock. It was noted that at Westernport the load limit is 28,100 pounds, at Paw Paw, W. Va., the limit is 32,000 pounds and at Hancock there is no load limit.

Naughton stressed the fact that the average tractor trailer weighs about 18,000 pounds unloaded, and if the transportation companies intend to travel across the Potomac in this area they would only be allowed to carry several thousand pounds.

He also pointed out that on the basis of exceeding the load limit posted for the Wiley Ford bridge the penalty under the law is $100.

Joseph Buscher, assistant attorney general, and William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney for Allegany county, presented the state's case.

State Park Gets Approval For More Cabins

Construction Set At Herrington Manor

Another move to expand summer vacation facilities in Garrett County has been authorized by the Maryland Department of Public Improvement, District Forester William H. Johnson reported yesterday.

State Forester H. C. Buckingham has written Johnson that permission has been received by the Department of State Forests and Parks for construction of two additional cabins at the Herrington Manor Recreation Area, four-and-one-half miles northwest of Oakland.

Herrington Manor now is equipped with 14 cabins available for rental. Each new cabin will have a rated capacity of six persons. These new facilities will bring the rated capacity for cabins at Herrington Manor, New Germany and Big Run, in the Savage River Forest, to 192. These cabins can accommodate a maximum of 50 per cent more than the rated capacity, which would bring potential capacity to 288.

Johnson said that arrangements already are being made to have the work done by personnel employed by the Department of State Forests and Parks. At least one of the cabins is expected to be ready for occupancy by July 1. Logs for the cabins will be cut from the State Forests. As a matter of fact, the district forester noted, the needed timber already has been marked and the cutting will begin Wednesday.

Labor costs for each of the cabins is expected to run about $5,000, Johnson believes.

Ask Reconsideration Of Dyehouse Decision

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), yesterday asked Celanese Corporation stockholders to urge officials to reconsider their decision to close the Amcelle dyehouse.

The local said it hoped some stockholders will be sufficiently impressed by the facts to urge corporation officials to sit down with the union in efforts to avoid the step which it estimates will eliminate the jobs of more than 500 workers at Amcelle.

Union requests for a meeting with Harold Blancke, Celanese president, have been rejected, the union said.

"We are sure," the union said, "that your investment in Celanese has been successful beyond your wildest hopes.

"It is unfortunate that the economic wellbeing of the employes who founded the operations at Cumberland, and who continued them over the years, has not kept pace with your success.

"While new plants have been built x x x the employment level here in Cumberland has gone down and down.

"This serious situation is now aggravated by the announcement of a policy to eliminate the dyeing and finishing operations at the Cumberland plant and continue such operations as may be continued at the Hopewell, Va., plant."

Company officials, the union said, explained the operation is to be continued at Hopewell since "more modern equipment and other factors give the Hopewell Dyehouse a considerable advantage."

"As employes, we cannot be blamed for Management's failure to modernize the Cumberland dyehouse following its years and years of faithful and profitable service."

The union said employes have a right to be told specifically what the 'other factors' are.

The union also declared Cumberland dyehouse and finishing department employes, many of them with 24 years of long and faithful service, believe they are entitled to an official explanation of the matter.

The union asked stockholders to call upon top policy-making officials of the corporation to sit down with union representatives and study the facts the union wishes to present and to urge Blancke to meet with the union to explore reasons for the decision and attempt to arrive at a basis for reconsideration."

Second Suspect Held In Auto Theft, Entries

Loaded Gun, Safe, Groceries Stolen

A second suspect was arrested last night in connection with the theft of a city policeman's private car and two burglaries early yesterday morning.

Milton Ralphord Lease, 28, of Cresap Street, was arrested early yesterday after an automobile chase on Oldtown Road. Both Lease and the second suspect, whom police declined to name, are being held without charge for investigation.

Detective Thomas J. See said both men will be questioned today in connection with the theft of Officer John W. Snyder's car and burglaries at Moffatt's Grocery Store, 600 Montreal Avenue and at Cresaptown School.

Policeman's Car Stolen

Officer Snyder said his wife awakened him early yesterday morning to tell him two men had taken his 1936 car from Blaul Avenue in front of his home. Snyder called Police Headquarters and started out with a neighbor to search for the car.

Sgt. Frank A. Shober and Officer Donald H. Smith spotted the car on Oldtown Road and gave chase in their cruiser. The stolen car jumped a curb and came to a stop near the Cumberland Undergarment Factory. Snyder, who had arrived on the scene, said he nabbed Lease as he tried to climb a fence. The other man escaped in the darkness.

Loaded Pistol Found

Police said they found a loaded .32 caliber pistol on the floor of the cruiser after Lease was placed in the car. In Snyder's car were a wall safe and tools which police said were taken from the Cresaptown School.

Lease reportedly told Detective See and State Trooper First Class William F. Baker that the gun was on the floor of the cruiser when he climbed in.

Several hours later, at about 7 a. m., Leroy P. Michaels, janitor at Cresaptown School, found the school's wall safe missing. Several tools from the manual training departments also were gone.

Safe Unopened

Trooper Baker said intruders broke a pane of glass in a rear door of the school to gain entrance, then forced three doors to reach the safe in the principal's second-floor office. Nearby March of Dimes containers and a cardboard box containing $5 were untouched.

The safe, which contained an undisclosed amount of money, had not been opened when police found it. Two months ago, another safe containing $80 was stolen from the same school and later was found near Keyser, W. Va.

City Police said cigarets, cartridges and cans of meat were taken from the Montreal Avenue grocery. Entrance was gained by forcing the front door. Broken sections of what appeared to be door panels were found in Snyder's car after Lease was arrested.

Police said Lease served a sentence in 1949 after he and two other youths were convicted of beating and robbing a local cab driver.

Snow Falls In District

Some snow was reported falling in the area last night, but it was confined mostly to the Garrett County and Preston County (W. Va.) sections.

Other sections of the Tri-State area had a few blowing snow flurries and rapidly dropping temperatures.

Snow was falling between Altamont and Grafton, W. Va. with mercury between 20 and 26 degrees. About one-half inch layer was reported in Thomas, W. Va. while in other sections snow was melting as it hit the ground.

Maryland State Police said snow was falling in Frostburg shortly before midnight. They said highways west of the city were hazardous and recommended chains for motorists traveling in that section.

All other areas of the district reported cloudy weather and temperatures between 20 and 30 degrees. In the Cumberland area, blowing flurries had slackened by midnight.

The Weather Bureau predicts cloudy and colder for today in the Tri-State area with occasional snow flurries.

The Bureau forecast temperatures in Western Maryland will dip to 15 degrees this morning. Mercury will drop to between 10 and 15 degrees in Western Pennsylvania while in West Virginia the low this morning will be about 20 degrees.

Following three days of rain, the Potomac River reached its peak about 8 a. m. yesterday with 11.01 feet recorded at the Wiley Ford bridge.

Kitzmiller Will Head Membership Committee

C. L. Kitzmiller was named chairman of the 1952 membership drive of the Men of LaSalle at a meeting last night at the Knights of Columbus Home.

Frostburg Studies Proposal To Supply Mt. Savage Water

Officials Promise Early Report On Plan

Frostburg officials last night agreed to study a proposal for furnishing filtered water to Mt. Savage.

John R. Williams, representing Johnson and Williams, consulting engineers of Washington, D. C., appeared before the Mayor and Council of Frostburg last night to ascertain if city officials would consider a proposal to supply the town of Mt. Savage with filtered water under an agreement with the Mt. Savage Sanitary District, a unit of the Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Williams explained his firm has made a preliminary survey of the available sources of water supply in the vicinity of Mt. Savage and that results indicated that Frostburg's filtered water is of the highest quality and the most desirable.

Requests Data

He requested specific information on whether Frostburg has a sufficient supply of water to meet the needs of both communities, whether the city would supply the water and third, the price for each 1,000 gallons.

Williams explained that after his firm receives the information, it will complete its survey and estimate the cost of laying water mains from Frostburg's filtration plant to Mt. Savage.

He said the survey would be made on the basis of conveying a peak volume of water for a community of 5,000 citizens, although the Mt. Savage community at present would need only about 200,000 gallons of water a month.

City Clerk Alex G. Close reported Frostburg is now using about 400,000 gallons of water a month.

Williams informed the Mayor and Council he had inspected the Frostburg filtration plant and found it was in fine condition.

He aded that the Mt. Savage Sanitary District is interested only in the purchase of filtered water and not raw water from the Piney Run Dam in Garrett County.

Will Study Plans

The council agreed to consider the proposal and to submit an answer at an early date.

Frostburg receives its water supply from three sources, mountain springs which run by gravity into the city reservoir, from the Savage River and, when these sources diminish, from the Piney Run Dam.

The Piney Run Dam was in use only four months last year and the community's water supply was more than ample, in spite of the worst drought in the area in many years.

State Park Gets Approval For More Cabins

Construction Set At Herrington Manor

Another move to expand summer vacation facilities in Garrett County has been authorized by the Maryland Department of Public Improvement, District Forester William H. Johnson reported yesterday.

State Forester H. C. Buckingham has written Johnson that permission has been received by the Department of State Forests and Parks for construction of two additional cabins at the Herrington Manor Recreation Area, four-and-one-half miles northwest of Oakland.

Herrington Manor now is equipped with 14 cabins available for rental. Each new cabin will have a rated capacity of six persons. These new facilities will bring the rated capacity for cabins at Herrington Manor, New Germany and Big Run, in the Savage River Forest, to 192. These cabins can accommodate a maximum of 50 per cent more than the rated capacity, which would bring potential capacity to 288.

Johnson said that arrangements already are being made to have the work done by personnel employed by the Department of State Forests and Parks. At least one of the cabins is expected to be ready for occupancy by July 1. Logs for the cabins will be cut from the State Forests. As a matter of fact, the district forester noted, the needed timber already has been marked and the cutting will begin Wednesday.

Labor costs for each of the cabins is expected to run about $5,000, Johnson believes.

"Built to serve the youth of the community, it is an edifice of faith and cooperation and community service," he declared.

Freedoms Taken Lightly

Randolph, speaking on the subject, "The Challenge of Community Citizenship," reminded his audience of the freedoms cherished by all Americans and declared that just as "our grandfathers planned and made possible such institutions as the YMCA, they also fought and sacrificed for the freedoms we accept today."

Charging that these freedoms are taken too lightly by most citizens, he reminded his audience that in the 19th Century, "Our grandfathers walked miles over rough roads on election day for the privilege of casting their ballots, and 85 out of every 100 eligible people voted.

"In the Presidential election of 1944," he noted, "50.9 per cent of eligibles used their franchise. In the 1948 election, 43 per cent voted."

Must Accept Challenge

He cited city after city and state after state where this "recurring pattern of American tragedy is crossing the country."

"We've got to do more than preach about democracy, and we've got to do more than take half-hearted interest in public and community affairs," he continued. "If we are to plan for the kind of future we think we want, if we are to pass our heritage on to our children, if we are to continue a free nation, then we must exchange this forfeiture of freedom for the franchise of freedom and accept the 'Challenge of Community Citizenship.'"

James W. Bishop presided at the mortgage burning dinner as recording secretary and chairman of arrangements. Dinner music was provided by the Duke Memorial Bible Class Orchestra and entertainment was furnished by the Elks Quartet.

Edmund S. Burke, who was chairman of the Save-the-Y Drive in 1942 which prevented a mortgage foreclosure on the institution, expressed his thanks for the continued faith of all who worked in that effort and have continued to see the plan through.

He noted that the last payment on the mortgage was made last month and "today, we are in debt to no man."

First Directors Introduced

Lynn C. Lashley, president, welcomed the guests and Bishop presented members of the first board of directors elected after the present building was occupied in January 1926. They included E. T. Dixon, John J. Tipton, Charles A. Piper, Cyril B. Geare, Wiley M. Faw, Arthur J. Weber, D. Lindley Sloan and Harold W. Smith. Dr. A. H. Hawkins and J. Milton Patterson were unable to attend, but were mentioned.

Everyone present had a part in the mortgage burning, symbolizing the participation of all friends of the "Y." The 250 guests formed a large circle around the gymnasium where the dinner was held, and Arthur J. Weber lighted a candle starting the flame for the mortgage. Each guest in turn lighted a candle from his neighbor and as the flame reached around the room, Lashley, Burke and Piper burned the mortgage.

Snow Falls In District

Some snow was reported falling in the area last night, but it was confined mostly to the Garrett County and Preston County (W. Va.) sections.

Other sections of the Tri-State area had a few blowing snow flurries and rapidly dropping temperatures.

Snow was falling between Altamont and Grafton, W. Va. with mercury between 20 and 26 degrees. About one-half inch layer was reported in Thomas, W. Va. while in other sections snow was melting as it hit the ground.

Maryland State Police said snow was falling in Frostburg shortly before midnight. They said highways west of the city were hazardous and recommended chains for motorists traveling in that section.

A light snow fell in the Deal, Pa. area last night, but had stopped before midnight.

All other areas of the district reported cloudy weather and temperatures between 20 and 30 degrees. In the Cumberland area, blowing flurries had slackened by midnight.

The Weather Bur au predicts cloudy and colder for today in the Tri-State area with occasional snow flurries.

The Bureau forecast temperatures in Western Maryland will dip to 15 degrees this morning. Mercury will drop to between 10 and 15 degrees in Western Pennsylvania while in West Virginia the low this morning will be about 20 degrees.

Following three days of rain, the Potomac River reached its peak about 8 a. m. yesterday with 11.01 feet recorded at the Wiley Ford bridge.

Jury Convicts Trucking Firm For Overload

Unusual Appeal Involves Bridge

In a precedent-setting case, an Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday ruled that the Elliott Motor Lines, Winchester, Va., was guilty of violating the Maryland Truck Weight Law by traveling over the Wiley Ford Bridge with a load greater than the posted limit set for the bridge.

The jury, headed by Foreman H. Glenn Boyd of Luke, deliberated about two-and-one-half hours before returning a guilty verdict shortly before 4 p. m.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the trial, levied a $1,038 fine upon the Winchester trucking firm. The fine, plus $10.15 court costs was paid. The fine was figured on the basis of six cents per pound above the 20,000 pound limit for the bridge which spans the Potomac River between Cumberland and Wiley Ford, W. Va.

The effect of the jury's decision was to rule that a bridge and a highway are distinct.

Attorney Harold E. Naughton, representing the defendant, argued that a 1947 State Law had defined bridges as part of the state's highway system. Under this interpretation, bridges should be so maintained that they can handle the highway weight limit of 61,280 pounds. Elliott's truck weighs much less than this.

The Truck Weight Law passed by the General Assembly last year made no specific reference to bridges. However, in the section refering to fines it set forth that they should be the same as listed in another act passed in 1931. This 1931 act specifically mentioned fines for overweight loads on bridges.

Yesterday's trial was an appeal from a decision last August 18 by Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick. He had fined the firm $1,039.45. When the appeal first was tried last October 31, it ended in a jury which failed to agree.

Naughton said last night that the finding of the jury could not be appealed. However, the question of the constitutionality of the act itself could be carried to the Maryland Court of Appeals on a writ of certiorari. He has 30 days to file such an action.

Officials of the firm cited one specific hardship that the decision entails. The Interstate Commerce Commission stipulates specific routes that vans can travel. In Elliott's case, the route is from Winchester to Romney, W. Va. on Route 50 and from Romney to Wiley Ford on West Virginia Route 28 and thence across the bridge into Cumberland. Now the firm will have to stop hauling from Winchester into Cumberland until the ICC changes its route. This may take as long as a year before it can pass through the channel of red tape.

Although a number of overload cases involving highways have been tried in Maryland courts the past year this is the first known case under the law involving a bridge, according ot Naughton. Several other similar cases are pending in courts in other Maryland counties.

Associate Judge Henderson said most of the facts in the case were undisputed, and attorneys for both the state and defendant motor trucking company entered into a stipulation as to these facts.

The truck in question had a load of 37,700 pounds at the time the driver was arrested by a State Roads weighing crew. On the state highways the truck could legally carry 61,280 pounds.

Entered in the stipulation also were the load limits of bridges across the Potomac River between Westernport and Hancock. It was noted that at Westernport the load limit is 28,100 pounds, at Paw Paw, W. Va., the limit is 32,000 pounds and at Hancock there is no load limit.

Naughton stressed the fact that the average tractor trailer weighs about 18,000 pounds unloaded, and if the transportation companies intend to travel across the Potomac in this area they would only be allowed to carry several thousand pounds.

He also pointed out that on the basis of exceeding the load limit posted for the Wiley Ford bridge the penalty under the law is $100.

Joseph Buscher, assistant attorney general, and William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney for Allegany county, presented the state's case.

Kitzmiller Will Head Membership Committee

C. L. Kitzmiller was named chairman of the 1952 membership drive of the Men of LaSalle at a meeting last night at the Knights of Columbus Home.

The organization, according to Kitzmiller, hopes to get an additional 400 members during the campaign which will be held during February. Other committee members are Phil T. Christ, Arthur Beaulieu and James Angellatta. A committee report will be given at a meeting in March.

Frostburg Studies Proposal To Supply Mt. Savage Water

Officials Promise Early Report On Plan

Frostburg officials last night agreed to study a proposal for furnishing filtered water to Mt. Savage.

John R. Williams, representing Johnson and Williams, consulting engineers of Washington, D. C., appeared before the Mayor and Council of Frostburg last night to ascertain if city officials would consider a proposal to supply the town of Mt. Savage with filtered water under an agreement with the Mt. Savage Sanitary District, a unit of the Allegany County Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Williams explained his firm has made a preliminary survey of the available sources of water supply in the vicinity of Mt. Savage and that results indicated that Frostburg's filtered water is of the highest quality and the most desirable.

Requests Data

He requested specific information on whether Frostburg has a sufficient supply of water to meet the needs of both communities, whether the city would supply the water and third, the price for each 1,000 gallons.

Williams explained that after his firm receives the information, it will complete its survey and estimate the cost of laying water mains from Frostburg's filtration plant to Mt. Savage.

He said the survey would be made on the basis of conveying a peak volume of water for a community of 5,000 citizens, although the Mt. Savage community at present would need only about 200,000 gallons of water a month.

City Clerk Alex G. Close reported Frostburg is now using about 400,000 gallons of water a month.

Williams informed the Mayor and Council he had inspected the Frostburg filtration plant and found it was in fine condition.

He aded that the Mt. Savage Sanitary District is interested only in the purchase of filtered water and not raw water from the Piney Run Dam in Garrett County.

Will Study Plans

The council agreed to consider the proposal and to submit an answer at an early date.

Frostburg receives its water supply from three sources, mountain springs which run by gravity into the city reservoir, from the Savage River and, when these sources diminish, from the Piney Run Dam.

The Piney Run Dam was in use only four months last year and the community's water supply was more than ample, in spite of the worst drought in the area in many years.

State Park Gets Approval For More Cabins

Construction Set At Herrington Manor

Another move to expand summer vacation facilities in Garrett County has been authorized by the Maryland Department of Public Improvement, District Forester William H. Johnson reported yesterday.

State Forester H. C. Buckingham has written Johnson that permission has been received by the Department of State Forests and Parks for construction of two additional cabins at the Herrington Manor Recreation Area, four-and-one-half miles northwest of Oakland.

Herrington Manor now is equipped with 14 cabins available for rental. Each new cabin will have a rated capacity of six persons. These new facilities will bring the rated capacity for cabins at Herrington Manor, New Germany and Big Run, in the Savage River Forest, to 192. These cabins can accommodate a maximum of 50 per cent more than the rated capacity, which would bring potential capacity to 288.

Johnson said that arrangements already are being made to have the work done by personnel employed by the Department of State Forests and Parks. At least one of the cabins is expected to be ready for occupancy by July 1. Logs for the cabins will be cut from the State Forests. As a matter of fact, the district forester noted, the needed timber already has been marked and the cutting will begin Wednesday.

Labor costs for each of the cabins is expected to run about $5,000, Johnson believes.

Union Appeals To Celanese Stockholders

Ask Reconsideration Of Dyehouse Decision

Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), yesterday asked Celanese Corporation stockholders to urge officials to reconsider their decision to close the Amcelle dyehouse.

The local said it hoped some stockholders will be sufficiently impressed by the facts to urge corporation officials to sit down with the union in efforts to avoid the step which it estimates will eliminate the jobs of more than 500 workers at Amcelle.

Union requests for a meeting with Harold Blancke, Celanese president, have been rejected, the union said.

"We are sure," the union said, "that your investment in Celanese has been successful beyond your wildest hopes.

"It is unfortunate that the economic wellbeing of the employes who founded the operations at Cumberland, and who continued them over the years, has not kept pace with your success.

"While new plants have been built x x x the employment level here in Cumberland has gone down and down.

"This serious situation is now aggravated by the announcement of a policy to eliminate the dyeing and finishing operations at the Cumberland plant and continue such operations as may be continued at the Hopewell, Va., plant."

Company officials, the union said, explained the operation is to be continued at Hopewell since "more modern equipment and other factors give the Hopewell Dyehouse a considerable advantage."

"As employes, we cannot be blamed for Management's failure to modernize the Cumberland dyehouse following its years and years of faithful and profitable service."

The union said employes have a right to be told specifically what the 'other factors' are.

The union also declared Cumberland dyehouse and finishing department employes, many of them with 24 years of long and faithful service, believe they are entitled to an official explanation of the matter.

The union asked stockholders to call upon top policy-making officials of the corporation to sit down with union representatives and study the facts the union wishes to present and to urge Blancke to meet with the union to explore reasons for the decision and attempt to arrive at a basis for reconsideration."

10th Ridgeley Dog Shot, But Ailment Still Undetermined

Chief Henry said the dog was the tenth he has shot in the last two weeks. He is still looking for two others which reportedly were frothing at the mouth, but hasn't been able to get close enough to get a shot at them.

Henry is uncertain whether the dogs are mad or have been poisoned. Health authorities in Charleston told him the head of one of the dogs which he sent them was unsatisfactory for examination because the dog had been killed before the disease, if it existed, had run its course.

Second Suspect Held In Auto Theft, Entries

Loaded Gun, Safe, Groceries Stolen

A second suspect was arrested last night in connection with the theft of a city policeman's private car and two burglaries early yesterday morning.

Milton Ralphord Lease, 28, of Cresap Street, was arrested early yesterday after an automobile chase on Oldtown Road. Both Lease and the second suspect, whom police declined to name, are being held without charge for investigation.

Detective Thomas J. See said both men will be questioned today in connection with the theft of Officer John W. Snyder's car and burglaries at Moffatt's Grocery Store, 600 Montreal Avenue and at Cresaptown School.

Policeman's Car Stolen

Officer Snyder said his wife awakened him early yesterday morning to tell him two men had taken his 1936 car from Blaul Avenue in front of his home. Snyder called Police Headquarters and started out with a neighbor to search for the car.

Sgt. Frank A. Shober and Officer Donald H. Smith spotted the car on Oldtown Road and gave chase in their cruiser. The stolen car jumped a curb and came to a stop near the Cumberland Undergarment Factory. Snyder, who had arrived on the scene, said he nabbed Lease as he tried to climb a fence. The other man escaped in the darkness.

Loaded Pistol Found

Police said they found a loaded .32 caliber pistol on the floor of the cruiser after Lease was placed in the car. In Snyder's car were a wall safe and tools which police said were taken from the Cresaptown School.

Lease reportedly told Detective See and State Trooper First Class William F. Baker that the gun was on the floor of the cruiser when he climbed in.

Several hours later, at about 7 a. m., Leroy P. Michaels, janitor at Cresaptown School, found the school's wall safe missing. Several tools from the manual training departments also were gone.

Safe Unopened

Trooper Baker said intruders broke a pane of glass in a rear door of the school to gain entrance, then forced three doors to reach the safe in the principal's second-floor office. Nearby March of Dimes containers and a cardboard box containing $5 were untouched.

The safe, which contained an undisclosed amount of money, had not been opened when police found it. Two months ago, another safe containing $80 was stolen from the same school and later was found near Keyser, W. Va.

City Police said cigarets, cartridges and cans of meat were taken from the Montreal Avenue grocery. Entrance was gained by forcing the front door. Broken sections of what appeared to be door panels were found in Snyder's car after Lease was arrested.

Police said Lease served a sentence in 1949 after he and two other youths were convicted of beating and robbing a local cab driver.

Lions Meet Wednesday

Albert S. Paye and Earl Nonnenmann, representatives of the Hot Stove League, will address members of the Cumberland Lions Club at the club's weekly luncheon-meeting Wednesday at Central YMCA.

Central 'Y' Termed 'Edifice Of Faith' By Jennings Randolph

Cites Public's Duties As Mortgage Is Burned

"It is the responsibility of every citizen to take an intense interest and active part in public affairs and all worthwhile community projects," Jennings Randolph, former West Virginia congressman, told 250 guests at last night's mortgage burning ceremony at Central YMCA.

Complimenting the members of the YMCA, the board of directors and all those who have over a 26-year period aided in the operation of the institution and liquidation of the debt against the building, Randolph said, "This institution lives and will live for many years as a monument to the cooperative effort and faith of Cumberland citizens.

"Built to serve the youth of the community, it is an edifice of faith and cooperation and community service," he declared.

Freedoms Taken Lightly

Randolph, speaking on the subject, "The Challenge of Community Citizenship," reminded his audience of the freedoms cherished by all Americans and declared that just as "our grandfathers planned and made possible such institutions as the YMCA, they also fought and sacrificed for the freedoms we accept today."

Charging that these freedoms are taken too lightly by most citizens, he reminded his audience that in the 19th Century, "Our grandfathers walked miles over rough roads on election day for the privilege of casting their ballots, and 85 out of every 100 eligible people voted.

"In the Presidential election of 1944," he noted, "50.9 per cent of eligibles used their franchise. In the 1948 election, 43 per cent voted."

He cited city after city and state after state where this "recurring pattern of American tragedy is crossing the country."

"If we are to plan for the kind of future we think we want, if we are to pass our heritage on to our children, if we are to continue a free nation, then we must exchange this forfeiture of freedom for the franchise of freedom and accept the 'Challenge of Community Citizenship.'"

James W. Bishop presided at the mortgage burning dinner as recording secretary and chairman of arrangements. Dinner music was provided by the Duke Memorial Bible Class Orchestra and entertainment was furnished by the Elks Quartet.

Edmund S. Burke, who was chairman of the Save-the-Y Drive in 1942 which prevented a mortgage foreclosure on the institution, expressed his thanks for the continued faith of all who worked in that effort and have continued to see the plan through.

He noted that the last payment on the mortgage was made last month and "today, we are in debt to no man."

First Directors Introduced

Lynn C. Lashley, president, welcomed the guests and Bishop presented members of the first board of directors elected after the present building was occupied in January 1926. They included E. T. Dixon, John J. Tipton, Charles A. Piper, Cyril B. Geare, Wiley M. Faw, Arthur J. Weber, D. Lindley Sloan and Harold W. Smith. Dr. A. H. Hawkins and J. Milton Patterson were unable to attend, but were mentioned.

Everyone present had a part in the mortgage burning, symbolizing the participation of all friends of the "Y." The 250 guests formed a large circle around the gymnasium where the dinner was held, and Arthur J. Weber lighted a candle starting the flame for the mortgage. Each guest in turn lighted a candle from his neighbor and as the flame reached around the room, Lashley, Burke and Piper burned the mortgage.

Jury Convicts Trucking Firm For Overload

Unusual Appeal Involves Bridge

In a precedent-setting case, an Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday ruled that the Elliott Motor Lines, Winchester, Va., was guilty of violating the Maryland Truck Weight Law by traveling over the Wiley Ford Bridge with a load greater than the posted limit set for the bridge.

The jury, headed by Foreman H. Glenn Boyd of Luke, deliberated about two-and-one-half hours before returning a guilty verdict shortly before 4 p. m.

Associate Judge George Henderson, who presided at the trial, levied a $1,038 fine upon the Winchester trucking firm. The fine, plus $10.15 court costs was paid. The fine was figured on the basis of six cents per pound above the 20,000 pound limit for the bridge which spans the Potomac River between Cumberland and Wiley Ford, W. Va.

The effect of the jury's decision was to rule that a bridge and a highway are distinct.

Attorney Harold E. Naughton, representing the defendant, argued that a 1947 State Law had defined bridges as part of the state's highway system. Under this interpretation, bridges should be so maintained that they can handle the highway weight limit of 61,280 pounds. Elliott's truck weighs much less than this.

The Truck Weight Law passed by the General Assembly last year made no specific reference to bridges. However, in the section refering to fines it set forth that they should be the same as listed in another act passed in 1931. This 1931 act specifically mentioned fines for overweight loads on bridges.

Yesterday's trial was an appeal from a decision last August 18 by Trial Magistrate J. Milton Dick. He had fined the firm $1,039.45. When the appeal first was tried last October 31, it ended in a jury which failed to agree.

Naughton said last night that the finding of the jury could not be appealed. However, the question of the constitutionality of the act itself could be carried to the Maryland Court of Appeals on a writ of certiorari. He has 30 days to file such an action.

Officials of the firm cited one specific hardship that the decision entails. The Interstate Commerce Commission stipulates specific routes that vans can travel. In Elliott's case, the route is from Winchester to Romney, W. Va. on Route 50 and from Romney to Wiley Ford on West Virginia Route 28 and thence across the bridge into Cumberland. Now the firm will have to stop hauling from Winchester into Cumberland until the ICC changes its route. This may take as long as a year before it can pass through the channel of red tape.

Although a number of overload cases involving highways have been tried in Maryland courts the past year this is the first known case under the law involving a bridge, according ot Naughton. Several other similar cases are pending in courts in other Maryland counties.

Associate Judge Henderson said most of the facts in the case were undisputed, and attorneys for both the state and defendant motor trucking company entered into a stipulation as to these facts.

The truck in question had a load of 37,700 pounds at the time the driver was arrested by a State Roads weighing crew. On the state highways the truck could legally carry 61,280 pounds.

Entered in the stipulation also were the load limits of bridges across the Potomac River between Westernport and Hancock. It was noted that at Westernport the load limit is 28,100 pounds, at Paw Paw, W. Va., the limit is 32,000 pounds and at Hancock there is no load limit.

Naughton stressed the fact that the average tractor trailer weighs about 18,000 pounds unloaded, and if the transportation companies intend to travel across the Potomac in this area they would only be allowed to carry several thousand pounds.

He also pointed out that on the basis of exceeding the load limit posted for the Wiley Ford bridge the penalty under the law is $100.

Joseph Buscher, assistant attorney general, and William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney for Allegany county, presented the state's case.

Kitzmiller Will Head Membership Committee

C. L. Kitzmiller was named chairman of the 1952 membership drive of the Men of LaSalle at a meeting last night at the Knights of Columbus Home.

The organization, according to Kitzmiller, hopes to get an additional 400 members during the campaign which will be held during February. Other committee members are Phil T. Christ, Arthur Beaulieu and James Angellatta. A committee report will be given at a meeting in March.
